JOKER'S CORNER

No Offense

Chairman Lasker of the U. S. Shipping Board said in an interview: "Those men are taking needless offense. They are taking offense where none is intended."

"A tall, gaunt, vinegar-faced woman walked into Wawa station one day, and said to the ticket agent: "Gimme a ticket for Chester Heights."

"Single," said the agent.

"The woman's eyes flashed steely sparks."

"None o' yer darn business," she hissed. "Gosh knows, though, I might have married a dozen times over if I'd been willin' to grubstake some shiftless puddy-faced monkey like yourself."

What Happened

An Irishman, returning home after gathering dollars in Canada, decided to give to his old father an outing.

The old fellow had never been in a train before, and he entered the compartment with much fear and trembling, and with many outspoken anticipations of what would happen.

Suddenly the train dived into a tunnel, and as suddenly the old chap's fist flew out and dealt his son a hefty blow on the nose.

"Be jebers," he roared, "O! tould yez something would happen. 'O'm struck blind."

No It Did

A self-made, self-satisfied and self-assertive itinerant preacher was expatiating to a college graduate on his own eloquence.

"College," he declared, "ain't necessary when a preacher's got a genuine call to the ministry. I'm thankful to say the Lord opened my mouth with out education."

"That's interesting," returned his hearer. "Come to think of it, something like that happened several thousand years ago in connection with Balaam, didn't it?"

Two In One

A diner in a restaurant called for his bill.

"Let me see," said the waiter.

"What have you had, sir?"

"Three fish—," commenced the diner.

"Three, sir?" questioned the waiter.

"I only brought you two, I think."

"No," replied the customer, with a sad smile, "you brought me two mackerel and one smelt."

He Had His Doubts

An elderly man was persuaded by one of his sons to go with him to a boxing exhibition.

"The son paid for two $2 seats."

"Now, dad," said the son joyfully, "you'll see more excitement for your $2 than you've ever seen in your life before."

"I've got my doubts about that," he said gloomily. "Two dollars was all I paid for my marriage license."

Once Enough

"How often does your road kill a man?" asked a facetious travelling salesman of a Central Branch conductor the other day.

"Just once," replied the conductor sourly.

"Yes, as soon as your gas attack is over," answered the weary customer.

NOVA SCOTIA

settlement of Acadia's French to Cheticamp and it is a Sunday he may see the women going to mass in the quaint head-dress of their Bretonese ancestors, and if it is a week day, he may see them working in the fields while their lords and masters are busy at their fishing and their nets and boats, for the Acadians are fishermen first and farmers afterwards. He will find them the most polite and courteous of peoples. At Cheticamp the carboniferous formation of the south end of the island gives way to the archaean rocks, and the coast stretches away in bold bluffs and mountains to the North Cape.

Retracing his steps to Margaree he will find himself among the Highland Scotch settlers, and while there are many among the Acadians who talk nothing but French there are some here who speak nothing but the Gaelic. Both races live alongside one another and peace and unity and their hospitality is almost boundless, but that of the Acadian is tempered with thrift. He may drive on down the west coast, sometimes high up on the precipitous slopes of a bold headland with the sea fretting and gnawing at its foot, and on through a bit of woodland and out on to grass, uplands dotted with grazing sheep. He will pass picturesque farmhouses, sometimes with their roofs tied down by iron rods, and with occasional grand and twisted spruce trees testifying to the fury of the winter gales; and always he will find the same kindly, simple, intelligent people. Three hours from Margaree will bring him to the rather ugly town of Inverness with a coal mine and railway terminus but with a magnificent outlook over the gulf, and the railway will take him in three or four hours back to Point Tupper and through the Scotch Settlements of Strathmore, Mahon, Glencoe, Port Hood, Creignish and Port Hastings.

It was such a trip as this that my daughter and I took in late August and the memory of it is with us yet. And there is another mental picture of a wild autumn gale with a heavy surf raging in on a beach of shingle, of a sail away in the offing getting nearer and resolving itself into a brigantine in distress, of her coming ashore and the crew crouching under the bulwarks as the sea broke over her, of our efforts to get a line aboard and as the tide went down our final success and the rescue of a woman and of the crew.

They are two widely contrasting pictures, the one of beauty and peace and sunny skies and delicious languorous air. The other of warning elements, angry seas, and a cruel ocean—chasing a helpless vessel and her crew into a corner and then trying to annihilate them. Both are vivid, both are beautiful in their own way and they are typical of Cape Breton climate at its best and its worst, in winter softness and beauty and in winter fury and madness.

But it is perhaps the last which I like the best, for while it is the summer which ripens Cape Breton's crops and brings the mackerel in shore, it is the terrible winter which develops the men and the most valuable product of Nova Scotia as of old, the greatest of her resources is, not the fisheries or the coal mines, but men which she has reared and sent abroad.

ADVERTISING IS CAPITAL

"Twenty years ago one of the best known names in national advertising was James Pyle's Pearline. The advertising had run continuously since 1872. In 1904 the appropriation for that year amounted to $500,000.00, which was a great deal of money in those days. In 1907, the concern having passed into the hands of an estate, the trustees saw an opportunity by which they could save ($7) many dollars by cutting out the advertising. Pearline lost favor rapidly, and in 1914 tried to come back. Several hundred thousand dollars were spent, which amount would have made a considerable dent on the market for a new product. It was trying to come back, which was infinitely more difficult.

"In 1915, according to our information, Pearline was sold to a competitor for just the cost of the machinery as junk and the stock on hand as raw material.

