The Young Man's Best Recommendation

A Savings Account is more than a start towards financial independence—it is a mark of character.

One of the strongest recommendations in the world of business that a young man can present, is a Merchants Bank Pass-Book, showing a record of consistent savings.

A Savings Account may be opened with $1.00, which shows how highly we regard the accounts of those who desire to save.

WHIRLWIND FINISH OF VICTORY LOAN CAMPAIGN

Saturday November 16th Closes the Campaign — Last Opportunity to Buy Victory Bonds at 5 1/2% — Headquarters Staff Taking many Applications.

$100,500 was reported from Hastings County yesterday. This is an excellent showing for such a day. The people were so elated with the magnificent news of victory that the Victory Loan campaign was apparently forgotten, but this shows us that while celebrating victory, the good citizens of Hastings County were equally anxious to show in a material way that their hearts are in the great cause.

A distinct rush will be needed to reach the honor flag objective by Saturday night, Nov. 16th, when the Victory Loan campaign closes. If the citizens of Belleville and Hastings county realize that this will positively be the last opportunity of buying Victory Bonds, they will make extra efforts to boost our objective. Every citizen no matter how poor can afford to buy at least one bond. People, who are not actually poor can afford to buy many bonds.

Belleville to date reports $439,600. It is hoped that the good old city will go over the half million mark today. $700,000 is needed in order to win the honor flag.

Since the news of victory reached our city there has been a distinct improvement in the number of subscribers who have come into headquarters to purchase bonds. Yesterday there was a great improvement, and this morning an actual rush started.

The following telegram was received from headquarters of Victory Loan in appreciation of the excellent work done by Messrs. Hinchel and Spafford in the Township of Tyendinaga:

"W. B. Deacon, County Chairman, Belleville. Accept our appreciation on winning honor flag in Tyendinaga township. Convey our appreciation to team in Tyendinaga district. W. A. Mackenzie, General Secretary"

A telegram was received by Mr. W. B. Evans today urging the redoubling of efforts by everyone connected with the Victory Loan campaign in order that a whirlwind finish may be made and that Belleville, county of Hastings and Dominion of Canada might register with their dollars what their boys have registered with their lives.

Bancroft district, consisting of Parady and Dunganon Townships is the third district in the county to win the coveted Governor-General's honor flag. They have reported not only enough to win the honor flag but also a crown, which represents 25 per cent more than the objective.

The C.N.R. Trenton, has been presented with a company honor flag. This is the first organization to receive this honor in Trenton and one of the few in the county to receive it. The winning of this honor flag does not mean that the C.N.R. has finished. Every mail brings fresh applications from this splendid company.

November 16th end of Campaign Word has been received at the County of Hastings headquarters that there will be one extension of time because of diversions. People are expected to redouble their efforts, and if the canvassers are unable to call on every citizen it is expected that the citizen will either hunt up the canvasser and give him his subscription or call at headquarters, corner of Bridge and Front streets, Belleville. There will be no extension of time, and at 12 o'clock midnight, Saturday night, November 16th, Victory Loan campaign, 1918, will close.

Get in on the Victory by buying Victory Bonds.

SIX REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BE THE OWNER OF A VICTORY BOND

Read Carefully, Ponder Deeply and Then Act Wisely

1 By buying a Bond you are doing a highly patriotic act and redempting the cause of humanity a service of which you will always be proud. The money you invest in a Bond goes to the support of our brave and worthy boys at the front. In this way you are not only helping to win the war, but you are saving the lives of many of Canada's sons by bringing nearer and making more certain a peace, which will put its seal for all time upon war and bloodshed and ensure your children and children's children the peaceful enjoyment of everything which makes life dear.

2 By buying a Bond you are helping to maintain prosperity at home. Canada was never so prosperous as now. Why? Because part of the money that our government receives from the sale of Victory Bonds is loaned to Great Britain to enable her to buy the products of farm and factory. Without this assistance Canada's trade would be paralyzed and business at a standstill. Buy a Bond and thus help to maintain Canada's trade and prosperity.

3 There are two questions respecting every bond that is offered for sale in regard to which you should get the best information available. 1st. What security does the bond possess? 2nd. What interest return does it give? The more the Victory Bond is examined in the light of these two considerations, the more valuable does it appear and the more attractive does it become. It is endorsed by every bank and financial institution doing business in Canada today. The opinion of all is that there is no better or sounder investment to be had anywhere today, and every Canadian is advised to get the limit in the purchase of these Victory Bonds. Don't forget too that they are exempt from all federal taxation.

