A SINGLE TIMES AD. BRINGS BACK PURSE

Sergeant Strachan of military head-quarters staff, has reason today to be thankful for a woman's honesty and the Times' classified advertisements. One thankful for a woman's honesty and the Times' classified advertisements. One day this week he was in the Victoria Hotel and while there dropped a purse containing, among other things, fifteen dollars in money. His loss was not noticed until too late to look for the property with any hope of finding it so he decided to advertise in the hope that it might have been picked up. On Friday night he inserted a classified advertisement in the Times telling where he had lost the money and describing the purse with the result that one of the hotel scrubwomen, on reading the ad, returned the money to the sergeant. His thanks were very substantially given in the form of a reward for the woman's honesty. The sergeant said last night that he thought this act was certainly deserving of some mention as the money could have been kept without his ever knowing what had become of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Belding went to Boston for a holiday, arriving there on Sunday, Sept. 10. That very night he had to go to the hospital for an emergency operation to relieve agonizing pains in his right ear, the sudden and unexpected after-effect of a previous severe attack of grippe. This minor operation had to be repeated for the fourth time and there was a for a week grave fear of one much more serious. This, however, was happly avoided by the skill of the specialists, and during this week the patient has improved very rapidly. He and Mrs. Belding therefore hope to be home about the first of the month.
