OTTAWA, March 14.-There was an nimated discussion in the senate toay on the question of Chinese wives. It came up during consideration of the amendments to the Chinese Immigration Act, and Senator Thompson asked if there were many marriages between hinamen and white women. Senator Macdonald of Victoria, B.C.

Senator Macdonald of Victoria, B.C., admitted that many Chinese and Japanese married white women. "Some women," he added, "were so anxious for marriage they would take a man of any color, white, yellow or black."

Senator Power said the admission fee of $500 seemed too large. He thought $200 would be more satisfactory. Sir Richard Cartwright replied that this was a point which had been much discussed, and on which the policy had been pretty thoroly settled.

Senator Lougheed said in his opinion the law should be broadened so every Chinaman entitled to admission should have a right to bring in a wife without paying the tax. A regulation like this would be in the interest of morality.

Adolphus Busch, later on millionaire philanthropist, and his elder brother Ulrich, married the daughters of Eberhard Anheuser, Lily and Anna. The occurrence, rarer in those days than now, was a social event and the union of the families marked the beginning of the famed Anheuser-Busch Brewery of St. Louis, now one of the greatest industries on the continent. The proceedings to-day were not of a very exciting character. The only situation which developed any great interest was the fact that Mr. Lanctot himself was the first witness called by counsel for Mr. Blondin. There were repeated objections by Mr. Lafamme, Mr. Lanctot's counsel, and particularly by Mr. Victor Geoffrion, to questions asked the defendant by Mr. McDougall, Mr. Blondin's counsel, A deadlock was reached when Mr. McDougall asked the witness if he had got work done by government employes in the fall of 1908 and had not paid for the work.
