Greeting From England.

These verses appeared in the London Chronicle, April 22, 1918, the day after the United States had declared war against Spain, following the "Maine" tragedy.

America! dear brother land!
While yet the shotguns are mute,
Accept a brotherly salute.
A hearty grip of England's hand.
To-morrow, when the sulphurous glow
Of war shall dim the stars above, Be sure the star of England's love Is over you, come weal or woe.

Go forth in hope! Go forth in might!
To all your nobler self be true.
That coming times may see in you The vanguard of the hosts of light.

Though wrathful justice load and train Your gaze, be every breach they make A gateway pierced for mercy's sake That peace may enter in and reign.

Then, should the hosts of darkness land Against you, lowering thunderously, Flash the word "Brother" o'er the sea,
And England at your side shall stand.

Exulting! For, though dark the night And sinister with scud and rack, The hour that brings us back to luck
But harbinger the larger light.

A German Exhibition.

Carrying out a project suggested some time ago in Germany, the German Government has opened an exhibition in Munich calculated to prove to King Ludwig's subjects that the wartime cartoons of enemy artists are violent and bitter, while those made in Germany are merely amusing and caustic. Side by side with samples of the most extreme anti-German cartoons are placed some of the more moderate German sketches.
According to a copy of the Münchner Neueste Nachrichten recently received in London, most of the enemy productions are of the poorest quality, and produce "only a feeling of disgust." Some, indeed, such as the cartoons of Raemaekers, "combine with the sense of disgust a bitter feeling of pain at this unparalleled degradation of art."

The exhibition, which is called "Our Enemies' Sowing of Lies," was opened by the Police President of Munich. He said that there were a certain number of Germans who thought it necessary to ask themselves whether they could have conceivably provoked the hatred of their enemies by their own "past or present behavior." Such persons inquire whether, when the war is over, Germany will not be ruined economically by the insuperable dislike of the whole world—unless, indeed, by "good military and political behaviour in the last stages of the war and at the conclusion of peace." The Germans can obtain a good mark from "the supreme judge of the world, Herr Woodrow Wilson."

The Police President admitted that the exhibition did not include everything, chiefly because some of the enemy pictures "are so shameless that, according to German ideas, they simply cannot be exhibited in public." But he hoped that the public would go away satisfied that they were not really boches, Huns, and barbarians, but merely the victims of "a campaign of lying ad calumny which is backed up by gigantic financial resources."

"Stella Maris."

Lying at Bissett's upper wharf is the explosion-wrecked steamer Stella Maris, which was purchased by Burns Kelker from S. M. Brookfield, Limited. The hull of the former wrecking steamer appears to be intact, floating like a cork, and in view of the fact that the craft on the morning of the disaster was closer to the Mont Blanc than any other ship in the harbour is testimony that the Stella Maris was a strongly built craft and in spite of her age came out of the destruction wrought that day in a surprisingly good state. The hull is built of oak and copper fastened. Not much outlay will be necessary in putting the boilers and machinery in working condition. Burns and Kelker intend rebuilt the boat for a freighter and the work of carrying this out will be started at once—Halifax Mail, July 2nd.

Huns Policy of Sea Crime.

London, (via Reuters' Limited).— That the sinking of hospital ships is a deliberate policy on the part of the Germans now is placed beyond all doubt by the torpedoing of the Canadian hospital ship Llandovery Castle, the newspapers say in their editorial comment to-day.

In the presence of such unspen-sable infamy deliberately repeated, says the Daily Chronicle, "it is a waste of breath to reiterate the abhorrence which everybody with a spark of civilized sense must feel. But we would invite the German people to ask themselves what is the use of their statements appealing, like Foreign Secretary Von Kuchemann, to be credited with 'probity and honor,' while crimes so odious, dishonorable and unashamed continue to be carried out by the orders of their Government."

The excuse for the attack on the Llandovery Castle, says the Daily Mail, was a lie, and the German officer who told it did not believe it himself when he said to the captain:
"You are carrying eight American fight officers."

If there had been a particle of truth in the charge, the newspaper adds, the submarine commander had only to stop the Llandovery Castle, seize the eight officers and take them to Germany as proof of Allied guilt in using hospital ships for transports.

Market Notes.

CODFISH. The balance on hand in stocks here last week was roughly 45,000 quintals, and it is expected that this quantity will have been exported by the end of present month, consequently the new spring catch will come on the market in August with clean stores and under otherwise favorable conditions. The basis for opening prices will likely be $10 to $10.50 per quintal. Markets on both sides of the Atlantic are holding good. Oporto stocks are down to 9,000 quintals.

COD OIL. The prices of both common and refined have eased off, $280 per ton being offered for the former and $250 to $275 per gallon for the latter. These figures may advance later, especially if the war continues into another year. Other contingencies render it impossible to say whether oil prices will go up as high as those of 1917.