4 The purchase of Victory Bonds stimulates saving and encourages thrift. The Bond that we possess is regarded as a more sacred thing than a bank account. We will work harder and plan more to preserve the one than the other. Saving and thrift are two of the pillars upon which rest individual and national strength and security. Help to make your home and family more permanent and secure by investing in a Victory Bond.

5 Experience demonstrates that bonds that have been issued by a nation when at war, have invariably appreciated in value during the period that follows the declaration of peace. These Victory Bonds are appearing at a moment when the horizon is becoming illuminated with the dawn of peace, and the view is everywhere entertained by financiers and those who make a special study of these matters, that there is a reasonable prospect of every Victory Bond that is now bought increasing in value. This prospect, with the 5 1/2 percent that it pays makes an investment in these bonds a particularly attractive and desirable one.

6 Finally — In all probability this will be the last war bond that Canada will issue and therefore the last opportunity the people at large may have of investing their money so advantageously. The opportunity that is yours now may never be yours again. Therefore think seriously of your present opportunity and act wisely by investing your savings in a Victory Bond.

It is wise to prevent disorder. Many causes lead to disorders of the stomach and few are free from them. At the first manifestation that the stomach and bowels are not performing their functions, a course of Parmentier's Vegetable Pills should be tried, and it will be found that the digestive organs will speedily resume a healthy action. Laxatives and cathartics are so blended in these pills that no other preparation could be so effective as they.

Kingston Milk Shortage

Kingston, Nov. 9.—There is quite a serious shortage of milk in the city and many vendors have been unable to supply their customers. The cause is due to the prevalence of influenza, and the fact that help has been so scarce that many farmers have allowed their cows to dry up.

Father Finn Passes

Rev. Father Morgan Finn, a native of Kingston, who since his ordination to the priesthood one year ago last June, has been in charge of the parish of Erinville, supplying for Rev. Fr. Carey, who is ill, died on Thursday afternoon, after a week's illness from influenza-pneumonia. Father Finn is survived by his mother and sister, who reside at 106 Clergy street, Kingston.

Heavily Fined

At the police court in Brockville on Tuesday, John A. Johnston, Prescott, was found guilty of violations of the Ontario Temperance Act and was fined $23.33. He failed to produce the coin and went to jail for four months. He was arrested a week ago by the local police and at that time had in his possession a canvas belt containing three bottles of whiskey and also a valise with a half dozen more bottles.

Decorated by the King

Kingston, Nov. 8.—Lieut. Col. "Jim" Stewart, who has been in England for some time taking a course in artillery, in a letter to his father, Postmaster Stewart, stated that he had been invested with the Military Cross at Buckingham Palace by His Majesty King George. Lt. Col. Stewart says that he is anxious to get away with his men at the front, and expected to go over to France in a few days after writing.

Martin Crivea Got Ten Years

Kingston, Nov. 9.—Ten years in Portmouth penitentiary was the sentence meted out Thursday morning in police court by Magistrate Fawell to Martin Crivea, the Sulphide man who some time ago shot at Jas. Graham, head of the military police in this district. The prisoner was removed to the big institution at Portmouth, and this closes for a time at least a most sensational career.

Bathes in Jordan

Capt. J. A. (Bert) Lewis, M.C., a former well known G.T.R. trainman, running out of Brockville, who enlisted as a private in the 21st Battalion in October, 1914, and was decorated by His Majesty King George on May 24, 1917, with the Military Cross for bravery on the field of battle, is now with the British forces in Palestine and in a letter to his friend states that he enjoys a bath in the Jordan River every day. Capt. Lewis is stationed near Jericho and is adjutant of a regiment where the only English spoken is by the officers. Bert says he has become quite a linguist. He describes historical places he has visited including "The Path of the Cross," Mount Calvary, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Mount of Temptation, etc.

A Ghoulish Curiosity

Renfrew, Nov. 9.—James Irvine, Renfrew, who is now up at Mississippi Depot as a foreman for the Colonial Tannery Company, recently came across a rather gruesome curiosity. He was out looking up some timber and came upon a small lake. On the shores of this he found an old-fashioned shoemaker's boot with a man's foot and part of his leg in it. At first he could hardly believe his eyes, but when he felt the boot open with his knife he further found that the sock was still on the foot but badly decayed. He took it to the camp and showed the men, and still has the boot in his possession.

