

A few weeks after, this gentleman sent, with other papers, a manuscript narrative of the life of Thomas Williams, with full permission to make such use of them as might be deemed proper; but expressing a wish that, if published, the language should be slightly amended, and grammatical errors corrected, as the papers had been hastily prepared and time had not been found to give them the necessary revision for the public eye.

Believing that this permission justified the present use of these papers, the undersigned has copied them with the sole view of correcting the slight irregularities in the style, or the "In-