OLD ROUND HOUSE SMOKE

The Old I. C. R. Round House near Gilbert's Lane Was Successfully Dynamited This Morning--Two Heavy Shots were Fired and There were No Accidents.

A boom! a crash! a shower of dust, and the old I. C. R. roundhouse is no more. What was once a well known landmark that took months to build, was this morning in a few seconds reduced to a pile of tangled woodwork, bricks and mortar.

The announcement that the building was to be dynamited this morning drew a fair sized crowd, despite the steady downpour of rain, and the preparations for the demolition of the structure were eagerly watched from various vantage grounds, though far enough away to be outside of the danger zone.

The eastern end of Wright street had the largest number of spectators, while the railway tracks near Gilbert's Lane had a good sized audience. Even away off on the hill by the public hospital people were to be seen, awaiting the fall of the circular structure.

There were conjectures as to whether the dome of the building would ever skyward or would settle down inside the brick walls, as the contractor expected, but there need have been no alarm, for everything passed off without accident.

Contractor William J. Cain had made his preparations very carefully, and the result was as successful as he anticipated. Mr. Cain received word from the engineer at Moncton about a week ago, ordering the destruction of the building, and he immediately went to work to carry out his instructions.

A charge of dynamite was placed beneath each of the twenty iron posts supporting the dome, these were connected by wires, which were carried out about 200 yards from the structure, and connected with an electric battery. At twenty-four minutes past ten the lever was turned and with a loud report the dome and the western side of the structure rose gently upwards and dropped down on the inside of the brick walls amid a cloud of dust.

ALL HATS WILL BE SHORN OF THEIR FINE FEATHERS

(New York Herald.) Commissioner Whipple of the State Forest, Fish and Game Department, yesterday served a notice through the press of the country that will carry conviction and dismay to the feminine heart from Oregon to Florida, from Pennsylvania to San Diego. He intends to make use of every legitimate means at his command to enforce the law that prohibits the possession or sale of any feathered creature. Whether the creature hail from the state of New York or from the Indian Territory will make no difference to the indelible commissioner. The law says that feathers shall not adorn the headgear of our women, and the law is going to be enforced. Commissioner Whipple says that his department is entrusted with the preservation of bird-life of every description, but realizing the violent opposition that he will meet from the milliners when they are required to discard their elaborate hats with ostrich and other plumes of the feathered race, he is desirous of obtaining the desired result in the most amicable manner possible. He does not wish to work any hardship to the public or to the trade. The penalty for each violation of the law is a $50 fine and an additional $25 for each bird or part thereof sold. As the ostrich is still a large creature and divides into many parts, it is presumed that the fines will amount to a considerable sum in the end.

DANGER OF REVOLUTION GROWS MORE URGENT; WHOLE COUNTRY AFLAME

Formation of Constitutional Democratic Ministry Now Regarded as Russia's Only Chance of Safety--Terrorists Already Have Their Campaign in Full Swing.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 28.—The pessimism over the outlook continues to grow. The government as usual in every crisis, seems to be hesitating. Either course, the opinion of the best judges of the situation, however, will only increase the danger of an explosion in the country. The possibility whose hopes are centered in parliament, will undoubtedly be profoundly stirred by the Government's refusal to recognize the principle of the expropriation of private holdings, and many persons expect to see the destruction of their hopes followed by an immediate uprising against the nobles. The correspondent of the Associated Press has talked with a number of landlords from various parts of the country who declare that the peasants are essentially attached to parliament. They will obey the authority of the latter. The revolutionary leaders and the proletarian organizations of the cities are sure to profit by the deadlock, and the terroristic campaign is already in full swing. M. Shipoff, of Moscow, who last week was considered to be a possible compromise premier, is out with an interview declaring that after the action of the formation of a ministry of constitutional democrats, which would throw upon the dominant party in the lower house the responsibility of signing the extreme elements.

HEAVY DAY IN POLICE COURT

From Saturday until this morning there were eleven arrests, seven of the prisoners being charged with drunkenness. Five of these deposited $8 each and forfeited their deposits this morning. Joseph Clancy was arrested on Union St. Saturday night and was remanded this morning. Yesterday afternoon Clancy was very ill from the effects of liquor and Dr. D. E. Berrymann went to Central station and prescribed for him. Judge Ritchie told Clancy that he was recognized as one of the best workmen in St. John, and that he knew him to be a hard and honest fellow. He referred to Clancy's condition and stated that had the doctor not been called yesterday another prisoner might have been found dead this morning, as he was almost in as bad a condition as the late Rose Murphy when she was arrested. The judge said that the prisoner was one of three that can go to a very respectable place on Sunday and obtain liquor. They used to hang about Marsh Bridge but now they can get it away from that locality. Frank Kelly, aged 17 years, was arrested on Saturday night for lying and thur-

ly conduct, and obstructing the footpath, and also for collecting a crowd on Saturday night. As Officer Ross is ill at his home, the prisoner was remanded. Edward Johnston, for using profane and obscene language on British street, was fined $3. Arthur Hughes was arrested on Saturday night by Officers Walsh and Rowe and charged with drunkenness. He pleaded not guilty, and Officer Rowe was called to the stand. He told of the arrest. The judge said that he had an anonymous letter from someone who claimed that Hughes' arrest was illegal and led to the case of all such epistles his honor destroyed it. In the letter were mentioned the names of Officers Walsh and Rowe, and the writer, however, said his honor, "officially" refused from signing his name. Officer Rowe said that when they were making the arrest a citizen told them that it would be better for them to let a man go along and go into the ferry house, where drunks were cursing and swearing. "Dr. Prink," said Officer Rowe.

THIS JOKE WAS NO JOKE

Young Adams' Sense of Humor Almost Cost Him $20.

A practical joker got himself into trouble this morning by being arrested on a warrant of assault. That Saturday he saw Young Adams, (who is but 20 years of age), and thinking that it was a boy bringing a message from the train to her husband she went to open the door. When she opened it she discovered that Adams had tied a rope to the knob of the door and as soon as she went to look out he hauled the door and closed her between the door and the wall. Mrs. Linkletter shouted for help and said that if her husband had not been rescued her from her position she would have died in less than three minutes. Mrs. George Linkletter and the previous wife of her husband corroborated her testimony. Young Adams said that the whole affair was a joke and added that Mrs. Linkletter ran out on the street as soon as she pulled the rope. He said that he had found the rope on the street and was about to pick it up when Mrs. Linkletter stated that she did not run out on the street until after she had been freed from her uncomfortable position by her husband. Adams said that Mr. Linkletter told his mother that he had caught him he would have shot him, Mr. Linkletter denied that. Judge Ritchie told Adams that the fine was $20 but permitted him to go pending his future good conduct.
