

Bennett, Right Hon. R. B.—Con.Address in reply—Con.

countries closed more against Canada than at any previous period in her history, 62; restrictions placed against our exports by United States, France and Germany; successful trade negotiations with France, Germany, Austria, and United States; no interference by United States congress with tariffs after 1930; securing of favoured trade position for Canada under Ottawa agreements; attitude of Liberal party towards Ottawa trade agreements, 63; lumber agreements with boards of trade in Great Britain; speech of Mr. Mackenzie King of April 9, 1929, on undesirability of any tariff action on the part of Canada against United States that might be construed as of a provocative character; favourable attitude of present United States government towards reciprocal trade relations with Canada, 64; duty of government to negotiate treaties fair to all parties without sacrificing Canadian interests; Sir Wilfrid Laurier on "no more pilgrimages to Washington"; Mr. Lloyd George on tariffs, 65, 66; efforts made to expand our trade during the great depression; Canada now fifth among trading nations of the world; expansion of our empire trade in phenomenal manner under Ottawa agreements, 67; position taken by opposition of that day when Canada went off gold standard and attitude of present opposition contrasted; decrease in number of unemployed throughout the country; number of people in Saskatchewan receiving relief in drought-stricken areas; report of Mr. Cudmore of the statistical branch on unemployment situation 69; reduction in number of unemployed from 750,000 to 400,000; policy of Liberal party one of activity against every measure proposed by the government, 70; action of opposition in endeavouring to make it appear that Canada is suffering to a greater extent than it is; Mr. Mackenzie King's charge of discourtesy to the crown in introduction of reform measures; Byng-King correspondence of 1926, 71; inclusion of speeches made by public men and causes and policies advocated in subsequent speeches from the throne; Mr. Gladstone's speech at Greenwich

Bennett, Right Hon. R. B.—Con.Address in reply—Con.

dealing with matters subsequently placed before parliament for consideration; purpose of broadcast speeches to inform the people of the country of what the government proposed to do; Conservative party prepared to carry forward reform measures indicated in speech from the throne, 72; objection raised by leader of opposition to use of expressions "my government" and "my ministers"; review of situation as far as support of the government is concerned as evidenced by by-elections; net position of government after four years shown by loss of two seats in house; undesirability of by-elections when general election not far distant, 73; conducting general election in orderly and prompt manner; registration of electors not to commence until six months after coming into force of Dominion Franchise Act; magnitude of task imposed on dominion franchise commissioner in preparation of electoral lists, 74; no attempt made by government to interfere with preparation of lists; six million names on voters' lists, 75; reasons for suggesting basic electoral lists; reference to platforms of contending parties; carrying out the promises in 1927 Winnipeg Conservative platform; failure of Liberal party in office to implement promises in their 1919 platform; changing of expression "fifty per cent" to "substantial" with reference to increase in the British preference, 76; whole trend of affairs during past ten years towards tariffs; protecting this country from dumping by depreciated currency countries, 77; dumping of tennis shoes from Czechoslovakia; Conservative party no believer in high tariffs, 78; attitude of opposition on Marketing Act; delegation from premiers of Ontario and Quebec asking federal government to save newsprint industry from demoralization; leader of opposition on derogation of rights of parliament; delegation of power of parliament to specific individuals and bodies to act in time of emergency; setting up of advisory board on tariffs and taxation under previous government without authority from parliament, 79; marketing act and adjust-