

MANITOBA CROP PROSPECTS

THE CRUCIAL MONTH

Plenty of Moisture This Spring Should Ensure a Worthy Yield.

"There never was at the end of May a better prospect for a big crop in Manitoba than there is this year," said James R. Hartney, emigration agent for the Manitoba government, to The World. "But it all depends on June how it will turn out. June is the crucial month. Manitoba depends on moisture, and this year the ground is thoroughly saturated, and while it may dry out on the top we will benefit from every shower that falls. In some years it has been so dry that you might dig down three feet and still find dry dust, but with the late snow and the spring rain there is such saturation the crops should do very well. I am not in a position to speak yet, but there is a slight increase. The first bulletin in the middle of June will show the acreage exactly."

"We have had more callers and enquiries this year than ever before. Of course the greater number of emigrants are going to the Territories, and we do not want anyone that comes along. We are choosing our settlers now, and are more like Ontario in that respect. We do not advise people who go who do not suit the country or the conditions, and people wanting free land go farther west."

Too Ready to Quit.
"We get some queer people occasionally. There was a party of three men and five women in the city some time ago, staying at an hotel here, and one of them came to me, saying he thought of going out. Some time after I met him and he told me that a man in the street had told him that if he was going to Manitoba he might as well kill his seven months old baby at once, as that my son, aged 19, had just returned to Manitoba, and the first time he went out he was only three months old. He did not know the man he had met, who had never been west, but he preferred to take his opinion to following our information."

Women to Blame.
"I heard later on that they had all gone to Winnipeg, stayed there a week, and then returned to the city. On their journey out and back would cost the party not less than a thousand dollars, and you can imagine the sort of a story they will have. It was all the women of the party. They could not think of living in such a place."

CAUSE OF THE BIG FIRE.
The United States National Fire Protective Association has made its report upon the Baltimore fire. Now, who is to do the blame?

"The Baltimore conflagration is directly chargeable," says the report, "to unprotected floor openings. Had the stair and elevator openings in the building where the fire originated been properly protected, there is every reason to believe that the fire department would have been able to control the fire at the start. Vertical openings through buildings, as for stairs and elevators, rapidly communicate fire to all stories. With buildings of considerable height or combustible contents this is likely to result in fire conditions beyond fire department control. All such floor openings should be inclosed in brick-walled shafts crowned by a thin glass skylight and extended through roof, and with fire doors at openings to stories."

TOWN ASKS INCORPORATION.
The residents at Blind River, who are variously estimated from 800 to 1200, are seeking incorporation, and have asked for necessary action from the provincial secretary has requested Assistant Provincial Secretary Thomas Mulvey, K.C., to proceed to the place and investigate the conditions. The Eddy Bros. Lumber Company has large interests in this point.

To Lay Fire-Ruin Dust.
Baltimore Herald: Calcium chloride, which is a brother-in-law to sodium chloride, the common salt of the board-house dinner table and of the Atlantic Ocean, may be used to lay the dust in the burnt district. A suggestion that it be employed has been made by Dr. F. P. Dunnigan, instructor in chemistry at the University of Virginia. Dr. Gustav Lehman, city chemist, approves the scheme, and Health Commissioner Bosley may give it a trial. Calcium chloride has been employed for such purposes, and probably it will be advantageous here. In many localities the substance in solution is produced as a by-product and can be obtained at a low price. Of course it may prove most economical to get bittern (mother liquor from salt brines) from West Virginia, which is a very rich source of calcium chloride, and with some magnesium chloride and salt, both of the former being exceedingly deliquescent.

If the street is once moistened with a solution of calcium chloride, or a dilution of this bittern, it will therefore not dry perfectly when exposed to the sun's heat, but remain somewhat moist, so holding down the dust. Of course, a heavy rain would wash most of it away, and the treatment would have to be renewed. The bittern returned to its original use as a fertilizer, and it is removed it can, no doubt, be bought by the barrel at a low price. One barrel of bittern will contain the equivalent of about 100 pounds of dry calcium chloride.

A Telephone Decision.
Cincinnati, O., May 30.—Judge Nipert on Saturday handed down a decision which practically gives the Queen City Telephone Company entrance into the city. This is a big victory for the independent organization, whose progress has been bitterly contested by the Bell Telephone Company. The court decided that the Queen City is in all respects a bona fide corporation and entitled by its charter from the state to the occupancy of the streets. The company is to give a bond of $100,000 before work is commenced, as security that it will restore the streets to their original condition.

Astronomical Society.
At the regular meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada to-night at the Canadian Institute, D. J. Howell will read a paper describing one of the recent lunar photographs taken at the Paris observatory, and now in the possession of the society, and will exhibit a number of lantern slides of the most interesting plates which show extraordinary detail on the moon's surface.