HERRING. Splits have been purchased at $7.50 per barrel, which is the ruling price. A splendid demand for this pack exists in the West Indies now. The Green Bay Scotch pack is fast being cleared to New York markets, direct, sales being made at $14.15 per barrel. Big losses have been incurred through a sacrifice in prices owing to lack of cold storage.

LOBSTERS. Maritime Province packers are becoming alarmed over prospects of this fishery's future and are seeking for legislation to save the industry from gradual extinction. A meeting of those interested is to be held at Halifax the second week in August. A representative from Newfoundland should attend this meeting and we trust that arrangements will be made to have one sent. This is a matter which affects us very closely.

PROVISIONS. The price of Pork still keeps easing down. Wholesale dealers quote Ham Butt $47. Very few sales are being made, at this season. The imports are some 7,800 barrels behind last year. Beef figures hold firm. Local prices for the best brands, wholesale are $41; Packet and Boneless $40; Cuttings, $39.50. The Canadian Food Control Board advises that no more Flour will be sold for export until September, when the new crop is milled. This will be a serious development for Newfoundland, as our white flour stocks are practically sold out. We have never come to the time when it is incumbent upon us to buy "Government Standard" brand which is selling at $13.80. Superior grades are $14.75.
American granulated sugar is acutely scarce and importers are only able to partially fill orders. The tonnage situation is responsible for this though there may be relief in a few weeks. Local quotations stand at $10 per hundred pounds. Barbados sugar is offering at 9 1/2 cents per pounds, Light Straw, Crystal and Muscovado, 8 1/2 cents, with fair supplies in stock.
The loss of a cargo of molasses a few days ago will accentuate the shortage in prospect. Prices advanced during the past week from 22 to 24 cents per gallon. A parcel of 1,000 puncheons destined for this dominion has been sold to dealers in the Maritime Provinces, a goodly portion of which will go to Halifax.

Hindenburg, the Idolized Beast.

(From the Syracuse Post-Standard).
The Countess Laura Turczynowicz was the most effective speaker of War Week, for she brought her own personal testimony of the havoc of war. She has lived through the horrors of German warfare in a country which has suffered German brutality and atrocity, without the relief which America has been able to extend to Belgium. She has lived in a war area in which the most ruthless and heartless of all German commanders made the reputation for inhumanity which commended him for promotion to the head of all the German armies.
The country was compelled, as part of her Calvary, to act as hostess to General Hindenburg, to see him lock men and women in a church for two weeks without food or water, to hear him tell distracted fathers that they could not have their own daughters back, as they "belonged to the soldiers." Thus she described Hindenburg:

You have seen his pictures. That's just the way he looks, only more so.
He is purple and red. I don't think it is apoplexy. It is temper and alcohol.
He is the cruellest creature that ever drew breath.

This beast is the idol of Germany, his ugly statue adorning the public squares of her cities, his power throughout the empire second only to that of the emperor himself. What hope is there for the world with the Hindenburg monster in command of Germany's armies—and her soul?

Submarine Bases.

The United States Navy Department has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the discovery of enemy submarine bases "on this side" of the Atlantic. The New York Times regards this offer as a counsel of caution. Apparently it does not signify official belief in the existence of a single German base anywhere from the broken coast of Maine to the Florida Keys and the lagoons of Louisiana. Yet there seems to be a lurking suspicion that the enemy may have agents, somewhere along the coast or elsewhere, engaged in furnishing him with supplies. It was at the suggestion of "some of the Admirals" that Secretary Daniels was moved to offer the reward; to civilians only, of course.
It might be said that the Secretary is "taking no chances." Consider this statement by him:

"We have no information that there is any submarine base on this side maintained by the enemy, but if such a base does exist, we are anxious to obtain the information. Nor do we have any reason to believe that there is a secret base on our shores. Still, we think it well worth while to make this offer in the hope that it will result in an even keener lookout on the part of the civilians and others along shore."

Evidently the offer is open to the West Indies, Mexico, and the Spanish Main, as well as to the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. The Times says the distinction in the Secretary's statement between "on this side" and "on our shores" should be noted. Probably the Navy Department has its mental eye on Mexico. At all events, the American offer should serve to keep the people along the Nova Scotia (and Newfoundland) coast on the alert. This is the season when the utmost vigilance should be observed.
—Halifax Morning Chronicle.

Pacifists.

