

Mr. Clark also noted that the Dominion Carillonneur will play the Peace Tower carillon in recognition of the International Day of Peace as part of the privately-inspired "Peal for Peace" project that will see bells ringing in a number of Canadian communities on September 16.

Mr. Clark said that the September 16 ceremony reflects the continued commitment of the Canadian Government to the pursuit of international peace and security and its support for the objectives of the International Year of Peace as outlined in the IYP resolution, co-sponsored by Canada, that received the unanimous consent of the United Nations General Assembly on October 24, 1985. He emphasized that Canada would continue to work towards the achievement of these goals, not just in 1986 but every year.
