

A

PARAPHRASE, &c.

THE Passage itself, which is here intended to be paraphrased, is in these words. “ Our prospects indeed have been long dark. We may now, perhaps, discover a ray of brightness. But for the continuance and increase of it we must rely on the wisdom of our Governours; in confidence that Necessity will at last provide those remedies which Foresight did not; that the dependance of the colonies may be no longer nominal. And, for our Spiritual interests, we hope the reasoning which was so just in the case of Canada, “ That, if ”

B “ you