One Hour Old, Buys Bond

Brockville, Nov. 9.—Just one hour old was John Lansing McDowell, son of Lieut. Newton L. Dowell, of this city, who he became the purchaser of a Victory Bond. His father is now overseas. The youthful bond buyer's grandfather is Judge Dowell, who is county chairman of the Victory Loan Committee. There is no challenging the fact that John Lansing is, therefore, the youngest subscriber to the Victory Loan in Canada.

SERG. LAPP TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCES AS A "CASUALTY"

T. C. LAPP, LATE FOREMAN AT DAILY ONTARIO JOB ROOM, GIVES VIVID ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE HE HAS LIVED SINCE HE WAS WOUNDED THREE MONTHS AGO — SEEING BEAUTIFUL ENGLAND AS A CONVALESCENT — THE SIGHTS IN SUSSEX, AT HENLEY AND IN LONDON.

P. C. B. C. Hospital, Gooden Beach, Bexhill, Sussex, England, Oct. 14, 1918.

Editor "Ontario": Of my two years in Canada's army, the past three months have brought the more varied and novel experiences than any of the preceding months. I have written from time to time of experiences during training, and later as a combatant; this letter will deal mainly of life as a casualty. From the moment I was wounded a new phase of army life was opened to me. To detail events as they have occurred during this time would create too great a demand on your space and good nature, so I will just sketch the various moves from the front line to "Bilghy." Every casualty has a similar experience, in whole or part, according to the nature of his wounds.

The platoon stretcher-bearer applied the first-aid dressings, which were removed upon reaching the Advance Dressing Station, and after careful diagnosis by the Battalion Medical Officer, a new dressing was applied. After a brief rest at the A.D.S. a motor ambulance carried us over a shell-torn road to a Field Ambulance Depot where another examination was made, and antitetanus serum injected (that hurt as much as the wound), and then on to the Casualty Clearing Station. Here an operation was performed, and thus some twelve hours after being hit, "out in front" I was in a clean, comfortable bed (twenty-some miles back of the "big show"). To complete a full day, Gen. Currie, Canadian Corps commander visited the C.C.S. and I had the honor of a high commission with him. Eight days later I was taken by a British Red Cross train to the Imperial Military Hospital near the sea coast, and after a further eight days there an American ambulance unit carried me some distance to a French Red Cross train, which after a journey of some hours stopped alongside a hospital ship. That night, necessarily, I found myself in an English seaport, and was soon being carried across country in a luxurious English Red Cross train. The last day of July saw me comfortably located in the 4th Canadian General Hospital at Basingstoke, Hants; and Canadian Red Cross lady (taking particular note of my wounds, and asking my needs. I spent five weeks there, the most notable event during that time being a visit of the Duke of Cornwall. In conversation he impressed us greatly with his knowledge of Canada and Canadian affairs. The next move brought me to this place, which is a Canadian Convalescent Hospital. During the past three months I have passed through Canadian, Imperial, French and American hands, and I can truthfully say that the Canadian treatment was quite superior, though there has been nothing to complain of at any time.

Perhaps the greatest experience of this time has been the comingling with men from every corner of the empire, and in all branches of war service. No university in the world could provide such an education, and no force could be exerted toward the closer union of British Dominions and the Motherland than this indiscriminate mixing of her sons. Of course there is an inclination in each man to boast of the attributes of his country, but at no time have I been other than proud to acknowledge Canada as my native land.

One of the greatest privileges of being a casualty is the opportunity of seeing something more of this land of beauty and historical associations. This hospital is located on the sea coast amid surroundings of great natural beauty. I think it is fittingly portrayed by Marian Allen in her poem, "The Downs." Tonight I wandered down a Sussex lane, Through hedges furnished with September gold, Mellowed by early autumn sun and rain. To where the Downs lie sleeping, Fold on fold. The bramble-brier tangled ditch and hedge, Hung with wheat straws where reapers' carts had passed; I walked until I stood upon the edge Where white the chalk road mourns its loss. The Downs at last. A mist was rising and the moon I saw Rise like a ruddy disk of molten ore. I went no further, dusk lay thick behind, Embracing all the valley gray and blue; Before me lay the silent, sweeping hills. Beyond it lies the joy I hoped to find.

