Billiard Hall!
SHARKEY'S BUILDING,
OPP. OFFICERS' BARRACKS, QUEEN ST., FREDERICTON, N. B.
T. E. FOSTER, Proprietor

THIS HALL has been newly fitted up, and handily furnished, and for room, light, ventilation and rest, compares most favorably with any Billiard Hall in the Dominion. The Billiard and Pool tables are pronounced by players to be superior to any now in use in this Province.
They are the BRILLIANT NOVELTY, size 4 x 9 feet.
The main object in the construction of the Billiard Novelty, and the one most noticeable, is that it embodies all the more salient or most important features that have rendered popular all the other styles of tables of the J. M. Brunswick & Co. Co.
2 make. The Billiard Novelty has all the advantages and good points, including the respective tables claimed by the "Nonpareil" and "Exposition," "Novelty," "Acme" and "Ananias." Table. The "Billiard Novelty" is a happy combination of all these celebrated tables, and has rapidly taken the foremost place in the estimation of all players of Billiard and Pool Tables. The "Novelty" is finished and handily fitted by many different colors, made up from California Laurel, Burash, French Walnut, Birds Eye Maple, Mahogany, Rose Wood, Tulip Wood and Ebony. It is supplied with the finest of Vermont Slate bed, Siamia cloth, and a first-class outfit of everything necessary.
A call is respectfully solicited from lovers of the game.
Boys under sixteen not allowed in the Hall.
Temperance drinks of all kinds, Cigars, etc.

Earthquake in New York and New England.

New York, Aug. 10.—A distinct shock of earthquake was felt throughout the cities of New York and Brooklyn at seven minutes past two this afternoon, lasting 10 or 12 seconds, and accompanied by subterranean rumblings, which was clearly audible. The earth's motion was a quick trembling movement without any lateral vibration, though some people in various localities seem to think they felt undulations in New York city. The motion was apparently most violent in the northern district, towards Harlem.
The people almost everywhere differ widely as to the duration of the shock, some estimating it at ten seconds and others at two minutes. The most reliable opinion doubtless are those which place it at ten or fifteen seconds. Its effects varied greatly. Every house in the city trembled. Chinaware standing edgewise on shelves slipped out of place, chandeliers and pictures trembled, bells were rung, pendants were jangled, people started from chairs where they were seated and ran excitedly into the streets, and in several instances walls and ceilings were cracked. The residents of Harlem were thrown into a state of intense excitement in consequence of the shock. It was felt mainly between 125th and 132nd streets Third and Eighth avenues, and in that section it was so great that men, women and children rushed pell mell and screaming from their homes, coatless, hatless and shoe-less, fearing that the walls would fall upon them. All of the streets literally swarmed with the excited multitude. East and west 126th street police stations were quickly crowded with anxious people, but they gained no information further than that policemen were just as badly shaken up. Numerous were the explanations given by the excited people.
The west side of the city, in the vicinity of Christopher and Hudson streets, felt the shock severely.

People rushed excitedly from their houses and sought the most open parts of the streets. Many ran all the way down to the wide, unoccupied ground along the North river front, and only ventured back to their homes when hours had passed without any damage being done. Probably the greatest excitement was occasioned at 27 and 29 Frankfort streets, in two tenement houses thickly populated. When the rumbling noise was heard the utmost excitement prevailed, and the inmates blocked the stairways in their mad rush for the street.
Windows were broken, crockery smashed and policemen were called to preserve order among the affrighted crowd.

It appears that the shock was felt with about the same intensity all over the city, although it produced more alarm in the thickly settled tenement districts on the east side. The greatest excitement occurred in the Jewish and Bohemian quarters on the east side. The houses, which are mostly high and are lightly constructed tenements, were violently shaken and the terrified inmates rushed out into the streets, carrying with them whatever of their household effects they could move.

Children screaming with fright were borne out by their parents, who were no less panic-stricken and the whole population massed itself in the centre of the streets. In Ludlow street the panic was at its height. Streets were swarming with people, men, women and children huddled together like sheep, many of them expecting every moment to see the walls of their dwellings fall upon them.
Women and children were shrieking and the men either swearing or praying.
This was kept up for nearly half an hour, when the commotion subsided, and the police persuaded the people to return to their houses.

