An Evening Prayer.

Life's opening voyage, Lord, Thou didst safely keep
O'er childhood's sheltered bays;
As now the tide of age around me creeps,
Protect my shortening days.

Thou didst defend my youth when sped my bark
O'er the open sea;
As I approach the shore, unknown and dark,
Still guard and care for me.

Reclaimed by idle winds on placid seas,
Thy rig did not cease;
Now Tempests beat, and when I shrink from these,
Impart uplifting peace.

When Jor, bright-winged, poised lightly on the prow
Thou gently didst restrain
Though sorrow often voyages with me now,
My troubled soul sustain.

When many ships were high and skies were bright,
I knew Thy presence sweet;
As one by one they vanish in the night,
Draw near me, I entreat.

Lord, Thou hast been companion, friend and guide
O'er life's unresting sea;
When Death, the gentle Pilot, stands beside,
Oh, make the port with me!

THINGS OF VALUE.

Stubbs—I hear that Falcon is going to stop writing poetry.

Falcon—Yes, the position in which the paper brought out his sonnet discouraged him.

Stubbs—Did they run it on the children's page?

Falcon—Worse than that. It appeared in the puzzle department.

COUGHING ALL NIGHT.

It's this night coughing that breaks us down, keeping us awake most of the time, and annoying everybody in the house. Lots of people don't begin to cough until they go to bed. It gets to be so that retiring for the night is an empty form, for they cannot rest.

Adamson's Botanic Cough Balm makes life worth living to such people by its soothing effect on the throat. The "tickling sensation" promptly disappears when the use of the Balm is begun, and the irritation goes with it. This medicine for cough hasn't a disagreeable thing about it, and it does efficient service in breaking up coughs of long standing. It is prepared from herbs and roots and gums of trees, and is a true specific for throat troubles.

Handling coughs is a science that every one should learn. Not knowing how to treat them has cost many fortunes and many lives. In Adamson's Balm there are the elements which not only heal inflammation, but which protect the inflamed parts from further irritation. The result of this is that the tendency to cough does not manifest itself, and you are surprised at it. Afterward you would not be without Adamson's Balm at hand. This remedy can be tested. 25 cents at any druggist's.

Scaring the Lions.

Monsieur Fos, the French explorer, says that lions have a wholesome fear of African wolves, which hunt in packs, and do not scruple to attack even the lion. There are terrible battles in which the lion succumbs to numbers, and dies fighting. In connection with the lion's fear of wolves Monsieur Fos tells a story from his own experience.

It was a very dark night, so dark that trees could not be distinguished until the travellers were close upon them roaring from a point so close as to have an alarm effect on the nerves. The animals could not be seen, but they could be heard on all sides.

Reaching a tree, the men found one of their comrades with rifle cocked, peering into the darkness, trying to discover the whereabouts of the animals, which could be plainly heard walking among the leaves. A second man was trying to relight a half-extinguished torch. Still the lions could be heard coming and going in the darkness.

At this point the native servant whispered the advice to intimate the cry of wolves in the distance. The party at once began ibarking and crying, 'Hu! hu! hu!' in an undertone, as if the pack were still at a distance, while the man at the camp made the same well imitated cry.

The effect was instantaneous. There was the sound of a rapid stampede across the dry leaves. The lions decamped in a panic, driven off by the supposed approach of wolves. For the rest of the night the party was undisturbed.

How He Did It.

A series of petty thefts from the common messary tents of the Kandahar field force had baffled the officers so completely that it was deemed advisable to substitute Gookas for the English sentries.

Almost immediately one Gooka sentry caught a Pathan thief red handed, and was brought before an officer and commanded to tell how it was done.

'I walk about my post,' said the Gooka. 'I see Pathan badmash approach. I walk about my post. Pathan badmash go near commissary tent. I walk about my post. Pathan badmash put his head and shoulders inside the tent. I run him through with my bayonet and about.'

'Halt! Who comes dar?'

An excellent illustration of tactics original with an Irishman: A word and a blow; the blow to come first.
