

THE PEOPLE'S PASTIMES.

NOTES ON THE RECREATIONS OF THE DAY.

Jim MacEwan's Sky of Air. Greenfield-Weighing in and weighing out. A "National" Cocking Match.

Prendergast says Sullivan must fight or sign himself "retired champion." S. Swan of Trinity hall won the Colquhoun sculls, emblematic of the championship of Cambridge university.

Young Tom Sayers, who is said to be a son of the pugilistic champion of that name, will ride for a western stable next season.

The best American hurdle racer in Europe was Meteor, who, starting six times, was placed first on three occasions, gaining $249 for his owner.

Johnny Raine, the ped, has returned to Ottawa, having done nothing at Winnipeg beyond getting knocked out of times in a sparring match.

Poor Girdle may have to remain in England, as it is said that his owner's debts are far heavier than anything he has ever had on his back.

Wm. Connor, an American light weight, is the first jockey to count August Potok, a great sporting nobleman in Poland, who maintains a vast stud.

A curling bonspiel is to be given at Winnipeg about Christmas time. A lively time with beam and stone is expected in the Northwest generally.

The new rules of the American turf make it impossible to reinstate a man who has been once ruled out. J.S. Braum has, however, been reinstated in England.

Fred Archer has headed the list of winning jockeys in England for ten years in succession. His record this year is 232 wins, three hundred and thirty.

One of the noted sporting writers of New York, in speaking of the Allison, Ont., track, says: "It lacks 260 yards short of a mile." Shades of McLaughlin of Detroit intended to come out of his shell once and challenge the winner of the Dufur-McMahon wrestling match for the championship.

Larry Corcoran has accepted the $2100 offer of the Chicago club for his services as pitcher the coming season. Henry Graham, 6 feet 7 inches high, has been engaged as a reserve player.

The Melbourne cup, one of the most important races of the Australian turf, was recently won by Martini-Henry, a 3-year-old son of imported Munk, owned by the Hon. J. White.

A general meeting of the Press lacrosse club was held in the Globe office yesterday afternoon with Charles Morrison in the chair. It was resolved to hold the annual dinner on Dec. 29 at the American hotel.

Of the American horses that raced in Europe last season James R. Keene's Blue Grass heads the list with £1700, having started five times, winning three of the events and getting placed in the other two.

Pierre Lorillard's Iroquois gained $2000 from two races, in one of which he was first, running second in the other.

This is the way the Harvard Lampoon keeps full its sporting columns. Since the late decision of the faculty "the Harvard light weight athletic powers would like to pose any American team, similar weight and number, for $500 a side, each side to deposit $100 with the editor of the New York Critic within fourteen days as a guarantee of good faith. Oscar Wilde rules."

It does seem strange that some people can never get "weighed out" and "weighed in" through their skulls. In framing the recent American racing rules the committee, speaking of "a starter," says: "Every horse that is weighed in is a starter." This would be pardonable in a novice, but when the powder is made such a mistake it is ludicrous.

Arrangements have been completed for a national cocking main to be held in Chillicothe, beginning on or about Jan. 18, and continuing five or six days. Birds from New York, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia and other states are expected to be shipped, and a large pit has been secured on a farm outside of town, and it is promised by the management that there will be no interference with the sport by the authorities.

Wm. T. Mitchell, the English wing shot, now at Lynnhurgh, Va., says: "It is material whether you think I can beat Bogardus except myself, as I propose to put up my own money and leave it to the public to say whether I am right or not in the title of champion is at stake. But I am satisfied there is no other bird, myself who has not been first in a cocking match, and that one is Capt. Bogardus himself, or he would not have such a record of a meeting with me."

The advent of Jack Stewart and his gang of alleged pugilists has raised a horde of imitators in Toronto, and the journals of that city are busily chronicling challenges between toughs who are not the first idea of science. "Hamilton Tribune. Our excellent contemporary should confine itself to those things it knows. It will not come off matches—one of which was talked of before Stewart came to town—do not make a horse of it. The Tribune should know better than to talk of the 'journals of that city,' when it merely means the blanket sheets."

It appears Jim MacEwan made a big bluff on his arriving in England, offering to fight Jack Davis to fight Greenfield. In the Sporting Life Greenfield says the offer was to put up his money and leave it to the public to say whether he is right or not in the title of champion is at stake. But I am satisfied there is no other bird, myself who has not been first in a cocking match, and that one is Capt. Bogardus himself, or he would not have such a record of a meeting with me."

A PRETTY SHREW WORKINGMAN.

Mr. Flatters, Mr. Gladstone and Secures a Valuable Chair for Himself.

From the London Times.

In September last Mr. Hill, a workingman advocate in Lambeth, wrote to Mr. Gladstone as follows: "I have a son, East street, Walworth, Sept. 3, 1883—Sir, I am a workingman chair-maker, and have for the past thirty years had a vote in Lambeth which I have always given to the liberal candidate. I am going to ask a very great favor from you, which I do hope you will see your way to grant. I have two sons, and I want you to sell me one or two, according to the size of the oak, elm, or any other hard wood, trees you have cut down yourself. I want to make my sons down your own hands, so that they can leave them to their children when they are dead. I shall be willing and glad to pay the price charged by your value, and also the railway carriage to London. Trusting you will be able to do so, and hoping you will forgive me the liberty I have taken in writing to you, I remain, your obedient servant, H. F. Hill. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone." To this the following reply was received: "Sept. 3, 1883. Sir, Mr. Gladstone has had the honor to receive your letter of Sept. 3, and desires me to inform you that he will make known the subject of it to his son on his return from abroad, as he regulates, matter of the nature referred to. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, W. E. Gladstone. Mr. H. F. Hill." On the 10th of last month Mr. W. H. Gladstone wrote: "Re: Mr. Hill's letter of Sept. 3, in reference to your letter of Sept. 3, which Mr. Gladstone handed me, I beg to ask you how many feet of timber you require. We have a beech of about 16 ft. available, but I fear the carriage to London would be heavy. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, W. H. Gladstone. Mr. Hill at once replied asking that the tree might be sent on, and on Saturday afternoon it arrived safely. It is 18 ft. long, and in diameter, and the weight about one ton and a half. The tree has been cut in the shape of a wedge above and ground, and each mark of the axe is quite distinct and clean.
