E. BARKER Principal for more than five years past of the Shorthand Institute in connection with the Canadian Business University, Public Library Building, will open a Shorthand and Typewriting School on Monday, 7th inst., at 47 Kings reet east. His old pupils now fill hundreds of offices of all kinds over the whole Continent of America; many are engaged in court work, nine are known to be connected with the press, and at least as many more are shorthand teachers in leading commercial and other colleges. He will now have greater facilities than ever before for turning out a select class of graduates, especially as the typewriting department is under the management of Mr. George Bengough, agent for the Remington Standard Typewriter, who has removed his business to the sume premises, and has made special arrangements for giving thorough instruction. Apply for circulars to Barkey's Shorthand School, 47 and 49 Kingstreet sast, Toronto.
