MARKET VERY QUIET OWING TO BLIZZARD

Previous to 9 o'clock this morning the local market was deserted, not a wagon of any kind being visible. The roads are reported in bad shape, and the local square will show the effects of the recent blizzard probably throughout the entire week. week. The wholesale price of potatoes is 95c to $1 per bag, but with the efferings nil and the dema 1 keen, the price will likely oar unless the e is a decided reaction at The same collitions apply to hay. The quantity const. ed in this city is considerable, and since Saturday not a load has been offered on the square. The offering comorrow will depend on the weather.

Apples are selling slowly for 50c to 80c per bu. They are mostly "windfalls," and as such sell at the minimum price. Comparatively only a few are selling at the maximum. Pears are selling at 75c. alsell for 30c per basket, with a scant sup-

As was intimated on Saturday, the prevailing price for live hogs will be $8.85 this week. Other live stock prices are In consequence of the unfavorable weather conditions of the past few days, there is a scarcity of butter and eggs. Before the change these lines were firm and high, and it is expected that the price will be higher.

BROKERS SUSPENDED FOR THREE YEARS

[Canadian Press.] London Nov. 11.—The committee of the London stock exchange, which has had under consideration the alleged improper dealings in American Marconi shares, today suspended for five years the three senior partners of the stock broking firm of Heybourn & Croft, for the methods they adopted in placing the shares on the market. Heybourn visited the United States in company with Godfrey C. Isaacs, managing director of the Marconi Wireless Company, and brother of Sir Rufus Isaacs, now lord chief justice. This visit occurred just when the deal between the American and British Marconi companies was consummated.
Heybourn was later an important witness before the parliamentary committee, which considered the action of several British cabinet ministers who bought American Marconi shares.

The report of the committee of the stock exchange which was posted accepts the explanation given by other brokers connected with the deal, including Grenfell & Co., the brokers of the American Marconi Company, e%pressing the belief that they acted in good faith.

POLICE AND STUDENTS

Kingston Corns Were Unable Handle Recent Queen's Riot. [Canadian Press.]

Kingston, Nov. 11.-The city council nad the Kingston police force under review last night, when a resolution was submitted for the appointment of a committee to investigate the recent riot and destruction of property by the students f Queen's University "in honor" of the defeat they administered to the McGill Rugby team. It was shown that the police force was handicapped by regulations that should be discarded, and that their number was too small to patrol the ity. The opinions expressed at the council meeting will be dealt with by the police commissioners. Alderman Ross, Kingston's representative in the Legislature, declared that if council did not seeure redress from the police board of which the mayor is a member there was higher court to wich it could appeal, and that was to the Provincial authorities at Toronto.

A Reply to the Rev. Mr. Norwood. To the Editor of The Advertiser:

If the newspaper report of his remarks be correct, the Rev. Mr. Norwood, in his recent address to the Women's Canadian Club, made a number of charges against our public school teachers and pupils that call for a

Mr. Norwood condemns our teachers for using "the flat 'a'" in such words as "path." I suppose that he means by the flat "a," what is more commonly called the short or sharp "a," as in "fan." Now this short "a" is, of course, a standard English vowel sound, and occurs more frequently than the intermediate or so-called Italian "a" as in "far." One newspaper report represents Mr. Norwood as contending for the pronunciation of "path" as "pawth," evidently with the "a" like the broad "a" in "fall," which must be an error in the report, as that is as far from the so-called correct pronunciation in one direction as the teachers are said to go in the other

A conflict of usage arises in the case of "path," "bath," "calm," "palm," and a few other words, where the intermediate "a" is sounded by some persons and the short "a" by others. The interest in the situation lies in the fact that the former class of persons arbitrarily declare that their pronunciation of these words is the only correct one, and denounce the other pronunciation as vulgar and wrong. A contraversy on this matter would be as profitless as the disputes of the Littleendians and the Big-endians. Which pronunciation is to be followed might reasonably be held to be a matter of opinion and custom, and, when there are two opinions and two customs, it looks somewhat like undue complacency for one class to assume that they alone are right

