Altho at the outset grain markets displayed fresh strength which carried corn and oats to the highest figures yet this season, it was not long a nore sell-ers of corn were in a majority. The prevaling cold damp weather, adverse to farm work, appeared to be chiefly re-sponsible for the initial upturns in values. On the other hand, much notice was taken of gossip that French and British withdrawal of bids for breadstuffs from the United States was due to confinued weakness of sterling exchange. Pessim-fistic views attributed to the German minister of the treasury counted like-wise as a bearish factor, and so, too, did late declines in the New York stock market. Toward the end of the session, indeed, May delivery of corn was the only place where strength of grain still lingered. Dats were depressed by advices that exporters were reselling. Oxford reports that three carloads of live stock were shipped last week from Woodstock by the U.F.O. at prices above those paid by local drovers.
The high cost of feeding live stock is affecting breeders. Brant states that at a recent sale of purebred Shorthorns, good cows with plain pedigrees sold very cheaply, some really good ones going as low as $120 to $130. Bulls and very yoing stock scarcely brought beef prices. Frontenac quotes calves as selling for veal at from 12 to 13 cents a pound. Good milch cows are still highly regarded. Both Welland and Huron report sules of dairy cows at prices ranging from $125 to $200. The milk flow has largely increased with so many herds freshening: A Stop 29.