As a place of intense historical interest this part of Sussex cannot be surpassed. It was along these shores that the early Roman landings, and at Hastings are immense caverns dug by Christian Britons of the same period, as places of refuge. They are known as St. Clement's Caves, and are very remarkable, having been fashioned from solid sand stone and with a capacity of over 15,000 persons. There has never been a particle known to crumble from the sides or ceiling, and the temperature at all times is 51 degrees.

Within a few hundred yards of the caves and perched on a predominating cliff are the ruins of Hastings castle, whose history goes back to the thirteenth century. The most interesting features remaining are the Norman dungeons and the chapel. The view from this point is magnificent. At the base of the cliff to the south is the channel, westward and it overlooks the newer city of Hastings, fashionable St. Leonards with its pleasure piers, promenade and great hotels; past Bexhill, and Cooden to Eastbourne (on a clear day) at the base of Beachy Head. To the east in a pocket between cliffs lies the old town of Hastings with its fishing vessels and busy harbor. To the north are the Downs, and if the weather is clear, the village of Battle can be seen where William the Conqueror defeated King Harold at the Battle of Hastings in 1066. Near this point are the picturesque ruins of Battle Abbey.

Some time ago I visited Winchester where the conqueror established his capital and built a castle, parts of which remain. On the west wall he placed a circular table (top built, of thick oak and some forty feet in circumference, which is said to have been the council table of King Arthur and his knights. The edge is divided into spaces with the name of each knight, marking his place of course. King Arthur and his knights are legendary. But the question is where did the Conqueror bring the table from? The most interesting feature of Winchester is the stately cathedral built before and during the time of the Norman Conquest. It is the second cathedral of England, and is rich in carvings from wood and stone. The seating capacity is over ten thousand. A large American rest camp is located at Winchester.

My first trip from hospital in England was on the Thames between Reading and Henley. It was at the height of the holiday season and the river was covered with small craft (mostly propelled by the fair sex). Either bank is lined with beautiful summer homes of English aristocracy, with innumerable house boats in the vacant spaces along the banks. Henley is the fashion centre of the Thames. Before the war a great yachting regatta was held there every year. We passed over the course on our trip. East of Henley our party went ashore to Lord Hambleton's estate and were entertained by Lord and Lady Hambleton. The gardens, lawn and grounds can be described as a "dream." It was a veritable "paradise." The house contains some fine old paintings, statuary and oak paneling. The farm is stocked with pure-bred horses and Jersey cattle.

Two weeks ago I again visited the metropolis and spent my spare time seeing London from the "bus tops." I traversed the city in all directions and was impressed more than ever by its charm of sobriety and beauty. At night it is a city of strange contrast; a city of multitudes and solitude; many of the streets are as dark, deserted and timorous as if they were streets of the eighteenth century, but take this turning, down the other flight of stairs, and you are yourself in the midst of thronging, struggling mobs, queues that seem endless, masses of assembled people. It is a city of theatres, all apparently running to capacity houses every night. Darkness and threat of air raids seem to augment rather than diminish the attendance. The theatre programmes contain instructions as to procedure in case of raids, though in many instances performances have been continued during raids.

As I write the men in the ward are eagerly discussing the prospects of peace as embodied in the German reply to President Wilson's questions which accepts his famous fourteen points. The only fear seems to be that the central powers and particularly Germany, will not be punished sufficiently for their many crimes against humanity. There is a feeling of confidence that if the war continues the German armies will meet their "sedan" before Christmas. We do not forget though that the military genius of the war. He has the unbounded confidence of every Allied soldier in France. We do not forget though that Field-Marshal Haig's splendid work of the past few weeks has brought about the present situation. As we look forward to a prospective return to Canada (the near future, our chief concern is that every man may not fall in the "other bit." We have a splendid heritage awaiting us and remains with us to see that it is marred by selfishness and greed. With the hallowed memory of those who have found a resting place "Over There," our first concern shall be to see that the widowed and orphaned shall not suffer want. Other problems shall be met in the spirit of brotherhood that has been cemented on the battlefield.

The dawn of the day is at hand. May we live up to our trust. Sincerely yours, T. C. Lapp.

Gunners D. B. Langs, L. B. Taylor and A. L. Allen, Depot Field Battery, have been admitted to Queen's Military Hospital.
