LECTURE.

ON Tuesday last, our worthy Librarian, Mr. W. A. Douglas, delivered the second Lecture of our "Members' Course," and, to quote the words of one of the audience, "I never listened to a lecture which conveyed such an amount of information in such a brief compass." We are not astonished at this, for we know of no man better fitted than Mr. Douglas to deal with such a subject.

There was a large attendance, and a marked appreciation of the Lecturer's services. Mr. R. Kilgour occupied the chair,

He remembered that they were but flesh.
