The crux of the case for the railways was that the brotherhoods had been glad to accept all the increases ordered by the United States Railway Board from the original order from Washington to the McAdoo schedule and the Chicago award, which all meant big increases in wage bills for the railways and were accepted by the Canadian roads.

But the railway representatives argued that as soon as the other side of the question came in evidence and the United States Railway Board or-The crux of the case for the railways

Claims Wages Are Low. Representatives of the various protherhoods took the ground that wages before the increases had been much too low; that the cost of living was higher than in the United States, that the ap-plication of the increases had been much later than in the United States and that the reduction in the cost of living in Canada was not such as to justify the reduction put in effect in July by the railroads following the on of the United States Railway

W. J. Babe of St. Thomas, Ont. vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who appeared in the absence of Vice-President James Murdock, also claimed that the rail vays had taken an illegal course in forcing the 12 per cent reductions beore they had been passed upon by ciliation board.

Mr. Babe consequently objected to the whole of the present proceedings, arging that according to the statute eductions were not legally made and be left it to the board to decide as to the legal point raised by him.

Owing to the lengthy nature of the statements presented by the brother-hoods and rallway representatives it was impossible to conclude the hear-ing this afternoon, and the board ad-
