LOCAL MARKET. Tuesday, Dec. 20, 1904. The storm of this morning was actor in preventing many of the farmrs from putting in an appearance a the market, consequently the attend ince was much smaller than was ancicipated. The principal part of the usiness was in the poultry line. loubt there would have been a very arge trade in all kinds of fowls had the weather been favorable. Many o he farmers, who reside from 20 to niles from the city, and who are i the habit of bringing in large loads of poultry at this time of the year, hav not as yet put in an appearance on this market. Buyers have been scouring th country for several weeks past for kinds of fowls, and the probability that the amount of business for poultr will be considerable less than in forme

Grain-About 10 loads of oats were offered. Sales were made at 97c an Hay and Straw-Several loads

WORK OF VANDALS.

For some time past, Mrs. (Capt.) Dreaney, of East London, has been collecting clothing and dainties for Christmas gifts for the children of the Protestant Orphans' Home, and the articles and good things have been stored in the livery office of Capt, Dreaney. Last night, however, some vandals broke open the office door, and maliciously pulled the various parcels to pieces, scattering the contents over the floor, and destroying quite a large amount of the dainties.

They also took two caps, but no other articles are missing. APPEALING AGAINST JUDGMENT. in the case of the M. Doyle Fish Company vs. the London Cold Storage Company and Warehousing Company, C. J. New Directory Shows Them, as Usual, To Be the Most Numerous Family in London.

According to the directory of the city of London for 1905 there are 50,000 peo-ple in London, or about 8,000 more than are shown by the figures of the census taken by Assessment Commissioner Grant last summer. Of course, the directory figures are not as reliable as those of the assessment commissioner, because the directory population is the result of a calculation. In the London city portion of the directory there are no less than 20,000 names, and a mathematical calculation based on the supposition that there are 2.5 people in the city to every one on the directory roll, that he believed Loomis was a victim gives the population of 50,000.