Similar scenes were witnessed in Mulberry, Jersey and Mott streets, where the Italians have their colonies. The fright however, was not so intense, and after a little their loud shouts and wild gesticulations ceased. The disturbance was generally felt, with more or less severity, in many towns in the circuit, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Delaware, Massachusetts (including Boston) and Vermont, but reports do not indicate that any serious damage has been done.

The shock of earthquake was generally felt along the river fronts and piers were shaken as if by a heavy loaded truck passing over them. At the iron steamboat pier, which is built of solid masonry, the motion was so violent that the ticket takers rushed from their offices. The late afternoon boats brought back crowds from Coney Island, where it is said the shock was much more violent than in the city.
The piazzas and dining rooms at the Manhattan and Brighton Beach hotels were well filled with people when the rumbling noise was heard, followed by rocking ground, which made window panes rattle and shook dishes and wine glasses from the tables. There was a general rush for the open air, and for some time great excitement prevailed all along the beach.

FINDING $20,000,000 IN SILVER.

A Philadelphia's Rich Discovery on the Spanish Coast.

A well known Philadelphia citizen, J.
J. Boyle, has just returned from Vigo, Spain, where he has discovered, after a thorough and exhaustive exploration of the inner harbor of that town, a fleet of sunken Spanish galleons, supposed to contain not less than $20,000,000 in bullion, which he expects to rescue from a watery depository. These galleons are a portion of a fleet of treasure ships sunk in the harbor in the early part of the 18th century during a conflict between the English and Hollandish war ships and a French and Spanish fleet.

Mr. Boyle left Philadelphia several months ago with a view to recovering these sunken treasures, his enterprise having been directed in that channel by information imparted to him in a confidential manner. He not only located the vessels, but found many pieces of ancient coinage and other curiosities, among which were some coin that had been washed almost as thin as a piece of paper and thrown up on the rocks to a distance of 45 feet by the heavy surf which was constantly breaking over the wrecks.

Mr. Boyle, as soon as he had located the wrecks, secured the services of several divers at Liverpool, and work was begun immediately upon the vessels, which had rested undisturbed for nearly 200 years. The galleons were huge, round-sterned, clumsy vessels, with bulwarks three or four feet thick, and built up at the stem and stern like castles.
Two more sunken vessels were also discovered and examined north of the islands of Bayona and Esteles, in Vigo bay.

Mr. Boyle himself went down in a diver's suit to the treasure galleons sunk in the inner harbor and found the vessels covered with mud to the depth of four or five feet. The woodwork of the sunken fleet he discovered to be in a sound condition. The number of the sunken galleons is not known, but the silver which is said to be in the lower hold of the vessels is supposed to be not less than $20,000,000. Permission to recover this money has been obtained from the Spanish government, and work will be commenced immediately.

An Unfortunate Benefactor.

(From Belgravia.)

It is estimated that between 1861 and 1866 Bombay received £81,000,000 sterling over and above what she had during the previous five years gladly accepted as full value for her cotton. A great deal of this fabulous wealth disappeared during the mad rush of speculation which whelped the city in 1865; but a great deal of it stuck, and its proceeds may be seen to this day. Wealthy natives making coup after coup in cotton and scarcely knowing what to do with their money, determined to keep their memories green by dowering the city with some stately gift of stone. One presented a lac of rupees wherewith to build the clock tower which looks abroad over island, sea and mainland. When the inevitable crash came this benefactor was ruined.
Only recently the tower has been completed, and it was found that, so munificent had been the money gift, it was impossible to spend the last £5,000. The original donor, pathetically setting forth his present position of comparative destitution, petitioned the Government to refund him this overplus, which would be sufficient to give him a fresh start in business. The Government, in a minute which cannot be read without a glow of admiration, frigidly rebuked the unfortunate man for even submitting such a proposition to them, and reminded him that the money should they lose their grasp of it, belonged not to him but to his creditors. Hereupon the creditors pricked up their ears and hailed a Daniel come to judgment! But the Government thought they had done all that could be expected in the cause of commercial morality by laying down the principle; and they hold on to the money.

The Quack of a Goose.

"How is my little duck to-night?" asked young Crimmonbeak of Miss Fussian feather, his fiancée, as she met him at the door the other evening.
"Oh, I'm nearly roasted," George exclaimed the petulant rascid.
"I am so glad!" came from the lover, with a serene smile.
"Glad!" cried the girl, preparing to take a bath in tears.
"Yes," said George, in a low voice, after he had turned out the gas and put the clock back one hour; "you see I'm passionately fond of roast duck."—Yonk-er's Statesman.
