overlooking this essential principle mu-fail in its mission. It does not requir an actuary to see that the cost of insurance must increase with the age of the insured, and this necessary element is fully recog-nized in the Commercial plan of the Nor h American Life. It is, however, entirely ignored by the Mutual Reserve.—Monetary. Times, July 17th, 1883. A Chance for Mr. Riordon The Sixty-fifth battallion of Montre will be in Toronto next week. They have worked gallantly and serviceably in the Northwest and they are returning to Montreal bearing with them a fair share of the nors of the field. Now this regiment is she one which Mr. Riordon's junior paper went out of its way to throw mud at, and to lay at the door of the men a lot of unsavory acts. For doing this the editor was compelled to go to Montreal and answer a charge of libel. The hearing of the case was put off till the fall in order to enable the editor to hunt up proof of his charges, of his energy to that object. But we would suggest to Mr. Riordon that it would be wiser for both him and the editor to make the amend honorable. Nothing is to be gained even if they show that the charges were true; much bad blood however would be engendered. Race hatred we are afraid as the main incentive in the case; but if he question of race supremacy is to be fought out, we think a better issue can be

I was reluciant to make so large an outlay, but am now convinced that the expenditure was a good one.
I have just returned was absent two weeks. On my return took off the amount indicated by the register, and found it to tally to a cent with the cash.

JULIUS CAHN, 156 West Fourth St. January 12, 1885, he writes:
"Please send at once another No. 3 self-adding register. I want the latest and the best, and am willing to pay accordingly. I think your Register is just the thing needed in every post trader's store."

Mr. J. Munch, Toledo, O., Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, writes us:

"I neve two of your Cash Registers, and would not do without them for one thonsand dollars apiece if I could not replace them. I think they are the best things ever got up to keep the cash correct."

I take pleasure in testifying as to the merits of the cash register. There can not be too much said in its praise. I think that there never was anything invented that would take the place of the cash register in a retail store. I have now only had my register in use two months, and it works with entire satisfaction.
