In Answer to People's Prayers—Farming Operations at Shiloh Not Yielding Results.

LISBON FALLS, July 22.—"Elijah Frank Sandford" says he is receiving $1,000 a day in answers to prayers. It was about two weeks ago that Sandford ordered a period of 40 days of continuous prayer. A certain number of the disciples are detained to go into the heart of the big building and they pray for a certain number of hours and then they are relieved.

At present there are about 225 o Sanford's followers on the sand hill, and they are not doing much of any-thing except to pray. Sandford or-dered this season of prayer because he with which to purchase new yachts Habeas Corpus application, ex parte and to prepare for his contemplated "Min" Armstrong, dismissing the aptrip to the Holy Land. Sandford's following the decision means that the trip to the Holy Land. Sandford's followers really believe that he is receiving each day $1,000 and that this will continue without any interruption until the 40 days of prayer are completed. While the people of Shiloh put implicit faith in what the second "Elimplicit faith in what the decision means that the Armstrong woman, who is notorious in Moncton police circles as the keeper of a resort of highly questionable character, will remain in jail. She was prosecuted by Provincial Constable Belyea, of Shediac, who now announces his intention, Judge Haning-" the provincial control of the provin skeptical. It is true he receives some donations of money and valuables and that these are continuous and from all

If all reports are true, there is at times need of food at Shiloh, and if Sanford has much money it would be well for him to expend some of it in who are conversant with the real condition of things do not believe that on the farms owned by Sanford enough is raised to support the colony. Every-thing that is done is in slip shod fashon, which really accomplishes nothing. wishes the authorities to ascertain if the Shiloh gang, as she calls them, have taken her girl away to Jerusalem. If they have not already done so she fears she wil be taken across the seas and that she wil hever hear or met her again. The mother writes that she has sent entreaty after entreaty to her daughter at Shiloh begging her to return to her home, but not a single word can she get in reply. She now really thinks her daughter has never received the letters.

"I have earned her fare so as to have it ready at a moment's rotice, if she leaves, though I have no hope of her doing so," writes this mother. There is no doubt that this girl is so under the influence of the Sanford religion that she will not write to her mother, even if the letters were given to her. The girl is said to have average intelligence and a fair education, and when she came to Shiloh believed her life was to be one of ease, although one of restraint. It is Sandford's plan to incuicate into the minds or his disciples that they must give up all they have, to denote their property to "the kingincuticate into the minds of his disciples that they must give up all they have, to dehote their property to "the kingdom," and then surrender their personal property, "and even forsake their pare nts, their wives and their children." In some ways Stanford gains great power over all who go to his colony, and it is rarely that one breaks away. All seem to fear to talk with strangers, and they will one and all declare that they are happy, even when on the verge of starvation.

Many letters like this written by the Many letters like this written by the Tacoma mother are received here and some of them are even more pitiful than this one. It is believed that many of those who are at Shiloh would leave if they had the chance to do so, but they think that if they forsake Sandford something terrible will befall them. It is reported that Sanford intends as soon as possible to go to the Holy Land, and that his stay there will be a prolonged one. One reason assignedfor Sandford's anxiety to leave the country is that he desires to get from the sight of the distorted countenances of his disciples and to fiee from the sound of the ravings of those who under his teachings have become who under his teachings have become either insane or well night so from mental and nervous prostration.

The work on the disabled Coronet, which is at Rockland, is being pushed as fast as men can work. A new vessel has been bought by Sandford, and the report is that he has the purchase of another in view.

The men who are at work on his vessels at Rockland at a work on his constant.

The men who are at work on his vessels at Rockland are paid promptly and so money has to come from some source. There are those who believe that Sandford does really receive big amounts of money. Of course they do not think it comes in answer to prayer. They think there are certain people whom Sandford can hypnotize and that he uses this power of people without any scruples. Whatever Sandford once gets into his hands in the way of money or property he never returns. He says it is given to him for the use of the Lord and that it would be a sin for him to give it back again.

Sandford's experience with the courts in being tried for manslaughter has not changed him or softened him. Many are the stories told of the suffering at Shiloh from a lack of proper food and for want of warm clothing. With the pangs of hunger and cold insanity has developed. It is only recently, that a young woman was sent from Shiloh to the State Hospital for the Insane at Augusta, and if all reports are true, there are others who may have to be sent to the same place. With all these things known to the public it is not strange there is such a strong feeling. strange there is such a strong feeling against Sandford, and that many think the proper inscription to place over the great gate of the big Shiloh temple is "He Who Enters Here Leaves Hope

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass, July 24.—When the inquest to determine the manner of the death of Young John Streub, the twelve-year-old boy whose body was found concealed in the woods near Housatonic, was adjourned this evening until tomorrow, Emil Streub, the boy's father, was detained as a witness. The authorities refused to say why this step was taken, but although the proceedings of the inquest were private, it was understood that the examination of the witnesses elicited some evidence of a sensational nature. Streub took the announcement that he would be detained, calmily. Nineteen witnesses were sumommed today and their testimony for the most part concerned the movements of the father of the dead boy.