There are no more stubborn fighters than the pacifists. Everyone knows the story of the conscientious objector who, having satisfied a tribunal that his principles forbade him to fight for his country, later defended his pacific views so vigorously that he found himself hailed before a magistrate charged with assault and battery. The Pacifists are all like that. They do not apparently object to see their country beaten, but they refuse to own defeat themselves, be the odds against them ever so overwhelming. The affair of the Emperor's letter has given a fresh flip to their activities. The "Peace" of Bres-t-Litovsk gave them pause for a time; the "Peace" of Bukarest frankly staggered them; but here was a most joyful way out. An amiable Austrian prince writes to his amiable brother-in-law an amiable letter proposing peace; why was the offer rejected by the threshold militaristic Governments of France and Great Britain?
"We might have had peace in 1917," they cried, and devoted their considerable powers of invective to the agreeable task of attacking the two or three statesmen immediately concerned for not having initiated and carried on secret negotiations on the basis of the Emperor's proposals—a curious move, by the way, on the part of a group which for months and years has been denouncing "secret diplomacy." The Pacifists in our midst are small in numbers and vociferous out of all proportion to their weight, but their campaign of misrepresentation and innuendo contains germs of danger to the common cause, and we are very glad that on the debate on the adjournment for the Whitsun recess Mr. Balfour seized the opportunity to blow their whole edifice sky-high.—Review of Reviews.

Paper Men Are Real Producers.

(From Toronto Saturday Night.) Publishers of Canada, those who use newsprint, have freely handled the visible weapon of their publicity, and have more energetically employed their concealed club of gentlemanly intimidation, to have the price of newsprint sliced down to suit their own platform in these war times.
When it gets down to bedrock, and we try to think like economists and talk as bankers are supposed to talk, by the uninitiated, who is the greatest national producer just now, the publisher or the pulp and paper man? A little card that comes floating through the mails tells us that Canada's pulp and paper industry turns out about $20,000,000 worth per annum, and $80,000,000 worth of this product is exported to the United States. The pulp people by keeping their plants going strong, can cancel $60,000,000 out of an adverse trade balance to Canada. These manufacturers can also expand and bolster up a business employing the natural resources of Canada, and with a market just across the border eager for the stuff, they can sell in time a quarter of a billion dollars worth, instead of $80,000,000 worth. They can produce large surplus profits for all Canada from a foreign source, which means a net gain to the country to enable us to pay off our war bills. This the publisher cannot do. The publisher deals in brains, white paper and ink, but he does not produce much else than sensations. The Dominion Government appointed Commissioner Pringle to set the price of newsprint, and after his finding, which set the price too low, according to the pulp and paper men, the publishers joined hands and called the Commissioner names. The pulp men wanted an increase of fifty per cent. over the old price. The Commissioner set the price for newsprint at $2.85 per hundred pounds, this figure to terminate in May. Almost as a unit the pulp and paper men contended that the figure so set was not far from the level of cost of production, and some maintained they would have to sell to Canadian publishers at a loss in meeting the figure. However, the price was set, and then the publishers made demand that this figure should not terminate in May, but remain in force until June, and apparently so until that figure becomes established in concrete. They also asked that thirty-five cents of this price be withheld from the paper men, to be refunded in case the price finally fixed is under that set. Public opinion might very well step in here, and decide whether or not the pulp and paper men are entitled to a fair price for their products.

Pershing's Words to Men of Allied Fleet.

London, July 2.—The Right Rev.
Charles Henry Brent, former Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Philippines, during a recent visit to the Grand Fleet, delivered the following message from General Pershing to the men of the British and American ships:

"The bond which joins together all the men of our blood has been mightily strengthened and deepened by the rough hand of war. Those of us who are privileged to serve in the Army and Navy are to one another as brothers.

"The spaces of land and sea are nothing where common purposes bind. We are so dependent on one another that the honor, fame and exploits of the one are the honor, fame and exploits of the other.

"Should the enemy dare leave his safe harbor and set his ships in battle array, no cheers would be more ringing as you and the Allied fleets move to his defeat than those of the American forces in France. We have unshaken confidence in you, and are assured that when we stand on the threshold of peace your record will be one worthy of your traditions."

Dastardly Enemy Acts.

Pity for the ignorant enemy soldiers who are said to be the unhappy tools of their masters is pleaded for day by day, month by month, and year by year as the war continues, by those amongst us who seem unable to visualise the iniquities and facts as they are. Can one imagine any Britisher carrying out the order to torpedo the Lusitania or to shoot Nurse Cavell, or to bomb and come down deliberately to fly at low altitude in order to rake the hospital tents and attendants' quarters with machine-gun fire, thus leaving no loophole for pretext that they were not aware of their objective? This latest dastardly act is on a par with the rest of the abominations carried out by the servants of the Kaiser. The multitude of these abominations makes it impossible to believe that they are done under protest, and puts the perpetrators on a level with the instigators. There can be no soft-heartedness towards a ruthless enemy; the spirit which inspires such acts as these must be utterly vanquished.—
