dian village, where the Steamer could not land us the day before, because there was no body there to come out for us, all the Indians having gone to the Salmon Canneries.

On Monday we had a Picnic in the boats, we went past two or three Islands, and landed on a small Island. We had lunch with us, and also a few pails of fresh water, because there is no fresh water on this island, and they said we could not very well drink salt water.
