EILEEN BARRON LOCATED AT GRANDFATHER'S HOME IN NEWCASTLE, ONTARIO

Little London Girl, Who Was Spirited Away From City on Tuesday, Seen on Streets of Village-Mother of Child Also There, and Detectives Are Investigating the Case.

rapped from Talbot street school on Tuesday afternoon, is now at New-castle, Ont., at the home of her grand-felter, R. J. Eilbeck. The child een on the village streets last evening. Her mother, a former resident of the fillage, was also seen. Their appearance caused a mild sensation, for the story of the girl's kidnapping from the London school had appeared in the Toronto evening papers and the resdents of Newcastle were cognizant of the trouble here.

Remaining Indoors. The mother and daughter were still at the father's home this morning, but remained indoors. Traces were seen of them, but it is claimed that Mrs. Barron had talked to none of her former acquaintances there. Whether she will contest the habeas corpus writ of her husband for the custody of the child, or what action se will now take, is unknown. Over long-distance telephone this morning, her father, R. J. Eilbeck, former sheriff of Yukon Territory, refused to dis-Refused to Talk.

"I have nothing to say for the public at all," was the orly answer he gave to inquiries as to whether the had heard nothing of what they case would be contested and what the mother's future action would be. He hear some time today."
