

UNEMPLOYMENT SOLUTION GIVEN

Nationalize Natural Resources and Beat Problem, Says John Colbert.

SPEAKS TO LABOR

At a well-attended meeting yesterday of the London Individual Labor party, John Colbert, speaking on unemployment, offered complete nationalization of all natural resources as the only permanent relief for this social evil. He gave underconsumption, in the place of overproduction, as the real cause of all unemployment, and stated that only when business was controlled in the interests of everyone, would there be such a balanced production, distribution, and employment.

"The seriousness of the situation in Canada today is hardly realized by the average man," he said. "We have in this country a population of about nine millions, and we have also 100,000 men out of work, and 500,000 existing on what we consider is less than a living wage. I think that these Anglo-Saxon ancestors of ours who left the old land because social and industrial conditions were so bad, and yet that their sons and grandsons are in almost as bad a plight as they were themselves only a few short years ago. I can think of no more scathing criticism of the capitalist system than the fact that these wealthy, rich, glorious Canada of ours should be in this present state within such a few years of its settling by good British stock."

"There is only one remedy for unemployment which will be permanent, and that, as you know, is complete nationalization. At the present time we have a general feeling among the working class that it is not the fault of the government, but that it is the fault of the system. We are simply making profits for someone else. That may be wrong, perhaps, but it is a feeling that is very general in the country. It is a feeling that if we had nationalization, and if every man knew that he was working to some extent for himself, and entirely for the general good, he would have a different psychology on the part of the wage earner."

"You will remember the scriptural quotation: 'The meek shall inherit the earth,' but I would venture to say that that time when they own it. Each year brings with it a greater and more serious problem in unemployment. It is not only the mere ups and downs of business do not have much control in the matter. Some of it undoubtedly is seasonal, but much of it is due to the nature of the manufacturers and the general system of control by the financial interests. At the present time the dominion is controlled by an oligarchy of bankers, just as in the United States. The opposite of this is national ownership of all natural resources and until that is accomplished we shall always have unemployment with us."

MORE WORK, LESS PLAY IS URGED FOR CANADA

amusement that we can hold and develop this country. We are in exactly the same position as the allies were in 1918. Our backs are against the wall. If we—and I appeal particularly to the young men in business—are willing to fight in business with the same spirit that our men fought with in France, then we can say with that fine old man, 'A British subject I was born a British subject I will die.' There is no other course. We have our choice, amusement or work. In the States they come down to these offices by half past eight, and the older men worked long hours and concentrated on their business. We, if we would live, must follow their example."

Education Costs.

Mr. Seitz stated that while in Ontario fifty years ago there were 1,700,000 people, in the United States a population of 2,932,000, the educational cost was $41,000,000. This was, he said, the cost of the problem, one that would have to be solved in the immediate future.

"I would ask you businessmen here today," he pleaded, "to consider the question of the cost of education and the proper training for the boy entering business, and try to reach some definite conclusion. I am bringing forward to the department of education. The young man today has his ideas extracted by the universities, and he doesn't realize what business offers him. I have no quarrel with the professions or with higher education. We need both. But the future of Canada lies in the hands of the businessman, and I want to see the boy going into business at an early age and willing to stay in business with the same enthusiasm as many men enter and stay with the professions."

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and in a few days a noted skin specialist, Dr. A. J. Fox, will be able to show you the improvement.

Because of the germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up. Sale Urged Poet To Write 'Deadly Female,' Men Avow

Three Lowly Males Fall Before Sisters' Rush to Bargain Counter.

KIPLING WAS RIGHT

It has been decided by a little coterie of men in London that Kipling's sale has returned from a special value sale when he wrote that rhyme about, "The female of the species being more deadly than the male." The men in question were standing in the cold, bleak and unfriendly fogs of dawn in the doorway or as near as they could get of a London store featuring a Saturday sale.

They shivered in the first breezes of a new day and thought of their wives, whose wills and personalities had forced them to this unusual amusement. There were several women in the crowd, small and large, fat and thin, but all equally determined to be first at the tape when the doors opened. They were women of no public experience, and they were not in the habit of being in the queue. Their motto was "all is fair in love and war," and place in a line was not included in their creed. They were dressed in the shoes, and elbow-padded overcoats, and naturally were the winners in the latest endurance test.

Eventually the doors opened, and the men were lost in the ensuing melee. There were three men who were sent on this special mission by their wives for certain very specific purposes. They had been told exactly what these things looked like and where they were to be found the night before, and all through breakfast.

In every case, but one, and this is in accordance with the statements taken from the poems, they failed to reach their objective.

The reporter watching them asked if Kipling was right, and got the same universal reply from all, "You bet he was right," they chorused. "Sure he was right, and what is more he attended a sale of his own books, and he had thought of it unless he had."

