New York, Feb. 8.—Some of the major league clubs indicated today that they are beginning to wonder whether they made anything by adopting the resolution permitting all major league teams to hold all players up to forty until June 15.

The teams which are anxious are the weaker organizations. Both New York Clubs, Chicago, Detroit and Pittsburg are well blanketed with funds, but some of the other teams when they snuggle into the financial bedolothes find their leet sticking out in the cold.

It is the old story of the clubs with the long bank rolls having the better of the argument. The lads with the small stack of chips are less able to make big bets to extrengthen their playing forces.

Bets is the proper term for in reality tinues to win races and bruise old freedrichins and jumped in the nearest lake. The lease with the small stack of chips are less able to make big bets to strengthen their playing forces.

Bets is the proper term for in reality the majors are gambling in the player player player than the traffic tied up nor sixty days, the majors cannot well negotiate with minor league clubs to stop a gap here or there as one may develop, because the minors will not have much to offer that is desirable if the bigger majors have decided to hang on to their full quota of players allowed under the resolution.

More than 100 players can be held by the big major league clubs if they decide to dawdle along; and pay salaries for an extra month. Take 100 players out of the available supply and there is bound to be a shortage all around in the minors, who are not going to dobusiness with anyone unless they can lineardly some of the minors are glowing. They would not express any keen sorrow if the weel-known milistone under their chins and jumped in the nearest lake. The lesser major league clubs mean nothing much in their young lives.

It would be sad, however, for the majors to find they had stepped on their own tails in an effort to get even with McCarthy of the Pacific Coast League and others of the fighting Irish because they latter could not accept the dust.

Stranger things have happened.
