WOMEN SIDE WITH WHITE

Policeman McCollom Tells of Difficulties in Making an Arrest.

Before Judge Ritchie this morning Florence Davidson pleaded guilty to stealing $11 from John McIlveen, a boarder in a Mipec boarding house on Saturday. She sobbed bitterly and it was with difficulty that she was calmed enough to elicit a plea from her. She consented to permit his honor's jurisdiction to rule in her case and was remanded pending sentence.

Clarence White said that he was unable to recollect resisting Patrolman John McCollom when put under arrest for intoxication. The policeman said that he found White in Queen Square on Saturday night and after reviving him from a stupor led him toward the Britain street lock-up. However, before they had left the square White threw himself on the ground and refused to arise, and kicked the policeman in the face. Women, interesting themselves in White urged McCollom to refrain from strenuous measures. They retorted the policeman and when he sought assistance from the onlookers, in acquiescence to a request from the women, nobody responded it was not until Britain street was reached that aid was proffered. The two men who assisted McCollom, he said, were kicked on the hands and face by White, marks of the attack remaining.

A fine of $10 or two months was imposed for resistance and $8 or thirty days for intoxication.
 William Davis remembered that he was intoxicated on Saturday morning but his mind was a blank as far as begging money was concerned. Patrolman Steeves testified that Davis' accented a passerby in Union street and requested a dime. Subsequently he requested and received three cents from an elderly man and became boisterous when the latter refused to increase the sum to a dime. After berating the old man he walked into the arms of Steeves. A fine of $8 or two months was imposed on Davis.
 William Hodgins was fined $8 for intoxication.

CLOSING OF THE JUBILEE

Impressive Ceremonial at St. Peter's Church This Morning

The solemn closing of the Silver Jubilee of St. Peter's Church this morning was most impressive, and presented a spectacle long to be remembered by the hundreds who witnessed it.

At 6 o'clock the devotions began with the celebration of mass on each altar. At 6 o'clock solemn high mass of requiem was sung. The church was crowded, both by the parishioners and by people outside the parish. The gaskets containing the remains of the deceased priests and brothers lay in state all through last night. At mass this morning in the sanctuary of the church, under a canopy specially arranged and illuminated with incandescent lights. At the solemn requiem mass Rev. E. Schauer, of the Holy Redeemer Church, New York, was the celebrant. Rev. Wynn, of the Mission Church, Boston, deacon; Rev. F. Bott, rector of St. Alphonsus Church, Baltimore, sub-deacon; and Father Duke, master of ceremonies.

In the sanctuary were Rev. A. O'Neill, Silver Falls, and Rev. P. Leonard, of N. E. Pennsylvania.
 After the libera, a procession was formed, the order of which was as follows: crucifix bearers and two acolytes; altar boys, bodies of the dead priests, the pallbearers and the clergy. The pallbearers were the same as in yesterday's procession.

The procession today continued to the new burial lot in the rear of the church where the caskets were placed on stands erected for the purpose by the side of the graves. Father Schauer read the burial services, after which there were recited prayers for the deceased by Father Duke and the congregation. The coffins were then placed in their final resting places. More than five hundred people were present, and formed a square three or four files deep. It was a most impressive sight.

A COLLISION JUST AVERTED

Speeding Auto and Electric Car Get by With Narrow Shave

St. John would certainly have been shocked with a serious automobile accident Sunday afternoon had not Motorman Sandy Mayes, of the St. John Railway Co., been remarkably prompt in stopping his car at the foot of Waterloo street. A large American touring car was proceeding at what was easily a 30-mile clip towards Waterloo street hill off Haymarket Square, the chauffeur apparently getting up speed to negotiate the steep grade ahead, when the heavily laden electric rolled out of Brussels street.

There was no warning from the auto, the chauffeur bending all his attention to prevent what appeared to be an inevitable crash. The electric car was brought to a jolting stop and in the scant space between it and the Mowat corner telegraph pole the automobile squeezed through by almost scraping its sides. There were six people in the big gasoline car, and bystanders were terrified at the prospects of an accident.