"A merchant can build up a splendid business in his town if he will advertise constantly, and it will continue to grow as long as he advertises.

"Advertising is the modern miracle worker, but it must be done consistently and constantly. You cannot stop in the middle of the stream and expect to get across."

Her Style

Clancy—"O! want to buy an ottomobile for my wife."

Clerk—"Yes sir—Long body?"

Clancy—"Begorrah No! She's built like a barrel—But what the devil has that got to do with it?"

THE MODEL SUBSCRIBER

Good morning, Sir, Mr. Editor, how are the folks to-day? I owe you for next year's paper, and I thought I'd come in and pay. And Jones is going to take it, and this is his money here. I shut down lendin' it to him and then coaxed him to try it a year. And here is a few little items that happened last week out our way: I thought they'd look good for the paper, and so I just jotted 'em down. And here is a basket of apples my wife picked expressly for you; and here is a pumpkin from Jennie—she thought she must send something, too. And now you are chock full of business and I won't be taking your time. I've things of my own I must tend to—good day, sir, I believe I will climb."

The editor sat on his hard bottom chair, and brought down his fist with a thump. "God bless that sturdy farmer," he muttered, "he's a regular jolly old trump." And it's thus with our noble profession, and thus it will ever be still, there are some who appreciate its labor, and there are some who never will. But in the great time that is coming, when Gabriel's trumpet shall sound, and they who have labored and rested, shall come from the quivering ground, when then they who have striven and suffered to teach and ennoble the race shall march at the head of the column, each one in his God given place, as they march through the gates of the golden city with proud victorious tread, the country editor and his faithful devil will travel not far from the head.

"TREM WUZ THE DAYS"

When I think of the towel—the old-fashioned towel—

That used to hang up by the printing house door.

I think that nobody in these days of shoddy

Could hammer out iron to wear as it wore.

The comp. who first used it, the tramp who abused it.

The devil who used it when these two were done;

The make-up, the foreman, the editor (poor man).

Each rubbed some grime off, while they put a heap on.

In, over and under, twas blacker than thunder.

Twas harder than poverty, rougher than sin;

From the roller suspended, it never was bended.

But whipped on the wall like a banner of tin.

It grew thicker and tougher, harder and rougher.

And daily put on a more inkier hue.

Until one windy morning, without any warning.

It fell on the floor and was broken in two.

MY CREED

For all life's day, this is my creed—

To lend a helping hand to those in need.

To those who come for sustenance to my door.

To give each all they seek, and something more.

To do, each day, my work as best I can.

To live in harmony with God and man;

Just to uphold the right and spurn the wrong.

And sweeten all my labor with a song:

To sympathize with those who slip and fall.

Remembering we are human, one and all.

To live my faith, whatever that may be;

To glimpse through this brief life—Eternity.

This is my creed. O! me I ever give the best I have to those with whom I live.

AGRICULTURAL SHORT COURSE

Elsewhere in our columns will be found an advertisement of Short Course for men and women at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College. This is to be held during the first two weeks of January. No other effort of the staff of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College has given bigger results than that which has been devoted to the Short Courses which have been held for a period of eighteen years with an average attendance of somewhere between 200 and 300 of both old and young farmers, as well as farmer's wives and daughters.

Tuition for these courses is free! The railways offer the lowest rates that have been offered since 1916. Aside from the opportunity of receiving instruction, the Short Courses at Truro afford to busy farmers a change for a profitable and pleasant vacation when they may not only take a little rest from labor but can receive instruction and talk over farming matters with students from all the Maritime Provinces who will be present.

PURCHASE OF BIG TIMBER AREA

The purchase of an area, or 2,000 or more acres of timber land in Nova Scotia by St. John interests has been completed, according to word received at Yarmouth. A. J. Solloway, of Hampton, N. B., who has been conducting the negotiations on behalf of himself and his St. John associates, has closed the deal with the owners.

The big tract of land which has been purchased lies in the counties of Digby, Yarmouth and Queens, Nova Scotia, and includes about 2,000 acres of hemlock, pine and spruce. It is understood that the new owners are to commence operations on the property, but so far no definite statement of their immediate intentions has been made public. Mr. and Mrs. Solloway were in Yarmouth last week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Nickerson, Porter street, and left by the D.A.R. Thursday to return home.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A clothes dryer that folds close to the wall is very handy in the sewing room to hang the work on before and after finishing.

To cut marshmallows, dip your scissors in ice cold milk and use them expert. At the same time they have without drying. Cut about two pieces, then dip again. The marshmallows will not stick to the scissors.

THE LOCAL PRINTER

(From Canadaink)

We have a printer in our town who always has a welcome smile; he calls his customers his friends, and seems to think they're worth the while. So when I want to hear the news, I wander down the shady street, and call on Bill the local print, and jaw about the price of wheat. Sometimes when Bill is in the plant to lend a hand at plugging type, I wander round behind the press or watch the rattling linotypes. One time when I was near the press, I got some ink upon my shirt, and with a scowl at Bill, I said, "It is the meanest kind of dirt. I cannot stand the greasy mess, it makes my temper always rough, when I go tramping home at times, all daubed up with the filthy stuff." "Now, friend," said Bill, "you've got it wrong; look rather at its comely face; it is the mightiest force that lives, it chased oppression from the race. Contentment follows in its wake, from tyrant head it tears the crown, it plays a noble part in life, no honest man need fear its frown. Even on your shirt you'll find that Printing Ink is no disgrace; the things that men do vitiate are often blessings out of place." And so, when I am full of gloom and cavil at my humble worth, I think of lowly Printing Ink that stands supreme for good on earth.