Authorized Capital $2,000,000.00
THE CROWN BANK OF CANADA
EDWARD GURNEY, PRESIDENT
The Bank's offices at 24 King Street West, Toronto, will be opened for business with the public on Wednesday, the 1st of June.
G. O. O'GRADY, General Manager.

G.A.R. VETERANS DECORATED GRAVES

Visited Four Cemeteries in Memory of 19 Comrades.

Veterans of the American Civil War resident in Toronto duly honored Decoration Day yesterday. James S. Knowlton, No. 532, G.A.R., visited the Necropolis, St. James', Mount Pleasant and St. Michael's cemeteries, and reverently deposited floral tokens of comradeship on nineteen graves. There were veterans present from the army of the republic, the army of the empire and the army of the confederate forces represented the Grey.
At St. James': Capt. John H. Stone, served with the 8th New York Regiment in the now division of the third army corps, under Gen. Kearney, delivered an address. There are buried there C. W. Charles, 4th New York Infantry; J. Stewart, 4th New York Infantry; W. H. Doel, hospital steward.
At the Necropolis rest: Lieut. J. S. Knowlton, 6th Missouri; J. Demar, 11th Vermont; J. Van Buren, 30th New York; W. Jones, 4th Michigan Cavalry; W. H. Doel, hospital steward.
At St. Michael's: J. Curtis, 8th New York Cavalry; F. E. Saunders, 24th Pennsylvania; E. Burns, 4th New York.
At Mount Pleasant: J. Dunn, 11th Illinois; R. Lowe, 78th New York; M. Peatman, major, 25th Ohio; G. Ellis, 25th Ohio; A. Tomlinson, 50th New York Engineers; W. Collard, 1st Colorado Cavalry.
At Mount Pleasant Col. Gunsaulus, United States consul, delivered a patriotic address. At each cemetery the roll was called and "taps" sounded over each grave. Several ladies accompanied the party, which numbered in all about forty, including Gettysburg veterans. The Union Jack and Old Glory were carried.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP PAYS.

Belleville's Experience With Gas and Water Found Profitable.

Belleville, May 30.—(Special).—Early in the present year the city bought from the members of the gas and water company the gas works and plant, and immediately set about putting the plant in better repair and extending the service. The result is now before us. The gas business being done, the manager of the gas works is besieged by people who want gas installed in their houses, fully half a hundred people waiting their time. The result of the city, and the opponents of the scheme will soon be left without a leg to stand upon.
As with gas so with water. Some years ago the city took over the water works from the private company, which owned it, and it is now paying good profit and putting away sufficient in the sinking fund to ensure the debt incurred being paid off in the legal time set. Much credit for this is due to Alvin Soliman, chairman of the water committee, who is the right man in the right place. Belleville's experience of municipal ownership in gas and water have been such as to encourage other places to follow her example.

PRIZES AWARDED.

Three Young Men Win Gold Pieces.

On Saturday morning over sixty members of the Canada Life office staff assembled in the city hall for the presentation of the prizes given by officers of the insurance company. These awards were for the members of the staff who had been most successful in the sale of policies of the Insurance Institute of Toronto.

First prize was won by W. N. McIlraith of the Eastern Ontario branch, while second and third prizes were divided equally between C. C. Macklin and A. E. Cuthbertson of the local office. Two other clerks who had done exceptionally well received honorable mention.
In addressing the staff, Senator Cox emphasized very strongly the importance of the insurance business, and pointed out that those who are now taking advantage of the insurance institute's educational course will be the officers and managers of our companies in the years to come.
Messrs. P. Sanderson, actuary, and R. Hill, secretary, also spoke briefly.

LAST WEEK IN BUSINESS.

The premier will return to the city from St. Catharines towards the end of the week for the council meeting, at which the loose ends of business still hanging over will be cleared up.
Mr. Dryden goes to England on the 10th.
Mr. Davis will occupy himself with the largest tract in Canada, which he is building at Newmarket.

DOUBLE TRACKING G.T.R.

Woodstock, May 30.—Double tracking operations have been completed on the G.T.R. just east of the city, and in the city limits near Norwich-avenue, from West Virginia, which is a very rich source of calcium chloride, and with some magnesium chloride and salt, both of the former being exceedingly deliquescent.

The fire and light committee yesterday took up the building bylaw, which was presented in entirety by City Architect McCallum. The committee was referred to the committee of city architects, which considered the regulations affecting the building, and it will be brought up again on Thursday morning.

E. N. Moyer was refused permission to erect a wooden building to the rear of 12 Louis-street.
The Pure Gold Manufacturing Company asked permission to erect a factory on the property west of the College-street station.

