PRESENT FOR CANADA

WOLFE'S HOME NOW THE PROPERTY OF THE NATION.

Handsome Gift to the Dominion Has been made by J. B. Leamont of Montreal — Prof. Beckles Wilson Hated to See the Historic Manor House Pass into the Hands of Strangers.

Mr. J. B. Leamont, of Montreal, has purchased a gift to the Dominion of Canada the Manor House of the family of Gen. Wolfe, who conquered Canada for the English in 1759.
It is situated in Woodham, East in the south of England, which has been the home of various generations of Wolfe since the reign of Henry VII.

The Manor House, which dated from the year 1097, will by this purchase, become one of the chief features of the Canadian holiday for it is the intention of Mr. Leamont in conjunction with the Government to make the place a sort of museum in which shall be stored every relic of Wolfe that can be discovered. The old manor house will thus become the Mecca of all those Canadians who have other compulsions than those of the dollar.

It will, at the same time, be a common possession of the British people.
The house is situated close to the old manor which houses the great Pitt.
Sir Charles Tupper is living, or is about to live, near the famous mansion which will contain all of Wolfe's portraits, letters, commissions, and so forth.

The house has been occupied for some time past by Christopher Columbus in 1492 is about to be closed by Villiamur Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, if his forthcoming expedition to the north works out according to schedule. Said Dr. Stefansson recently: "I succeeded in discovering the unknown land lying to the north of the Arctic circle, and I have every hope of success, the last area of unexplored land on the face of the globe will have been discovered."

Dr. Stefansson has been a close student of the Eskimo and Northern Indian, and is not at all satisfied with the work the missionaries are doing in the north. In fact, the explorer holds the opinion that the efforts of the missionaries to civilize them must be blamed to a great extent for the fact that these races are fast dying out.

"I have no intention of minimizing the work of missionaries and missions, and I am in general sympathy with the purpose of the missions," said the traveler.

"While missionaries are undoubtedly sincere, there are certain details of their methods which are clearly at fault, and I fear that the reason is that the mission boards at home do not fully realize the conditions existing among the natives of the frozen north. While the missionaries are doing much good among the Eskimos they are also doing some positive harm. The harm they are doing is died. In my experience of missionaries, they all do what they consider best for the spiritual welfare of the people, and insofar they are no doubt carrying out the intentions of the mission boards. But when it comes to the physical welfare of the people, then some of the missionaries, although they have the best possible hearts, are doing much less good than any ordinary non-missionary should be expected to do. If we were properly instructed by the board under which he is working. In order work I feel sure that we could do on the mission boards competent medical men to map out the medical program of the missionaries, and much with regard to the treatment of diseases which already exist, as to the prevention of disease which are about to come, then the missionary work would be a great deal more than he is doing. For there are certain contagious diseases which the missionaries in their ignorance, and in a manner deplorable, but which they are doing nothing intelligent to check."

"For instance, the missionaries are encouraging both Indians and Eskimos in the north to cease living in tents and to build permanent houses, with the result that tuberculosis is making terrible ravages among them. I have known some missionaries, however, who have done exactly the opposite of this. Mr.
Marsh, the church of England missionary at Hay River, on the Great Slave Lake, was one of the few who I know who seems to be thoroughly alive to the danger of allowing the natives to live in permanent houses, and he is doing all in his power to compel the Indians to revert to their earlier habits of living in wigwags."

"The Mission Board have been much to the personality of the man.
If they have a good, wise man who does good work on his own initiative. If the man fails to be wise, then he is pretty much left to his own devices, and the result is not so desirable. I don't want to commit myself at all as to which is the best church, but I believe that the Roman Catholic Church has a much better missionary organization than any of the others. Their work is along uniform lines."

OUT AT THE ARCTICS.

Hudson Bay Factor Sees Civilization

After 13 Years in North.

To spend thirteen years in the far north of Canada, completely isolated from civilization and its comforts, then to be granted a year's furlough and visit the world's largest city, seeing the sights, and the scenery, the submarine, wireless telegraph and other creations of science, undreamed of in their infancy when last he mingled with civilization—such is the unique experience of Christopher Harding, Hudson Bay Co. factor of the Great Slave Lake and Mackenzie River district, in charge of that historic factor's post, where he expects to arrive in July. He will have completed a year of travel and wonderment at the strides of science, for it was in July of last year that he received the official document from the Hudson Bay Co. announcing news of the reward of his faithful service, in the form of a year's holiday in the north.

Fort McPherson is near the mouth of the great Mackenzie river, within the Arctic circle, and about 50 degrees north latitude. A journey of more than a thousand miles by canoe on the Mackenzie river, and the Great Slave Lake, Slave River, and Athabasca River brought him and his wife, Mrs. Harding, to the factor's post. Landing, whence they proceeded overland to Edmonton, Alberta, in the winter of last year. They spent the winter in that city, they were in thirteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding were accompanied by Fred Gaudet, an employee of the company who had not been "outside" in 23 years. Gaudet never left the post, and as Gaudet, his wife and child, have been in the post for months, where he has spent several months, and will take north with him in the fall, Fred Gaudet is a real Arctic man.

At Edmonton the Hardings were accompanied by a dog train, and the company who had not been "outside" in 23 years. Gaudet never