There was one belated shopper who claimed he was more chivalrous than the rest. "If women play the game a bit rough, who's to blame them. Take any businessman. He goes about with a woman in the very same way, but he calls it business, and thinks that excuses him for every means he uses to get that order. But a woman refuses to take her place in the queue, or does a bit of finesse in the course of her shopping. He calls it an indecent lack of morality and a want of order in the very same way. So, if you are a man, or something trivial like that."

"These women are just human beings like you and I, and they have the same faults as we have. As for Kipling, that's all. As for Kipling, he is one of those poetical chaps who writes all about 'He Men,' and super heroes and all that stuff."

PETITION PROTESTS BEER AMENDMENT

Delegates to Latter Day Saints' Rally Here Take Action.

The outstanding feature of the rally and winter institute of the Latter Day Saints' church, held on Saturday and Sunday, was the signing of a petition to the premier of Ontario against amendment of the Ontario temperance act at the present time.

Rev. F. Henry Edwards of Independence, Mo., was the main speaker, and he emphasized co-operation and co-ordination in both branch and field work. George F. Tomlinson of St. Mary's, the district president, occupied the chair. Rev. H. A. Koehler of this city also presided during part of the sessions. Sunday's program was most interesting. In the morning, social service and discussions on organization were held, followed by the work of the Sunday school and the women's work in the church in the afternoon. The value of the women's department in the church was taken up, and the training of teachers was also discussed. In the evening Mr. Edwards spoke on "The Church and the Individual Duty in Regard to It." Delegates were present from St. Thomas, Windsor, Toronto and other districts.

Preparations are now under way for summer institute work in London, where it is expected that delegates from a number of cities in the United States will be present. On Saturday the recreation department was in charge of the program and games of hockey and basketball were enjoyed by the young people. In the evening there was also a social evening, when speeches were given by Rev. F. Henry Edwards, John Vass, and an interesting discussion on the topics took place. Games also featured the evening and supper was served to the guests.

M'MAHEN FIELD SITE UNDECIDED

Commission Refuses To Pay High Price For New North Playground.

Refusing to be held up for prospects for the site of the McMahon playground, which it is proposed to locate in the north end of the city, the public utilities commission seems to have reached an impasse as to the securing of a site that can be made use of this coming summer.

Negotiations were under way for weeks between the commission and owners of property at the corner of Adelaide and Oxford streets, but those negotiations fell through because of what the commission held was too high a price. The selling price asked by the owners was $11,500, which the commission considered much too high for 4.2 acres of land for a playground.

The commission has received a communication from persons in control of Becher's Island regarding the sale of that land for the site of a playground. It is said the commission would be interested in the site provided it could be secured cheaply enough. The land, which is in the north end of the city, lies along the north branch of the river.

There has also been some talk of securing land at Carling's heights for a swimming pool on land not controlled by the commission over a long period of years would be an impracticable solution, even should the land be handed over to the commission as a gift.

Commissioner Philip Pocock, chairman of the playgrounds commission, has spoken of Becher's Island as being an excellent site for bathing purposes. This would be for grownups more largely, and such is not the prime purpose of playgrounds in the opinion of some who are interested in the question.

Meanwhile the bequest of $20,000 left to the commission by the late Archie McMahon, is continuing to draw interest, amounting as it does now to between $22,000 and $23,000, invested under the direction of James Bell, city treasurer.

FINANCIAL BILLS WILL BE REPEALED

Premier Herriot Decides To Take Action After Conference With Cabinet.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, Feb. 16.—Upon resumption of the budget debate in the chamber of deputies here, Premier Herriot, it is understood, will announce abandonment of the requirement that holders of coupons of French bonds list the coupons as paid and hand this list to the authorities for taxation purposes. The premier is also expected to announce that the bill of April, 1918, prohibiting the export of capital, will not be prolonged after its expiration on Feb. 23. These decisions were reached after a series of conferences Saturday night and yesterday with Finance Minister Clementel, M. Bonneau, governor of the Bank of France, and other financial authorities.

While the first measure is generally welcomed in financial circles, suppression of control over the export of capital is regarded by many as a dangerous proceeding at the present moment, as they contend it will permit open speculation in France for the fall of the franc.

Birds Lose Pep In London Fog

Associated Press Despatch. London, Feb. 16.—Fog affects the birds and beasts at the London zoo to such an extent that it has been decided to install electric lights to temper the dampness and darkness caused by the moist haze and coal smoke which creeps into all cages when fogs are at their height. Birds particularly suffer from the impurities in the atmosphere and generally lose all their "pep" as well as their appetites.

The monkeys detest the fogs, and often crawl into their corners, where they remain for hours at a time. Only the snakes do not seem to mind the fog. In fact, some people say they like it because the moisture feels good to their dry skins.
