seem to be the next step forward. The probability that the commercial classes, now finding a home in the technical building. will be there for some time, makes it necessary to provide for a large student body sooner than had been contemplated. There is no adequate provision in the present building for physical training or for a gathering of the whole school in general assembly. A gymnasium and an assembly hall are invaluable features in the education of adolescents, and the advisory committees should look forward to the early completion of the building, Inspector Gavin states.

CONSIDER BUILDING

The need of some provision for the physical activities of the young people of Askin Street Methodist Church has led to the appointment of a committee, of various departments in the church work, who will consider the advisability of providing an adequate gymnasium and will report back to the church boards. gymnasium and will report back to the church boards.

It has been suggested that the present frame gymnasium building on Teresa street, be removed and the basement of the present school building extended back and roofed over with cement above the ground level. Then, if it was desired to enlarge the Sunday school at a later date the cement covering would form the ground floor of the extended school.

During the winter the young men of the church have been using the basement of the Sunday school for their sports, and so many have been in attendance that the need of better provision. Which has been felt for a long time, has been much emphasized. The committee which has been appointed will consider the plan from all aspects, and upon their report will probably depend whether or not the scheme will go ahead in the near future.