Toronto Epworth League.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Epworth League was held on May 27 in the lecture hall, 211 Queen-street, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles R. Bilyeu; vice-presidents, T. H. Keough, S. M. Woodland and Dr. S. L. Frawley; treasurer, N. C. Stephens (re-elected); secretary, Miss G. Wallace (re-elected); past president, Charles Bonnick, on executive. Addresses were delivered by Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith of West China; J. McCarthy, St. John, N.B., and Miss M. E. Stone, deaconess of Fred Victor Mission.

To City Mission.

The City Mission acknowledges the following gifts: Mrs. J. R. Craig, Miss M. R. Smith, Miss E. E. Sykes, J. W. Smith, K.C., Mrs. McDougall, A. Friend, J. C. McMillan, E. A. Davies, Two Young Men, per M. G. P., all $1 each; Miss J. Cooper's Sunday school class, $1 each; Mrs. S. K. Goodenough, $1 each; Mrs. C. C. Thompson, H. P. Dwight and Mrs. Becher, $1 each; Mrs. Robert Goodenough, Conger Coal Company and Miss Paton, $10 each.

Roosevelt at Gettysburg.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 30.—On historic Cemetery Hill, and in the presence of a concourse of thousands who had assembled to pay tribute to the memory of the nation's dead, President Roosevelt to-day delivered the principal Decoration Day address.
Backwoodsman Fed Deer.
Chief Game Warden Tinsley thinks that the reported destruction of deer during the winter has been exaggerated. The settlers and lumbermen in many instances did what they could to supply the animals with food by chopping down trees and in other ways.

This is
The Label

That Proves
Quality

Fit-Reform

123 YONGE STREET

UNITED DRUG CO. TO ENTER CANADA.

Famous American Remedies Will Be Manufactured by a Dominion Corporation.

Unless all reports are wrong, a chain of drug stores in Canada will soon be selling the products of the new Dominion Company, Co. of Boston, Mass., famous for its phenomenal and successful introduction of the line of Rexall remedies in the United States.
Mr. Louis K. Liggett, the originator of the United Drug Co., and general manager of that corporation, recently made his tour throughout the leading Canadian cities, in speaking to a reporter in Toronto said:
"I am confident that we shall soon organize a branch of the United Drug Co. in Canada on the line of our corporation in the United States, and begin to manufacture and sell a special line of remedies over here."
"More than that, I think we shall open a large department drug store on your street, Toronto, in the best location we can obtain. If we do this, I can promise you that the people of Toronto will see a drug shop that will be a source of pride to the city."
"Probably we won't use the name trade-mark of Rexall as we do in the United States. Each formula of the remedies will be owned exclusively by the United States corporation, and they doubtless would not permit us to bring it into Canada, the Canadian brand being a separate corporation."
"I have not been in Canada for several years, and I am more than enthusiastic over conditions as I see them here now. In common with all Americans who come and see the city, I am impressed with the energy and ability of your people, and also with the generous welcome you extend to us across the border."
The success of the Rexall remedies in the United States has been little short of phenomenal. The United Drug Co., which is composed of a thousand retail druggists, is one of the largest in the world. The only drug store in a city is allowed to sell the Rexall remedies, and the United States dealer in his community. He is given the sole agency for the Rexall remedies, and no other dealer in his section can handle them.
There are about 120 Rexall remedies, one for each human ailment. Each formula is proven first. The Rexall remedies are compounded with the skill and care that human ingenuity can devise. The Rexall remedies are sold in the laboratory to consumers, through the local druggist's stores, eliminates the profits of the middleman, and thus reduces the cost of the remedy to the public. Not alone this, the Rexall remedies prevent any possibility of the remedy being adulterated in wholesale warehouses. The directness of the Rexall plan is unique. That is, every remedy is guaranteed. If the purchaser is not more satisfied his money is promptly refunded.
The Choon-Lyon drug store at Buffalo, N.Y., is the largest and most successful drug establishment in the world. It is one of the largest and most successful drug stores to be started in Toronto will be modeled after it.
The great success of Rexall in the United States will be duplicated in Canada. Every energetic retail druggist in the Dominion will want to secure the agency for his city, and the fortunate man in each place will have cause for congratulation.

Every Man Double Tracked Between Niagara Falls, Toronto and Montreal.

On the Grand Trunk Railway, and this together with the up-to-date equipment and modern roadbed, makes this the popular line for Niagara Falls and Montreal daily at 9.00 a.m. and 10.30 p.m., and four fast trains for Niagara Falls and Montreal daily at 8.00 a.m. and 11.00 a.m., 4.30 and 6.00 p.m. Later train carries through Pullman sleeper to New York, via Lehigh Valley, arriving 8.15 a.m. Dining car for supper and breakfast. Free tickets, reservations and full information, call at City Ticket Office, northwest corner King and Yonge-streets.

Truth Will Come Out Sometime.

