THUS FRAZZI AND HIS RED HANDKERCHIEF Spent Eleven Hours.

Washington Crossing, N. J., Sept. 24.-Antonio Frazzi has been wearing a bright red handkerchief around his neck as he goes to his work in the quarries near here. On the way yesterday he met, in the wildest part of his walk, an Alderney bull. The animal saw the handkerchief and shook his head angrily. Frazzi said: "Soh! Soh!" and the bull came at him.

There was a high boulder near by and Frazzi rushed around this, the bull after him. Round and round they ran, the bull snorting and Frazzi shouting. Frazzi missed his footing and the bull had him in the air immediately, and when he came down, tossed him up again. The second toss landed him within reach of a tree. Frazzi climbed the tree, helped not a little by the prodding horns of the bull. Seated out of reach he broke off branches and threw them. But the bull butted the trunk of the tree at intervals all day long and gave Frazzi no chance to escape.

At sundown the bull walked away home and Frazzi descended from his perch where he had spent eleven miserable hours. Today he went to see Farmer John Knepp who owns the bull; and showed him his bruises and scratches.

"And did you have that thing on?" inquired the farmer, pointing to the bright red handkerchief.

"Yes," said Frazzi.

"Well, if you had taken it off and put it in your pocket the bull would have let you alone." And that was all the satisfaction Frazzi got.

THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH. Charles Richard John Spencer Churchill, the ninth Duke of Marlborough, who, in choosing for his wife an American girl, is following the fashion set by his father and uncle, the late Lord Randolph Churchill, will be 24 years old on Nov. 13 next. He attained his majority four days after his father, the late duke, died.

The young duke is a strong contrast in appearance to the general run of the Churchills, although he bears a family resemblance to the portraits of the first duke, who was the greatest general of his age. Like his father, he is somewhat below the average size, and slender, with a narrow complexion, a high forehead, aquiline nose and dark brown hair.

Have You Thought of It? For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief-no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott's Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. If there is suffering now it is a result of carelessness for the remedy is at hand. Try Putnam's Corn Extractor. It is sure, painless and prompt. Beware of substitutes.
