LIFE ASSURANCE.

From the moment of the first payment being made by an individual to an Assurance Company his peace of mind, as regards the welfare of dependents, is secured; and how selfish must that man be, who will not set apart and how selfish must that man be, who will not set apart and so the Danes having a strong position.

The conflict was a bloody one the Danes having a strong position. so comparatively triffing a sum, to secure happiness to bloody one, the Danes having a strong position, those he may leave behind him! Any man having others dependent on him, who neglects to seek such protection, neglects one of the first duties he is bound to perform.

Instead of silver, money or brass, He took his hammer, and said, with a frown, "The coin is spurious, nail it down."

Doetrn.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

John Littlejohn was staunch and strong,

Whenever a rascal strove to pass,

Upright and downright, scorning wrong; He gave good weight and paid his way, He thought for himself, and he said his say.

John Littlejohn was firm and true, You could not cheat him in "two and twe;"
When foolish arguers, might and main,
Darkened and twisted the clear and plain, He saw through the mazes of their speech The simple truth beyond their reach; And crushing their logic, said, with a frown, "Your coin is spurious, notil it down."

John Littlejohn mainteined the right, Through storm and shine, in the world's despite When fools or quacks desired his vote, Dosed him with arguments learnt by rote, Or by coaxing, threats, or promise, tried
To gain his support to the wrongful side,
"Nay, nay," said John, with an angry frown,
"Your com is spurious, nail it down."

When told that Kings had a right divine, And that the people were herds of swine, That nobles alone were fit to rule, That the poor were unimproved by school, That ceaseless toil was the proper fate Of all but the wealthy and the great, John shook his head, and swore with a frown, "The coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told that events might justify A false and crooked policy, That a decent hope of future good Might excuse departure from rectitude, That a lie if white was a small offence To be forgiven by men of sense,
"Nay, nay," said John with a sigh and frown
"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told from the pulpit or the press That heaven was a place of exclusiveness, That none but those could enter there Who knelt with the "orthodox" at prayer, And held all virtues out of their pale As idle works of no avail, John's face grew dark, as he swore with a frown "The coin is spurious, nail it down."

Whenever the world our eyes would blind With false pretence of such a kind, With humbug, cant, and bigotry, Or a specious, sham philosophy, With wrong dressed up in the guise of right, And darkness passing itself for light, Let us imitate John, and exclaim, with a frown, "The coin is spurious, nail it down."

Nothing is doing on 'Change and great numbers of the mills and workshops are either wholly closed or working only short time. About 10,000 operatives are at present working short time, and nearly the same number are wholly out of employment. The operative population are not the principal sufferers; the shopkeepers and tradesmen generally are deeply distressed, and hundreds know not how to turn

The state of Ireland is most alarming. The whole country is armed; Dublin swarms with troops, and I fear, sooner or later, bloodshed will ensue, I say I fear-for I doubt, if the agitation will succeed, famine, bloodshed and misery will be the result. It was currently reported here to-day that Dublin had been declared in a state of siege; but I do not deliver it,

Ledru Rollin, Flocon, Louis Blanc, Albert, and Caussidiere would have little more than the majority, if indeed, some of them did not absolutely fail. During the many weeks of the agitation of the question, the party of order and moderation has been gaining strength, until it has now reached the point at which the best friend of the Republic desired it should remain ; it has produced a feeling of confidence, and a sense of security and of permanence, provided that the course which led to it be persevered in. The accounts from the Departments show that very many of the former Liberal deputies will be returned, with also several whose principles are notoriously not Republican.

WARLIKE FEELINGS .- A correspondent of the London Morning Herald, from Germany, says-"In whatever part of Germany I have been, I have remarked that the popular excitement prevailing seems to have a craving for war-war with some other nation, with some other State. Austria turns its martial ardour upon its revolted provinces in Italy; Prussia has found vent for the excitability of its revolutionized population in Schleswig Holstein, and is acquiring popularity by being the recognized leader in those opera-tions; while I have observed that elsewhere what was most wished for was a war with Russia. This thirst for blood seems to be a new appetite that has been acquired amid the excitement of the recent commotions; and it is by no means improbable that, if it will not or cannot be gratified by foreign war, it will seek to satiate itself in internal anarchy-in such scenes of carnage as have taken place durning the last week in Kandern, or in such attempts as are now made to destroy the value of property in Vienna." WARLIKE PREPARATIONS .- A letter from Tione in the Tyrol, dated 10th, says: "The army of volunteers, 10,000 strong, is advancing into the Tyrol, under General Allemandi. This party is composed of all the best, the noblest, and most enthusiastic of Italy. Bodies from Naples, Rome, Florence, Genoa, and Turin. This general, by a bold and able manœuvre, has taken up such a position in the Tyrol as will cut off the retreat of the Austrians, who have no other resource but to lay down their arms. The Austrians terrorstricken by these bold movements, retreat everywhere, opposing little resistance. The entire of Southern Tyrol has declared in favour of the free cause, with the exception only of the Valley of the Adige, which is kept in awe by the presence of the Austrian troops concentrated at

RETURN OF GEN. Scott .- Gen. Scott has left Mexico, and is now on his way to New-York, where he is expected to arrive evrey day. On his departure from Mexico the warmest demonstrations of affection were lavished on him by his later companions in arms. The American Star says! His friends-and their name is legionassembled on the street fronting his dwelling, and as he was too much overcome to receive them all, those who had not the happiness of shaking him by the hand were glad to get a sight of him as he departed. Around his carriage, as it proceeded along the causway to El Penon, the adieus continued for a long way on the road. But the most affecting scene of all was when he left his house. The rifle guard was drawn up to receive him, and as he passed they presented arms to thier beloved commander, for the last time; they shed tears like children, and so affected was the old hero, that he could scarcely get into the carriage. Gen. Scott has announced his intention not to s the first Institution of the kind upon an extended scale, morning of the 21st instant, and after a battle land at New-York, but to proceed directly to his which has been established to afford to persons in the of five hours' duration the Free Corps were family at Elizabeth town N. THE POLICIES granted by the Colonial Company in the Parlicipation Class of Assurances, are ranked at the Periodical Division of Profit according to the particular year in which they have been opened. Ar 25th May, 1848, the lists for the present year will be closed, and all persons opening Policies before that date will secure a share of the profits at the investigation in 1854, corresponding to 7 years. The mode of dividing the profits of the Company is a subject of much importance, and the Directors have studied to adopt such a plan as shall concerned in the Institution. The Bonus, when declared, can be added to the sum payable at death, or applied in present value towards reduction of the Annual Premium, or partly in the one way and partly in the other. The Company have already assured nearly Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Pounds, Sterling; and the successful mogress of the Institution generally, has been very remarkable, showing how greatly the extension of Life Assurance to the Colonies of Great Britain has been appreciated there.
