COMMENT FROM MONTH TO MONTH

Medical Examinations may prove a "deadhead" upon which the medical barque may be damaged or come to grief. The universities and the Medical Council should not be at loggerheads upon this very important question before the Ontario Medical Commission. Were they not requested by the Honorable Commissioner to get together, not to pull apart? Verbum sapienti sat est!

It is not right to see teachers in the medical department of the university arguing for the full control of all examinations, and the members of the Medical Council upholding the examination by the Council in addition to the examination by the university. The advocates of either scheme are in the main practitioners. As practitioners with the prime and noble purpose in view of protecting the public at the present time, they should be united and not divided; and it does not look well either before the public or the Commissioner for members of the profession to even appear antagonistic. University men, other than medical practitioners, may see fit to grab all for the university, but the university medical men should stand pat at the present time.
