AUTUMN.

'Tis the golden dream of an Autumn day,
With the soft rain raining as if in play
And a tender touch upon everything,
As if Autumn remembered the days of Spring.

In the listening, where there is not a breath
To shake their gold to the sward beneath;
And a glow as of sunshine upon their faces,
Though the sun is hid in the shadowy lakes.

The cock's clear crow from the farmyard comes,
The muffled bell from the bell-fry house,
And faint as I dream, and from far away
Come the voices of children in happy play.

O'er the mountains the white rain draws its veil,
And the black rocks caving, across the fall,
While nearer the swooping swallow skim,
O'er the steel-grey river's fretted brim.

No sorrow upon the landscape weighs,
No grief for the vanished Summer days,
But a sense of serene and calm repose
Like that which Age in its Autumn knows.

The Spring-time longings are past and gone,
The passions of Summer no longer are known;
The harvest is gathered, and Autumn stands,
Serenely thoughtful, with folded hands.

Over all is thrown a memorial here,
A glory ideal the real never knew;
For memory sifts from the past its pain,
And suffers its beauty alone to remain.

With half a smile and with half a sigh,
It ponders the past that has hurried by;
Sees it, and feels it, and loves it all,
Content it has vanished beyond recall.

O glorious Autumn, thus serene,
Thus living and loving all that has been!
Thus calm and contented let me be
When the Autumn of Age shall come to me.

ASSOCIATION.

As I sat and gazed on the silent sea,
Just after the sun had set,
A wondering Zephyr conveyed to me
The breath of a violet.

An odor faint, but it brought a face
As it lightly passed me by,
Richly endowed with charm and grace
And fair as the morning's eye.

A beauteous face serenely bright,
And wearing a gracious mien,
And eyes illumed with the purest light
That ever in eyes was seen.

A smile as sweet as the glimpse of heaven
That the saintly sometimes get—
All these to the rapt gaze were given
By the breath of a violet.

Thus, too, in the memory once again
Will a host of visions throng,
When we hear the long forgotten strain
Of a once familiar song.

And so many a flower, a bird, or tree
Recalls the friends we've met.
As that beauteous face was brought to me,
By the scent of a violet.

BOOK GOSSIP.

A new book, to be published by Worthington & Co., of New York their International Library series, will be of interest at this season of Columbus celebrations. "With Columbus in America" is a dramatic historical novel which treats of the discovery and conquest of this continent. While adhering strictly to the facts of history, the author has presented many romantic and heretofore unknown incidents in the private life of Columbus and his followers, and these facts, together with fanciful details, he has interwoven into a work that is at once thrilling, interesting, strikingly poetic. His heroes and heroines seem to rise before us; we are charmed by their presence and follow their adventures with breathless anticipation. The narrative presents natural descriptions that are truly exquisite; the story is at times darkly passionate and possesses in an eminent degree most weird, tragic and tender beauty. It is written by C. Falkner, adapted by Elise L. Lathrop. With photogravures. 1 vol. 12mo. $1.25; paper 75 cents. This volume is going to be followed by two others, 2, With Cortez in America, and 3, With Pizarro in Peru, both of which partake of the excellence of the former volume. These three forms a set that ought to be in every American's library, for they are early American history pleasantly, are healthy in tone and brightly illustrate the times in which the scenes are laid. Worthington & Co. also announce for immediate publication as No. 18 in their Rose Library a novel by Zola entitled "Money." It is, as its name implies, a record of the produced upon the human race by its greed for gold. It represents capitalists, or rather speculators, who, instead of being gamblers out of their wits under another name, in an apparently legitimate way are extorting other people's money, start banking institutions, stock companies, etc., at first making lots of money, paying out high dividends, but finally draw out or lose all in speculations recklessly planned. In the end the crash comes of course thousands of innocent people suffer by it.
