MINING IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

An Entertaining Report Returned to Montreal From the Latest Operations.

Montreal, Oct. 14.—Capt. Adams, who is largely interested in the development of British Columbia, arrived here from the coast yesterday afternoon with some interesting details regarding the situation in that province. He says that a great deal of work has been done in the southern part of the province since the discovery of the gold in the boundary line for 300 miles appears to be in silver, copper and lead.

What have you done on your own account? asked the Montreal reporter. I have opened a property there called the Mt. Adams silver mine, and an expert from the University of Chicago has been to one of the greatest extents of surface showing ever known in the Pacific, running to the concentrator at Three Forks, has opened up to civilization and industry what was an impenetrable forest three years ago.
