THE ART OF ANNUNZIO

Works by Night and Prizes Archaic Forms and Vocabulary

ROME, Feb. 12.—Gabrielle d'Annunzio has been revealing some of his methods of work. His most recent novel, "Perhaps Yes, Perhaps No," has been written entirely in archaic Italian. When he is not actually engaged upon a work, d'Annunzio lives by day like the rest of the world, but at night he writes a novel or play in his mind, is a sign for the exact reversal, which becomes the novel of his work in the morning. He sleeps from nine in the morning till four in the evening; then he breakfasts, and his nocturnal day begins. He prides himself on whatever his secret agonies may be—on giving his publisher a manuscript which is faultless, not a spot of blot, not an erasure, not an addition.

Still he professes to write easily. He complains that many distinguished writers manage to say all their thoughts and do all their work of painting of scenes and types with a poor palette of 800 words. He says his new novel uses no less than 15,000. He loves to bring to the fore the words he has rusted in his forgotten books; he is a forcible reader of old literature, and his special vocabularies wherewith to enrich his "linguistic treasure." And a charge made against him by some as being "How many words have I not put into new uses by giving them a new sense?" He is full of indignation with his impatience with the tedious phrases that beset all languages that have classic.

A correct judgment of distance was probably prevented by the strong glare from electric lights on the wharves. We are of the opinion that the master, Captain Alex. Reintz, was fully justified in manoeuvring the Corinthian in the manner he did, and therefore should be exonerated from blame for the stranding of his vessel."

PROBABLY DROWNED

John Dorsey, of New Westminster, Thought to Have Fallen into Fraser River.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Feb. 12.—John Dorsey, uncle of Premier McBride, and father of Mrs. W. C. Marshall, of Beach Avenue, Vancouver, is missing, and it is feared he was drowned in the Fraser river late yesterday afternoon, an unidentified man having been observed to fall from the railway bridge into the water. He never came to the surface. The man's hat was recovered near the point where the body went down. On the band of this hat appears the initial "J. D."

Yesterday afternoon Capt. Myers of the tug Chemainus noticed a man standing on the bridge, and a moment afterwards, hearing a splash he again looked for the man on the bridge, but he was not there. MUCH HOSTILITY TO REGULATIONS

Business Men and Fishermen of Royal City Protest Against Fishery Rules Proposed by International Commission

WOULD WORK HARM TO FRASER INDUSTRY

Fishermen Propose Postponement of Opening Date and Going Away With Present Close Season in August

NEW WESTMINSTER, Feb. 12.—Acting for the city council and the board of trade, Mayor Lee has forwarded to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, minister of marine a formal protest against the proposed international fisheries regulations. This action practically means that the Government has been asked to allow no further change to be made toward the drafting of the regulations until general expression of opinion has been heard from the Pacific Coast.

Today a mass meeting of fishermen was held and a delegation of three appointed to meet to the board of trade at a meeting called for next Tuesday, resolutions embodying the views of the Fraser river fishermen.

Since Thursday several deputations representing Canadian fishing interests have conferred with Secretary Wade, of the board of trade, and it has been proposed by the fisheries committee of the board that the date of the commencement of the sockeye fishing should be changed from July 1 to July 15. Generally the first run of the salmon up the Fraser river takes place between July 5 and 8, and the changing of the date from July 1 to July 15 would permit the first run of sockeyes passing up to their spawning grounds. In other words, the close season would be switched from the middle to the first of the fishing.

The fishermen who have conferred with the secretary of the board of trade are almost unanimously against a close season between August 25 and September 15, as they believe this will take the bread out of the mouth of the Canadian fishermen and operate most to the disadvantage of the American interests. The fishermen believe that with the fishing commencing on July 10 and with fishing prohibited between 2 a. m. on Saturday and 6 o'clock Monday ample protection will be given the salmon. They urge that the Government should vigorously police the fishing waters and see that every pot is lifted during the prohibited hours. The fishermen believe that the use of fish traps is the sole cause of the depletion of the fisheries, and that the majority of the traps are American owned.

The destruction of the salmon by seals is also being discussed by the fishermen. It is pointed out that the regulation which provides against the laying of unbaited hooks has worked to the disadvantage of fishermen. Where these lines have been in use they have, it is said, destroyed hundreds of seals and saved the harvest of salmon for the fishermen.

MUST ENFORCE ANTI-TRUST LAW

President Taft Answers Wall Street Panic Talk in Lincoln Day Speech at New York—Government's Course

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—"If the enforcement of the law is not consistent with the present method of carrying on business, then it does not speak for the present methods of conducting business, and they must be changed to conform to the law. This was President Taft's answer to Wall street and its cry of "panic." It was made to a cheering audience of hundreds of people gathered for the Lincoln day dinner of the Republican club of this city held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Taft declared that the administration would not foolishly run amuck in business and destroy what confidence just for the pleasure of doing so.

"No one," he continued, "has a motive as strong as the administration in power to cultivate and strengthen business confidence and property. But there was no protest in Wall street, and the Republican party to change the anti-trust law except to strengthen it. Of course the administration cannot count on to enforce the law in the way best calculated to prevent a panic, but it must enforce the law goes without saying."

President Taft did not hesitate to discuss the attitude of the administration on the administration and the party, or the danger to future success which would be the result of other discussion. Republicans who feared defeat at the polls in November, he declared, however, should take courage from the demonstrated opposition of their opponents, the Democrats.

"It was Grant," said the president, "and his cabinet who were in the line of the party in battle by banishing how much more afraid the enemy was, his utterances were not working at the gun, had their right hands badly mutilated and the surgeon general said that the injuries were serious. The ship was at anchor in the bay at the time of the explosion. The explosion occurred at 10:30 a. m. The ship was at anchor in the bay at the time of the explosion."

Mr. Taft again came to the defense of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He did not hesitate, he said, to repeat that the tariff bill had been paid on the arm about the wrist. L. W. Drummer, another third class gunner's mate, was killed by a shell which struck the face. No others were injured as far as is known, by the navy department.
