

Katharine's Sacrifice

"Say no more, dear, I understand," she said, gently. "I understand you are not the girl who is impulsive without some very good reason. Perhaps some day it may be different, and you may care to come to me. Well, child, if by Heaven's will I am alive, the home is open to you then as now, and remember, whatever happens, I am your friend. Now, shall we have a chat about your future? Tell me just as much as you like, and I may be able to help you. No, don't thank me," as Katharine broke in with quivering lips. "I think on the whole your determination to work is a good one; it will benefit your mental condition. I know that well, for years ago a great trouble fell on me. I was not a rich woman then, Katharine, being in fact a nursery governess, but I always look back to my hard work as to the very best friend I ever had. One has no time to remember when one is busy. So it will be with you, my dear. In time the shadow of this sorrow, whatever it may be that is oppressing you, will be lifted from your head, and happiness will come again by Heaven's blessing."

And then, after that they sat talking quietly for another hour, and the result of this long chat was that a week later, when Lucy Smythe was thinking of preparing Katharine's room for the girl to return, and sighing a little wearily over Gordon's terrible extravagance, a letter came from Katharine—a long, sweet, affectionate note in which Mrs. Smythe learned that she had lost a daughter, and that henceforth Katharine would live apart, earning her own livelihood in a strange world. The little woman was deeply grieved, and resolved not to give Katharine up without a struggle; but fortunately for our heroine's plans, and unfortunately for Mrs. Smythe, she was plunged into such trouble by Gordon's constant demands for money, that the struggle never took place beyond a long letter full of loving reproaches and affectionate entreaties to return. But Katharine's resolve was taken, and despite a qualm of pity that passed through her mind, she did not give way. She left Northminster for London on a steamer, bearing in her pocket a note which Miss Weston had given her to carry to an old friend who would assist her all she could, and a purse whose scanty store had been replenished unknown to her by a bank-note slipped in by the generous old maid's hand. And so, though she limped still, and was scarcely more than a convalescent, Katharine turned her back on the past with a prayer and a hope that forgetfulness, if not happiness, might come in the future.

On her arrival in London, Katharine took a cab, and drove to some lodgings to which Miss Weston had directed her, and fortunately was able to engage a bedroom at a moderate sum. She fell asleep that night for the first time during the weeks that had passed with a sensation of freedom that was almost akin to pleasure, and slept soundly until the next morning. Then taking another hansom she started to go first to the lawyer who paid her her modest income, to communicate her intentions to him, and, secondly, to this Mrs. Graham, Miss Weston's friend. Her lawyer, she discovered, was out of town on his annual holiday, but the old lady was at home, and very charming Katharine found her. Having read Miss Weston's letter, she at once directed the girl to go to a certain house not far away, where that very morning a lady Drummond was making a choice of a companion for her niece, a very wealthy young lady—an orphan. The advantages of this engagement were manifold, but Katharine never expected that she had for a single instant a chance of obtaining it when she was ushered into Lady Drummond's boudoir. What trifles change the current of our lives. Just as Katharine entered the room, a small picture fell off an easel close at hand, and the girl stopped to pick it up. As she did so she uttered an exclamation of mingled surprise, delight and pain. "Is it injured?" asked Lady Drummond, a rather plain, fussy woman, with a not unpleasant expression. "I hope not as I value it very much, indeed." Tears had started to Katharine's eyes. "No, it is unharmed," she replied, speaking with difficulty; she was gazing at the canvas through a mist of tears—what memories it awoke! "Forgive me," she faltered, simply, "my father painted this picture, and—" she murmured to herself. "Lady Drummond is right—an angel he is, indeed!" She sighed again, and then she gave a little cry of astonishment that was echoed by another person just in front of her. "Miss Breton!" exclaimed Lord Otway, coming to a sudden standstill in his amazement; "can I believe my eyes? Is it really you? You here, in London, when I was imagining you sitting under those dear old trees in Miss Weston's garden, alone with your book and your thoughts! What happy fate led me to walk down this particular path to-day, I wonder?" (To be Continued.)

SEVEN YEARS.

Montreal Man Receives Long Term For Assault.

Brockville, Sept. 20.—At the Assizes here to-day, Chief Justice Falconbridge presiding, John Fitzgerald, a tramp, who claims Montreal as his home, was found guilty on a charge of assault upon an 18-year-old girl named Mabel Spafford, daughter of a respectable farmer residing in Leeds township. Fitzgerald was sentenced to seven years in the Kingston Penitentiary. A true bill was found against Miss Grace Henderson, of Gananoque, on indictments charging her with the theft of $2,500 from the Thousand Islands Railway at Gananoque, and no bill against H. C. Barker, charged with bribing an Indian, Michael Berro, to absent himself from a liquor trial.

