

be wise, before leaving home, to inquire about the recognition given to Canadian degrees at home.

(c) Language requirements

All Canadian universities require evidence of language proficiency, but not all require a test. Consequently, a student should not take a test unless invited to do so by a Canadian university that has found him in other respects qualified for admission. An immigration officer may also require proof of language proficiency before granting a visa.

The tests now in use are the following:

English:

- (i) The English-proficiency test administered in many parts of the world by the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, U.S.A. This can be taken at any time, and results are provided within six weeks of application.
- (ii) The test leading to the certificate of proficiency in English of the University of Cambridge. This is given twice a year, in March and October. Information may be obtained from the local centre of the British Council or from the Secretary (Examination in English), 47 Bateman Street, Cambridge, England.
- (iii) The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) of the Education Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey, U.S.A.

Admission-testing services operated by the Service for Admission to College and University (SACU) have been suspended for 1975-76 and students are advised to contact the Education Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey, U.S.A. Testing centres are no longer operated by SACU.

Tests of facility in the French language -- Le Test d'aptitude générale aux études post-secondaires (TAGEPS) and Le Test du français (langue maternelle) (TFLM) -- have also been suspended for the present.

Application and registration procedures

Application for admission to a Canadian university should be addressed only to the registrar, from whom information about the availability of courses, admission requirements, fees and expenditures can be obtained. Since a good deal of correspondence may be necessary
