British Fleet to Make Test of the Utility of the Aeroplanes.

[Canadian Press.]

London, May 2. - The King will begin a review of a fleet of 125 vessels off Portland on Tuesday. He will pass Thomas. three days on board a battleship and act as umpire in a sham tattle between the blue and red fleets, the former demending the coast. A novel feature of the review will be a demonstration of the utility aeroplanes in naval warfare. The battleship Hibernia left Sheerness today with four aeroplanes. She has been fitted with a special launching plat-form fixed forward, and extending from the foremost gun turret to the sister, Mrs. R. Travers.

The system consists of two guide rails sloping downward. The aeroplane is mounted on a trolley, which slides down these rails under the force of gravity, and as the propeller simultaneously drives the machine forward, house surgeons, left today for Mongas short run is required to enable treal, where he has secured an excelthe aeropiane to rise in the air.

But Infielder Who Looked Good "Walked Right in and Turned Around, and Walked Right Out Again."

Where is W. J. O'Neil? This is the question that Manager Frank Bowerman and the directors of the London baseball club are asking themselves at the present time. O'Neil is one of the ball players that has been signed up by the London club. His home is in Buffalo, or at least that is the city in which he spent the winter. He was forwarded transportation to come to London by the local management, and he arrived Tuesday evening, registerng at the City Hotel

Shortly after his arrival he walked ut of the hotel and apparently vanished into thin air. He did not return to the hotel, and no one has seen him nor has he been heard from since Where Is "The O'Neil?"

His absence was not noticed for a time, but vesterday Manager Bowerman tried to locate him in the bunch who are working out at the park.
O'Neil was not among the players, and he did not show up again this morning. At noon Manager Bowerman men-tioned the matter to the hotel management, and investigation was made. It was discovered that O'Neil had not occupied his room at all, nor had he put in an appearance during meal hours. The affair has a touch of mystery about it, and the question now is where did O'Neil go? He had but few belongings with him, but they are still at the hotel. Difference of Opinion. It was stated by one of the clerks at the hotel that he was sure that Neil dined there yesterday at noon, but this has not been verified. At the present time there seems to be no reasonable explanation for O'Neil's bsence. According to all reports, he was a good ball player, and it does not seem plausible that he would come o London and then leave the city an hour or so later without a try-out. As far as can be learned no messages were received Tuesday night for him. and his mysterious disappearance can not be accounted for. Left For Home. William Potter, of the recruits signed up by the London management, packed up his grip and left for his home last evening. Potter was trying out for one of the infield positions, but evidently the competition was too strong for him, and he decided to quit before being told to do so by Manage
