The Dundas Centre Methodist Church choir, which stands well in the fore-front of local musical organizations, filled the first of its several out-of-town engagements this fall by motoring to Lucan last night, in spite of the inclement weather. It was greeted by a large and appreciative audience in the Lucan Methodist Church.

THREE-YEAR COURSE NOW FOR TEACHERS OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

City Workers Invited to Meeting t Discuss New Project.

An entirely new three-year course in teacher training has been planned by the Sunday School Council of this continent, which embraces thirty denominations. It is proposed to have a series of institutes in the city this winter for the purpose of studying these books and thus training our teachers for more effective work.

H. C. of L. Committee Wants All

Ald. S. R. Manness, chairman of the city's high eost of living committee, has made the request that all those who had or worked any or the civic is garden plots during the present year, compile a record of the produce secured from these gardens. This record is to be used for showing the amount of foodstuffs grown on what would otherwise have been waste land in London. The gardeners are asked to furnish either Aid. Manness or City Clerk S. UNDER CANVAS IN BRITISH CAMPS IS FAR FROM PLEASANT

Old Jup. Pluvius Has Been Having His Inning This Year.

NEW QUARTERS SECURED Elements Have Forced Striking of Tents, Writes Pte.

Fred Young.

Another cheery letter has just b received from Pte, Fred Young of the 18th Battalion, the poet-historian of the famous Western Ontario unit. The same cheery optimism which has mark-ed his other contributions character-izes this latest letter which follows:

our training camp a knack-out blow "Week in, week out, from morn til night," and oftentimes all night to our open-air roof leaked continuously until the powers that be decided to abandon Camp Canvas and transfer until the continuously of the continuously of the continuously of the powers that be decided to abandon Camp Canvas and transfer until the continuously of the continuously of intil the powers that be decided to abandon Camp Canvas and transfer us to more congenial environments. To folks walking, the hot pavements of a city, in suitry August, the idea of being under canvas may possess a fascination. But the fact that distance lends enchantment to the view, would have been fully realized if you could have seen the boys crawling from under wind-wrecked tents one morning recently in the cold, grey light of dawn, and trying to pull on their slacks in a pouring rain. It needs a strong sense of humor to take comfort from the knowledge that there is no danger of sunstroke under those conditions.

There was an animated scene this a.m. as the boys answered the bugle's call to "fall in" to move off. We have been relegated to the "rearguard" to strike tents, etc., so we paraded as onlookers. Headed by the band, 40 strong, bilthely playing "A Little Bit Off the Top," the boys moved out of camp at early dawn, and as they neared the railway station a favorable breeze carried back to camp the strains of that good old British tune, "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Pessimists may emphasize the fact old British tune, "The Girl Left Behind Me."

Pessimists may emphasize the fact that the war is dragging its tragic course through the fourth year, but red-blooded optimists who have staked their all in the cause of freedom, can see, through the night of sorrow, the dawning of the "new glory" that shall shine in our faces when Prussianism is sarrhyrown.

Faithful to our British birthright, paths of sacrifice we'll tread, Till Freedom's banner waves victorious, and "Kultur's" numbered with the dead.

London's municipal fish stall or depot is apparently not going to materialize. The announcement has been officially made that the ton and a half consignment of Lake Nipigon fish, which will arrive in the city tonight, will be handled through dealers already in business.

Ald S. R. Manness chairman of the city's high cost of living committee, declared today that the fish would be handled by dealers but that a price regulation had been agreed on. The maximum price permitted will be if cents a pound for the white fish and salmon trout.

He had previously reported that the price would be 12½c per pound. The fact that the salmon trout weigh from 12 to 20 pounds each, too large for the higher price, as the extra has been added for the fish dealers for selling by the pound instead of by the fish. The present price of the salmon trout, and white fish in London is from 20 to 25 cents a pound.

"We will distribute this fish to the dealers," declared Ald. Manness. "The fishmen are working on a very small margin of profit now, and by fixing the minimum price at 15 cents we will be able to save the citizens considerable. Under the circumstances I do not think a municipal fish depot would be justified."

Lieut. Boyd Little Writes Optimistically From British War Hospital,

A letter received in the city from Lieut. Boyd Little, son of Dr. R. A. Little and Mrs. Little of Vancouver, states that he is progressing as favorably as could be expected in a military hospital in London, England. His chief injury is to his spine, which, he says, is doing "a kind of a figure eight." In any case, his escape is considered little short of miraculous. He was buried in a concrete dugout which was shelled by the Germans, and suffered from severe contusions, in addition to the hurt to his spine.

TORONTO DRUG STORES TO FOLLOW LONDON LEAD

Toronto drug stores are expected to follow the lead set in London and inaugurate early closing there. The agitation in the Queen City has been started by the clerks, and an organization meeting is being held on Thursday night to secure the desired early closing. It is reported that many of the proprietors are in favor of the move. Unlike London, however, the Toronto scheme calls for one store in each district to remain open after 9,p.m. The stores in the district will, it is planned, take it in turn to keep open, and the others will display signs directing customers to the night stand.

The London closing is 8 p.m., and the entire city is affected.
