Remarkable Power Economy.

In the presence of some of the leading gineers of the United States and anada, the Chapman Double Baliearing Company of this city have been onducting a series of tests in their exhibit in machinery hall at the exhibition. These tests have proved to be most remarkable and interesting to ose who have witnessed them. The object of the test is to show the econ my of the Chapman double ball-bearng over the ordinary journal box. The equipment at the exhibit in machinery hail consists of a heavy stand with floor pedestals. These pedestals carry a 2 15-16in. shaft on plain journal boxes or Chapman ball bearing, which-ever is under test. The shaft is about six feet long. In its exact centre are placed two bearings under test. Be-neath these two bearings is a plate which can be raised or lowered by means of an hydraulic jack, Connected with the jack is a dial which shows the exact load in pounds applied to the shaft. The shaft is run at ordinary shop speed by means of an electric motor, and readings are taken from an ammeter and volt meter of the exact current and power furnished the motor The motor is first run light and the actual power required to run it is ob-tained and deducted from each subsequent reading of the shaft under load. Therefore, the motor efficiency goes not enter into the comparative economy of the bearings.

The Chapman people have always claimed that their bearing runs practically as well with an extremely heavy oad as with a light load. Tests made yesterday showed that the power required to run the shaft with 1000 pounds load applied to it was 31 H.P.; with 12,000 pounds load .85 H.P., or a difference of only .54 H.P. under this range of load. With ordinary journal bearings under 1000 pounds load the power reuired was .59 H.P., and un-
