MR. G. M. HENDRIE, of Detroit, Mich.

These are mostly young horses with a good number of smart per-formances to their credit, and are in racing shape right now. The horses to be sold are sired by such well-known sires as "The Commoner," "Lord Esterling" and "Makaland." This sale practically affords the last oppor-tunity of the season to purchase a good thoroughbred at auction at almost your own price. List of horses will be furnished at The Repository. Ad-ditional entries of any good horses may also be made through The Rein fact, incredulous, when he is told that the color of a cigar is absolutely no guide to its strength. Yet such is the case, and a fact well known to cigar manufacturers and importers. The belief of smokers that cigars of dark color are strong and those of a lighter shade are milder is, in point of fact, as fallacious as it is general. This is but one of many delusions harbored by consumers of tobacco, and which practical cigar men have smiled at and indulged from time immemoral.

But of recent years the inclination of smokers toward light-hued cigars has assumed the proportions of a "craze," and the producers are finding much difficulty in meeting the demand. The manufacturers and Cuban tobacco raisers would now gladly correct the error; but, after having carefully classified their products under the style of claros, colorados, maduros, etc., tor decades, they find it next to impossible to dispel the illusion.

A maker of Havana cigars uses but one grade or blend of tobacco in the body or filler of his cigars. Exactly the same stock is used in his conchas as in his perfectos; in his claros as in as in his perfectos; in his claros as in his maduros. — After the cigars are made, however, his "selector" takes them in hand and classifies them according to the relative shades of the wrappers. This is done to the content of the formity in the appearance of each box of cigars, and to enable the dealer to readily indulge the whims of the self-deluded smoker. Inasmuch as the wrapper constitutes not more than one-tenth of the cigar. it will readily be seen that the degree of its strength or mildness is very inof its strength or mildness is very in-considerable in effect. In this connec-tion, however, it is interesting to note that tobacco tradesmen versed in the intricacles of the industry rigidly bar the light-colored wrapper from their own smoking tables, knowing that it generally indicates that the leaf was prematurely cut and imperfectly cured, and that it impairs the flavor and and that it impairs the flavor and burn of the cigar. Cubans, who, by the way, are notably partial to mild tobacco, avoid smoking light colored cigars just as they would avoid eating a green orange or an unripe banans. The prejudice of these natives and of tobacco tradesmen is a logical one, and serves to throw into bold relief a peculiar misconception of facts which is both amusing and embarrassing to is both amusing and embarrassing to vendors of the fragrant weed.

Whether cigar makers will ever awaken to the fact that a dark cigar is, if anything, milder and invariably sweeter and more aromatic than a light cigar remains to be seen.—The Tobacco
