Every family and especially those who reside in the country should have a bottle of Chamberlain's Lintiment. There is nothing when it may be needed, it is most excellent in all cases of rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by all druggists.

Change at the Orphanum

Yesterday the vaudeville acts at the Orphanum were changed. Rondas and Beeth have added another real treat in the way of ring performing along with the much talked about bicycle act.

The vaudeville have also changed, along with Joe Rall, the comedy juggler, and this change seems to have met with the endorsement of the public.

The Broken Locket.

No matter to what depths a man may fall, there is always at least one awakening and his future depends on whether he hearkens to that call or not. The young hero of our story, having been given reins to his inclinations, the principal one being that he is persuaded from his reckless life by his sweetheart. He goes west to make a man of himself. On leaving his friends he breaks his lock in two, giving him one half as a talisman against a lapse, while she keeps the other half as a reminder of his promise.

Out west he meets with fair success, and things look rosy, but he is vain to help him to his feet. That drink was his undoing. Down the sink deeper than before, making the acquaintance of a young woman, who writes to his ever faithful sweetheart that he has been killed. This shock throws the poor girl into a delirium of grief, resulting in hopeless blindness. This great biograph together with 3 specially selected comedies and a scenic affair of home agriculture in Hungary form a star attraction of programme for today.
