rank and file of the Liberal Conservative party that we have witnessed in years gone by. There are many members of our party who will frankly confess that they have not the heart to go into a fight now the same as they used to. Why should this be the case? The people of this Province are as intelligent a body of electors as can be found in any portion of the Dominion, of equal population; and being thus intelligent, they understand what constitutes good government; for that reason a majority of them are at heart Liberal-Conservatives We make this statement advisedly; for in 1878 they gave overwhelming proof of the fact by their votes. The general policy of the Federal Government has not changed from that day to this, and we feel pretty sure that the conscientious political convictions of the majority of the electors of this Province have not changed. They have just as much confidence in the Government at Ottawa, now as they had fifteen years ago. We must then attribute to local causes the reduction of the Liberal Conservative representation from this Province in the Dominion Parliament, and the evident apathy and indifference on the part of a large number of electors.

Among these causes may, perhaps, be enumerated, poor management on the part of those charged with, or assuming, the leadership of the party; unnecessary looks me discrimination in the distribution the dar of patronage; the giving of offices by gu to men who had been life-long opponents of the party,in preference to tried and faithful servants, who had borne the brunt of many battles; the indorsation of men of protean type, who had spent years boxing the political compass, being everything by turns and nothing when b