ELEPHANTS HOLD UP CITY.

Stamped from Circus and Invaded Santa Barbara. Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 20.—Eight elephants belonging to a circus stamped shortly before daylight to-day, and invaded the residence section of the city. Fences were torn down and scores of fruit trees uprooted by the enraged animals before they were captured. One great beast demolished the porch at the home of B. F. Hammond and overturned an addition to the house recently erected. The elephants were corralled in a swamp in the outskirts of the city. The stampede was caused by an attempt to take a calf from its mother.

Roller Skating on Shipboard.

The craze for roller skating, which has spread in such extraordinary fashion throughout all classes of society in the British Isles during the last year or so, has now caught the sailors and petty officers of some of his Majesty's fleet in its seductive way. During the Thames display the people going around the warships in steamers, were amused to see a number of seamen making a precarious run of the deck of a battleship. Illustrated London News.

BURNED AT SEA.

Vessel Believed to be British Steamer Waratah. Manila, Sept. 20.—The British steamer Halow, Captain Bruce, from Newport News, June 16th, for Port Natal and the Manila, reports that on July 27th, while 188 miles from Durban, she passed a steamer fire. The vessel in question, whose name is impossible to make out, was shortly after destroyed by an explosion. It is supposed that this steamer was the missing British steamer Waratah, which, with 300 persons on board, has not been heard from since July 26th.

HALF A TON OF OPIUM.

Customs Seizures Made by Officials at Manila. Manila, Sept. 20.—The Insular Government now ship to the Bureau of Insular Affairs at Washington nearly half a ton of opium, the proceeds of many customs seizures. The Government intends to dispose of the opium for medicinal purposes among drug manufacturers, receiving in exchange medicine for hospitals, dispensaries and other Government institutions in the Philippines. The Bureau of Health will make cash returns to the Bureau of Customs for the tariff due on the seizures.

WOULD NOT SAVE WIFE.

Cleveland Brewer Refused to Lend $500 to Keep Her From Prison. Cleveland, O., Sept. 20.—Rather than loan his former wife $500, which would have kept her from going to prison, Jacob Fickel, a brewer, saw her sentenced to the penitentiary for two years here to-day. Sentence was suspended and Mrs. Fickel's son will attempt to raise the money and save his mother. Mrs. Fickel embezzled $596.56 from the estate of Bertha Bosenhardt while acting as guardian to the woman last winter. She was convicted, but Judge Vickery told her she could go free if she would repay the money. Mrs. Fickel's son tried to raise the money, but failed, and the father refused to help.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

John McKissock, a Well-known Pictou Character, Hauled Out of Bay. Pictou, Sept. 20.—John McKissock, an old Scotchman, and a well-known character about town, attempted suicide. He tied his feet together with a rope and jumped into the bay. However, the rope that he used was tied by the other end to the wharf, and John was soon fished out. He is over eighty years old, and without means of support. On public holidays he would don his cap and pin his medals to his breast, and parade Main Street. He possesses two medals, one for Fenian raid services and the other for long service in the 16th Regiment.

STRUCK BY FLYWHEEL.

Peter Macritchie Killed in C. P. R. Elevator at Fort William. Fort William, Sept. 20.—Peter Macritchie, aged 35, employed in the C. P. R. elevator B, was killed to-day, being struck on the head by the fly-wheel. No person saw the tragedy, and it is supposed that in resuming his upright position he must have swayed toward the flywheel, which struck the back of his head. He was instantly killed, and remained suspended from the platform by one foot, which caught in a lever, hanging head downwards, until seen a minute or two afterward by some fellow sweepers. Deceased was married and leaves a wife and five children. The family only joined him from their former home in Scotland two weeks ago.

SAVED FROM DEATH.

Young Lady Rescued from Front of Train. Cornwall, Sept. 20.—A gallant rescue was made at the Grand Trunk station here this afternoon. About one hundred people had gathered to send off Mr. and Mrs. P. Flynn, who were married at St. Andrew's this morning. As the train was approaching, the crowd jostled about, with the result that Miss McIntosh, cousin of the bride, was thrown off the platform prostrate across in front of the train, which was about 100 feet away and running twenty-five miles an hour. The crowd stood powerless.
