He told them that he knew he was in their power, and was willing to submit to anything that was right, but he asked as a favor not to bear on too hard, as he was of a nervous temperament, and might faint. Then they decided not to right and left. He had knocked down about twenty, and had stopped to spit on his hands, when the rest of the hazers huddled in a corner and pro-posed to put an end to the slaughter. One said: "O good Mr. Quaker, please let us alone. We belong to respectable families, and won't do so any more." Sullivan looked at them, and said: "It is hazing yez want. Well, yez can have plinty;" and he went at them, and in about fifteen minutes he corded up the whole band, and hazing was broken up in Harvard