Niagara, May 30.—The minister of war has caused the arrest of an officer, who is understood to have been connected with the Dreyfus affair. The officer, who is held in close confinement in the fortress of Mont Valerien, is said to be charged with using considerable sums of money at the court-martial in Rennes in order to secure the conviction of Dreyfus.
Local members of the tanners' section of the board of trade, which on Friday last decided to abolish the generous discounting system hitherto in vogue, assert that the action was the outcome of the move made by Quebec tanners recently in reducing the discount granted from 5 to 5 per cent.

Procedure Causes Postponement.

The license department has not decided whether Dr. Henderson of Sudbury will be tried under the liquor act or the criminal code, and the case will not be heard till tomorrow. Mr. Saunders states that no irregularities of any kind will be permitted in connection with the work of the department.

Followed Quebec Rates.

Local members of the tanners' section of the board of trade, which on Friday last decided to abolish the generous discounting system hitherto in vogue, assert that the action was the outcome of the move made by Quebec tanners recently in reducing the discount granted from 5 to 5 per cent.

Procedure Causes Postponement.

The license department has not decided whether Dr. Henderson of Sudbury will be tried under the liquor act or the criminal code, and the case will not be heard till tomorrow. Mr. Saunders states that no irregularities of any kind will be permitted in connection with the work of the department.

Received African Prince.

London, May 30.—King Edward held a brilliant levee this morning. After the levee the King received in audience the Alake of Abokuta (Upper Guinea), a picturesque West African potentate. The British government has agreed to buy the Alake's labret collar for three years.

Killed by Internal Machine.

Muskogee, O.T., May 30.—Four white men are in the federal jail charged with the murder of Robert Suddeth, a negro freedman, near Broken Arrow, by the use of an internal machine. He was blown to pieces while playing in a field.

This label, in coat and trousers, is money in your pocket. Behind the man who sells the garments, is the house of Fit-Reform, that makes them.

The makers vouch for every garment, bearing this Fit-Reform label, BUT ONLY FOR THE GENUINE.

Remember, a clerk's say-so does not make it so. Always look for the label shown above, with price as fixed by the makers; and INSIST that your suit or overcoat PROVE ITS IDENTITY, by bearing the Fit-Reform label.

$12 to $30

WILLOCK WILL CASE.

Judgment Rendered at Quebec in the Celebrated Case.

(Montreal Witness.)

Quebec, May 26.—Judgment was rendered by His Honor Mr. Justice Andrews, of the Superior Court, this morning, in the famous Willock will case, which for a long time past has caused much painful excitement in the Presbyterian Church circles here. This was an action by which the pastor and trustees of St. Andrew's church sought to set aside the last will of Miss Eliza Willock, dated Oct. 16, 1902, before Boly and Larue, notaries, in favor of William Brodie and A. E. Brodie, on the ground of mental incapacity of the testator, undue influence, and coercion on the part of the defendants, William Brodie and A. E. Brodie, and the action further concluded that a previous will, dated June 24, 1902, by which Miss Willock had bequeathed her property to the Presbyterian church and its trustees, was valid and should be given effect to. The value of the estate was about $6000. The defence was a denial of the allegations of undue influence and coercion, and an affirmation of the testator's mental capacity and freedom to testify. The learned judge remarked that never in his experience had he known of a case where there had been so much evidence to support the plaintiff's case, and yet the defendant's case was so strong. He was greatly influenced by friendly feelings of sympathy for the partnership to exaggerate the evidence of the testator's mental incapacity and undue influence, and he quoted the opinions of authorities on this point. His honor was of opinion that the motives and conduct of the plaintiffs and defendants in the making of the will, and the bearing on the case, unless these were shown to have affected Miss Willock in the making of the will, not to have been to her knowledge. The expert medical evidence was also shown to the court, and the court held that the evidence was a question of fact to be left for the judge's decision, and that, accordingly, the evidence of physicians who had seen the deceased, was to be rejected. The important evidence to be considered was the evidence of the second will, and the first and second wills. On this the most reliable would be that of the notaries who executed the will, and of the medical attendants of the deceased at that time. Mr. Boly, notary, was 53 years of age, lived opposite the deceased, and had known her from childhood, and with the Hon. V. Larue executed the will in dispute. Both notaries had noticed no signs of mental incapacity or undue influence, and they had seen the deceased, and the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that her mind was sound up to the last. His honor considered that the evidence of these professional men, who had business with the deceased, none of whom were open to reproach for partiality or other cause, was to be accepted; that the other evidence, that of Miss Willock, was eccentric, but eccentricity was not a bar to making a will. On the other hand, during her life she never showed her mind appeared sound; she had given her own instructions and appeared to perfectly understand what will when read to her. No one was present at the time. A few days afterwards she had appeared perfectly sane when executing other documents. Mr. Parke had attended the deceased for two years prior to her death, and his evidence was frequent attendance during the whole period covered by the two wills, and that he noticed no change in her in that time, and that