We not hope to save them until the feeling abroad approaches the excitement

Sir Charles Dilke has written a long etter, in which he says that if Great Britain shall go to war she will also plunge India, Canada and Australia nto war, possibly without their consent. Sir Charles adds: "The forcible passage of the Dardanelles might lead to a general war, for which we are wholly unprepared, and in which our very existence as a power would be at stake." In conclusion Sir Charles says: "Our virtual protectorate over Egypt has destroyed, in the minds the powers, our credit for clean hands in relation to the Ottoman Em-

Carlos, if patriotism demanded it. fact, one Carlist deputy, Senor Sanz, openly proclaimed that the direction of the Carlists would soon pass into the hands of their military leaders, adding that the Carlists were perfectly organized in almost every province, and that they were prepared to take advantage of any favorable opportunity to take the field again in of their chieftain, Don Carlos de Bourbon, Duke of Madrid, who claims to be the rightful heir to the throne of Spain.

Other Carlist deputies publicly admitted that they retired from the Chamber in order to avoid any responsibility for the disasters that they foresaw were arising, as a result of the Government's policy, and it became known later that secret instructions were sent by the Marquis Ceralbo, the principal agent of the Pretender, to the Carlist organizations throughout Spain, notifying them to prepare for a call to arms in case of good opportunity arising, reassertng the right of Don Carlos by force of arms. The Marquis Cabrinana, who showed up the municipal corruption of Ma-

The manifesto also placed the Carlists on record as supporting the supremacy of the church, the throne of a parliament reresenting all classes, and advocatng the freedom of the provinces in administrative and financial matters.

Under ordinary circumstances, that s to say, if the Spanish Government had been hands free, these manifestations would have been followed by repressive measures, but contrary to expectation, the Premier, Senor Canovas Del Castillo; the Minister for Foreign Affairs, the Duke of Tetuan, and, it is said, the Queen Regent, claimed not to regard the attitude of the Carlists in a serious light. In fact, the Government went so far as to intimate that Don Carlos had promised the Pope and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, within whose domains the Pretender resides, not to do anything in the present crisis This report obtained almost general

Welcomed by the National Council of Women.

An Interesting Address Eiven by Her Excellency.

The Objects and Work of the Organiza tion-Pleasant Interchange of Greetings.

The meeting in the Music Hall of the National Council of Women last night was not as largely attended as it would have been had the rain storm not come so inopportunely. In other respects, it was a success. Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Aberdeen were present, and a most interesting address on the work of woman in our day was delivered by Lady Aberdeen, who is president of the National Council of Women, as well as of the International Council.

Among the ladies and gentlemen who occupied seats on the platform were: Mrs. E. N. English, president of the local council; Mesdames Boomer, Hyman, Shanly, Richardson, Talbot Macbeth, Gahan, Heritage, Mc-Kinnon, Misses Graydon, Brown and takable signs in Carlist circles that McDonald, Rev. 'We did not want Li Hung Chang, but we did want, and rejoice to know that we have one with us so much Lady Aberdeen replied, thanking the council for their expressions of welcome and confidence. The people of London had showered upon them unstinted compliments. All they could do in return was to try and live up to them The National Council had passed through many vicissitudes since her Excellency's last visit, and through it all had always been able to count on valuable assistance from London Council. Valuable, careful and efficient reports could be counted upon from this council. Lady Aberdeen complimented Mrs. English, Mrs Macbeth and Mrs. Boomer. She smilingly asked, "What would our National Council be without Mrs. Boomer?" adding that Mrs. Boomer was a constant attendant at the meetings. Each of these ladies had rendered valuable services in many directions Lady Aberdeen spoke highly of the work of Mrs. Tilley, who, on coming to the National Council, had represented the King's Daughters, but was always to be identified with this council. She had brought up subjects of national importance, now under consideration

Complying with Mrs. Boomer's request, the Countess proceeded to discuss a few features of the work of the Women's Council. One of their works had been the encouragement of manual education in the schools. Kingston the council had succeeded i having sewing on the list of subjects taught in the schools there. The pils should be taught to work with the hand as well as the head, and the council honed that some provision would shortly be made by the Legislature for the further introduction o manual training in the schools. Al. though to some this might seem insignificant, the council believed it very necessary that the children who were should have a high idea of manual labor. This and all of their special which would be likely to hamper the work bore strongly upon the home. Another prominent work of the coun-was the bringing about through the Legislature of the appointment of women factory inspectors for the Province, and not only that but a clause had been added whereby each city might appoint a woman inspector, as has been done in Toronto. Her Excellency then spoke of women school trustees. In British Columbia and New Brunswick it was now compulsory to have at least two women on the school boards. This question, though not before the council, might be taken up in the future. not dwell on the question as to whether children around the board that govern the Countess.

Among the other questions that had engaged the attention of the council were the tak. ing hold of the women's departments at agricultural exhibitions. The damage done to this country by the overtraining and overwork of our women, the danger of the spread of pernicious literature, and how to counteract it, were spoken of. If the young people have no guidance they will pick up one of those books or papers to pass away the time, and the effect will be evil. A Depot Porter Charged With the Crime.

Unique Method of Stealing Money From Canadian Banks.

Detroit. Mich., Sept. 17 .- For about a year the Canadian and United States Postoffice Departments have been trying to locate the responsibility for the periodical extraction of letters from the mail pouches between Toronto, Montreal and cago. About a month ago J. J. Lard mour, postoffice inspector, was assigned to the case. In examining the sacks received at Chicago from Toronto and Montreal, via Detroit, it was found that several of them had been ripped open and re-sewed with white instead of yellow thread, they were originally. This fixed the locality of the theft at Detroit, or somewhere between Detroit and Chicago. Finally Larmour located the pilfering in the Fort street Union depot where the sacks were put on Wabash trains.

The other night Mr. Larmour, who had concealed himself, observed, as he says, Harry Laroway, depot mail porter, take the sack containing the mail from Montreal and Toronto and rig it open, remove the package of let-ters and place them in a box which he kept under his table. He then, ace cording to Inspector Larmour, resewed the sack and placed it on the pile of sacks ready to be sent on to Chicago. Laroway was at once arrested and placed in jail. He strenuously denied his guilt. The rifling of the mail pouches from Toronto and Montreal has been going on for over a year. Early in the spring the Grand Trunk Railroad losts its entire mail for one day, containing remittances for smaller roads and other parties for an entire month's settlement. In addition to the thousands of personal letters that have been stolen during the last year, the Molsons Bank, the "We need Bank of Montreal, the Bank of British North America, the Grand Trunk is advisable to have mothers of and Canadian Pacific Railroads have been heavy losers.
