A life-best has been invented in England, by a Mr. Holbrook, which is quite novel in its design. It has air tight seats all round the side, but the bettom consists of open work of iron, so that the water passes fuely through, and even west the feet of the sween. The advantage is, that the water inside and outside is on the same level, and the boat is ballasted and hept opright by the water itself.

A Suffolk farmer reports that he has discovered the sea serpent in the English Channel. The appearances presented, entirely corresponded with those which have been described by Captain M'Quhae, of the Dedalus, and other unimpeachable authorities—a long line of blackish or dusky curved objects, with the waves breaking upon and over them. On a minute examination, however, it was found that the "sea serpent" in this case was neither more nor less than a shoul of porpoises, following each other in Indian file!

About two years ago, the scientific world was surprised by the announcement that Drs. A tardy justice, it seems, is to be rendered to the memory of Columbus, even in his native country. Two of the first men of Spain have taken the lead in the enterprize, we mean Messrs. Martines de la Rosa and Salvador Bermudes, both known as men of letters and liberal politicians. A subscription is to be starfed for that purpose, which is fast receiving the names of persons of every rank. The situation for the colossal monument has been most appropriately chosen on an elevated spot of the port of Palos de Maguer, opposite the convent of St. Ann, whence Columbus sailed on his first adventurous expedition for the monument will be subject to a competition of all Europe, and Mr. Bermudes will undertake an especial trip to England for those purposes. The preliminary arrangements hint at a colossal statue of twenty feet high, and of groups surrounding it, forming a base of forty feet in circumference. The status to be of the finest Florentine bronze, and the pedestal of reddish granite. The lowest estimate of the Columbus monument is £20,000.

Federative Union of the British North

To the Editor of the BRITTOM COLORIST.

Str.,—i beg leave, through the medium of your paper, in the present peculiar position of our affairs, to propose for the consideration of the people a scheme for a federative union of all the British North American Colonies, by means of which a more satisfactory arrangement of our political condition may be expected. The views I entertain upon this important subject are by no means new, so far as regards myself; for upon reference to the Journals of the House of Assembly of Upper Canada so far back as February in the year 1888, it will be seen that a similar project is recommended in general terms in a report made by me as Chairman of a Committee upon the their political state of the Province. Some ten or twelve years experience since then, however, has convinced me of the necessity of introducing the elective principle granite. The lowest estimate of the Columbus monument is £20,000.
