FREE-FARM ACCOUNT BOOK

Bickmore's Farm Account Book will be sent free to any farmer who will tell us who and where he is. This book is arranged to keep all accounts in simple form—more simple and certainly more practical than trying to remember them; shows what to charge against crop production; has a laborer's time record; and section for personal accounts. 64 pages, for ink or pencil. Not a cheap affair. Its quality is in keeping with BICKMORE'S GALL CURE, a soothing, healing salve, the old-time reliable horse remedy. Horses are now too valuable and too high priced to take chances of losing their services. Bickmore's Gall Cure heals and cures Horses and Saddle Galls, Rope Burns, Cuts, Scratches, Grease Heel, etc. You don't have to lay the horse off. Bickmore's cures while the horse works. Great thing for sore tests in cows. The work-horse trade mark on every box. None genuine without it. Be sure to ask for Bickmore's Gall Cure when you go to buy and do not take a substitute. I am but doing my duty." He turned to Grace. "Madame, I feel for you in your suffering. You acted through love. Of that I am sure. But, there is a greater love than that of woman for man—the love of country. That is the only love I understand."

He turned away and sat for a long time gazing out of the window.

In what seemed to Grace a very short time they reached Paris. Richard and she were conducted to a taxicab, and in a short time found themselves at the prefecture.

Dufrenne left them, to announce his arrival to M. Lefevre; and she and her husband sat in an anteroom, closely guarded, waiting until the time should arrive for them to be summoned before the prefect.

The detective was still silent and preoccupied. He said little; but from the caressing way in which he placed his hand upon hers, bidding her cheer up, Grace knew that his love for her at least, was as strong as ever.

"Oh, Richard," she said softly turning her face to his, "I am so sorry, so sorry. But I could not let you suffer, dear, for I love you—I love you."

Live Stock in Western England.

I have been to the West, to Devonshire, to be precise, to enjoy a round of pleasure, secured yearly, on a "conference" and a long jaunt, undertaken by the members of the British Dairy Farmers' Association. They visit a fresh spot each year and this time exploited Devonshire, where all things good in live stock, in farming, and in dairying were laid bare to us. Some impressions would not be amiss. One was immensely struck with the possibilities of the South Devon breed of cattle as a dual-purpose breed. Undoubtedly, the type fulfills in the best possible manner the conditions of dual-purpose. The breed differs from North Devons principally in size; South Devons are much heavier and slightly lighter in color than North Devons or Somerset Devons, which breed is usually classed as Devons at the leading shows. South Devons are also far better milkers than the Devons, and for a great number of years have been considered a distinct breed. It is a very old race, which was formed in the south-west of England, and has chiefly been confined to, and in the past little known beyond, its own district of Devon and Cornwall so far as breeding is concerned. They are, however, much sought after and appreciated for grazing purposes in distant countries, where they never fail to give satisfaction and produce the very best quality of beef. In their own district they have held the field against all comers, and where other breeds have been tried from time to time they have, in almost every case, given place to the old inhabitants. So far as their dairy properties are concerned, where these have been cultivated, the results are eminently satisfactory, and hundreds of dairies may be found in Devon and Cornwall where the dairymen have no wish to change to other breeds. Of recent years a growing demand has sprung up for the exportation to foreign countries, and their advocates believe they only need the one advantage of being better known for this demand to increase to a very much greater degree, as the accounts gathered from their distant homes are all that could be wished. They are greatly esteemed in the Colonies, and particularly in South Africa.

The herds as a general rule are small, and therefore the owners are not warranted in making heavy personal expenditure in advertising as individual farmers, and have not a sufficient number of animals to supply any suddenly increased demand.

As to their milking abilities, let it be stated that at Norwich Royal Show, W. & H. Whitley's Daisy yielded 72 pounds 6 ounces of milk in 24 hours, and at Tring after being 90 days in milk, she won with 72 pounds 2 ounces of milk. At the London Dairy Show, in October, after having been in milk 146 days, she gave 66 pounds 5 ounces of milk. Another cow in Whitley's herd, Primley Bloom, gave during her first period of lactation over 10,000 pounds of milk—a remarkable performance for a heifer.

HICKMAN & SCRUBY

Exporters of Pedigree Live Stock of all descriptions

We are the only firm in Great Britain who make this their sole business, and therefore offer advantages not obtained elsewhere. When our Mr. A. I. Hickman started this business seven years ago, he did not know a single foreign breeder. This year we have exported more stock to order than any other firm in Great Britain. This is a fact which talks. The frequency with which we buy stock from English breeders means that we can do business with them on more favorable terms than can be done by anyone else. No one should import draft horses, beef or dairy strains of cattle, or mutation breeds of sheep, without first getting full particulars from us. Highest references on application.