Mr. Norwood is further reported as saying that "our boys and girls should be taught how not to speak through their noses." Is Mr. Norwood not aware that he himself speaks through his nose as well as through his mouth, as indeed does every other Englishspeaking person who is not suffering from a bad cold or other disease or malformation of the vocal organs? It is a censure passed long ago by English critics against American speak ers, and thoughtlessly repeated again and again since, and now brought against Canadians, that they speak through their noses. To be convinced as to the absurdity of blaming anyon for this mode of utterance, let our critics speak without using their noses that is while compressing the nostrils tightly between the thumb and forefinger. The critics will see that if the tone of our speech distresses them now, the case would be much worse if the nose were to be deprived of the function it plays in utterance. It is not likely then, that our teachers will feel bound to teach their children not to bound to teach their children not to speak through their noses.

Mr. Norwood is said to have asserted that the average English boy or girl is better-mannered than the average Canadian boy or girl. Perhaps that is so. But it does not follow that the remedy for the evil lies in imitating the English in our modes of education. We might develop a worse evil, one that characterizes the spirit and attitude of many people in England—the attitude of obsequiousness and servility, as shown by the English shopkeeper, the English butler and house servant, and the English farm laborer. Truly many of these persons cannot call their souls their own. They do not even know how to begin to think of such a thing. They are the victims of a social system that is dominated by lords and squires, and bishops and rectors, and army and navy officialdom. Better, far better, our sturdy independence, even if at times it is a little rough in its manners, better this than that base slavish degradation. Of course, there is a happy medium in manners, which is probably what Mr. Norwood recommends to our retire, and there we can all agree with speak through their noses. what Mr. Norwood recommends to our notice, and there we can all agree with

htm. Mr. Norwood seems to have declared matter of religious teaching, and pares them unfavorably in this particular with the English parish schools. It true that we do not dull our pupils it memorizing and reciting creeds a catechism and collects, and the facts Bible history and geography, which is what is often called teaching religion, but which may have very little religion in when judged by effect upon conduct the only test in such matters. But the main features of the Christian religion, everyday virtues of honesty and ruthfulness, and moral courage, and sobriety, and kindliness, and the forgiveness of injuries—these are inculcated by precept and by example by our best teachers. I could tell Mr. Norwood of two public schools in this city (the only ones with whose work I am familiar—I uppose the other schools have the same virtues), where Hebrew children, Italian children, Chinese children, and negro children, though alien in race, in color, and in creed, are all treated with notable kindness and Christian charity by both teachers and pupils. That is Christianity in practice, without the repetition of for-mulas of doctrine. I wonder if the clergy and other educational agencies have developed or maintained among the adult population of our city as liberal a spirit a spirit as free from race and color prejudice, as the teachers have developed mong the children? No one will argue that our public schools are perfect or that our teachers are above criticism. But they should not number is to be increased as new

SHIFTING OF CARGO MAY HAVE CAPSIZED FREIGHTER

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 11.—A large steel freighter, overturned, was found floating in Lake Huron late Monday about eight miles northeast of Port Huron. Captain Reid, of the wrecking crew, which located her, arrived here tonight, and said her name had not been learned when he left the scene. It is believed that she was abandoned during the terrific gale which swept the lake

Captain Reid said a heavy sea was running when the freighter was found, and there was no distinguishing mark to identify her. There are a number of large steel boats similar in appearance to the derelict plying on the lakes, and the wrecking company had not been notified that any boat which had not been located had

Marine men think that the boat may be an ore-carrier, which became uncontrollable in the storm and shifted her cargo.

Captain Reid returned to the scene of the discovery with a king tug tonight. He did not know whether it would be possible to tow the wreck to the local harbor.

If the vessel overturned with the crew aboard, it is possible that the loss of life might reach as high as 30 persons or more.
