WOMAN'S WORLD

is that indistinct something on the horizon.

The worn and tired prowess of the old world has found a breathing space; hope and energy spring anew at the sight of bounding rivers, misty mountains, and wide prairies of unturned sod. Here a man has room.

For thousands of years morality and religion sat up nights, the better to be able to instruct this humanity as to how to direct its life's forces. All will always endeavor to use woman-is that her co-partner, man, must face, Neither of them is merely a sex being.

Neither of them is merely a sex being.

Important as the pasternal, as the pasternal function may be, still it must be made subservient to the higher need—to the clutch for the higher need—to the clutc

All honor and thanks to them!—Decade after decade, man was shoved along this groove, and then along that in a straightful to the to how to direct its life's forces. All honor and thanks to them!—Decade ster decade, man was shoved along this groove, and then along that, in a futile attempt to find one mould into which each and every man might be poured. It so happens that things, neither in the heavens nor on the earth, can be so remoulded.

The universe indicates variety, diversity, individuality. Humanity, being no exception, and possessed of some latent independence, has always fought against this old pattern ideal. The illigion of the light of the world.

Will always endeavor to use woman to use woman that we woll as well as for the world.

Fatherhood and husbandhood have as yet been too little emphasized for us to acknowledge that manhood might, in fairness, be as all-absorbing as womanned.

The palm of glory has up till now been given to womanhood, and may the individual who is blessed with this giorious heritage ever use her sex as her most valuable asset in working along the line of her personal evolution.

In Rosmersholm' Rebecca West has the idependent ambitions that so appeal to the western woman. Then, among Miss mouth of the bee that it must make honey, so it is written in our eyes, our the whole matter of life-expression shall be left to the individual, but the hour is even now, when thinking people are tending to do what is best for themselves and least injurious for others. We have not yet attained unto the point where we quite do unto others. We have not yet attained unto the point where we quite do unto others as we would be done by. We have come a long way to reach this ideal, and its practice is not yet.

Still it is a great plunge forward to admit and confess that we are striving toward the fulfilment of an ideal which the Bible re-iterated, and which is modernly interpreted, "Mind your own business and let me attend to my own salvation." It is the glory of the age that, in this liberty-loving, free-com-giving Canada, a human being has a fighting chance to work out his own physical, mental and moral redemption.

We glory in this human opportunity, have the first street of the spot" getting her own once again." Woman has always been at the side of man, and in spite of the handcap of "Might's" enactments against her, she has managed to almost keep up in the race.

When man enjoyed some special blessing she usually indirectly benefited. For a few centuries man called her the instrument of the devil, and he has his punishment in that a few yet play the punishment in that a few yet play the part to his continual undoing. Then of late centuries he reversed his edict and claimed for woman the higher moral status.

This much holds, that woman with her supposedly lately acquired moral-

All adown the centuries humanity has been marching toward the sunsetticed gift. Is this bound of the marching toward the sunsetticed gift. Is this bound of the marching toward the sunsetticed gift. Is this bound of the highest creatures? Our western connected world with the twentieth century this wonderful humanity stands on the summit of America—Canada—and congraturalists itself upon what? Chief among its boasts is something that it vague by names democracy. Oh, yes! there is that indistinct something on the Neither of them is merely a sex being.
