DISCUSS THE SITUATIONFar Has Caused Crisis in Affairs of Movement Among Jews.

New York, Sept. 19.—An extraordinary session of American representatives of the Zionist movement has been called for an early date at the Hotel Marlborough. The general European war has caused a crisis in the affairs of the Zionist movement, and the international headquarters have been moved from Berlin. This meeting in New York probably forecasts the location of these headquarters on this side of the Atlantic for the future.

Dr. Schmayer Levin, a member of the Zionist committee of the movement, and member of the former Russian Duma, opened to be on this side of the Atlantic attending a meeting of American Zionists in Rochester, N. Y. He said the Kron Princessen Cecile, and returned to this side when she had to turn round to escape capture. Doctor Levin is who has called the extraordinary session.

The Jewish National Fund Bureau, headquarters formerly in Cologne, has been removed to The Hague, according to a delayed letter received from the offices of the bureau by Doctor Price, abbi of the University Avenue Synagogue. This letter gives directions as to how money for the movement should be sent, advocating that sums be remitted to the Jewish Colonial Trust, London.

In announcing the suspension of Gil Blas, a well known Paris literary and artistic journal, the editor says: "Gil Blas is a paper of youth, produced for young men. Hardly a member of the staff or a printer remains. We have other duties now—on the frontier. This is our last edition till the war is ended."

The Babies of BrusselsNo Milk For Them, Because They, as Well as Women and Children and Men, "Are Enemies of the Fatherland When Germany is at War"

By MARY BOYLE O'REILLY

Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 2 (by mail).—Nurse Marie Pellicie, of the French Red Cross, met me at the hospital door. I had seen her for a moment at night, step confident, manner serene. Now her face was white.

"There is no milk in Brussels," said Nurse Marie Pellicie.

I made to laugh. There are many things wanting in the captured capital. "And the babies?" prodded the Red Cross sister. Then I sensed the horror.

"Therefore, we have arranged to go to the commander of the city," she continued, "determined to appeal—four of us—women of different countries. Will you come? Will you be an American delegate?"

In half an hour the quartette stood in the Hotel de Ville explaining our mission to a representative of the German army governor. Nearer that potentate we could not approach.

By agreement we tacitly waived nationality to state the case of the little ones. The English woman spoke in German, the French woman in Flemish, the Belgian in English, the American in French.

Our plea was plain and pointed. "The outposts prevent dairy carts entering the city. Therefore babies starve."

The Prussian officer's silver-strapped shoulders moved ever so slightly. "We trust, Herr Lieutenant (the English woman's voice was toneless with neutrality), we beg the milk farmers may be allowed to come to the gate as neutrals."

The officer's upstanding moustache twitched with amusement. "Then we insist," urged the American, "that we women, on our honor, be permitted to pass the barrier—merely to return with a peasant's milk cart."

Again that arrogant smile. "Now we demand," climaxed Nurse Marie Pellicie, and the Red Cross on her cheeks. "We demand that we women, or your soldiers (who are willing), be allowed to secure milk for the babies of Brussels."

Followed an instant's silence.

French woman and German officer eyed each other. Her manner was confident, the spirit of new France. His military, feudal to the verge of insolence. He spoke with finality that denied contradiction.

"You ask the absurd—the impossible. We Prussians recognize no distinction of persons! Men, women, children, all are enemies of the Fatherland when Germany makes war!"

Today a hundred babies lie dead in Brussels.

A LAPSE OF MEMORY

(Glasgow Herald.)

The Kaiser quoted Shakespeare, "to be or not to be," in his windy manifesto the other day. It is not to be inferred from this, however, that the swollen head of the House of Hohenzollern is a good Shakespearean, despite the admiration of his subjects for the Bard. The contrary may be surmised from an incident which is said to have occurred at a lunch at one of the Berlin emperors a few years ago, which Wilhelm had honored with his presence.

A British diplomat, who happened to be sitting within hearing, was discussing with a lady some big affair of the moment. The Kaiser looked a little puzzled. "That is quite true, and very well put," he remarked, "but I don't remember saying it."

"As our immortal William has observed," the diplomat concluded, "there is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." The Kaiser looked a little puzzled. "That is quite true, and very well put," he remarked, "but I don't remember saying it."

Almost any meat bones can be used in soup making, and if the meat is not all removed from them the soup is better. But some bones, especially the ribs, are better if they have a little meat left on them, can be grilled or roasted into very palatable dishes.

The "square" of southern cooks is made of the rib bones from a roast of pork, and makes a favorite dish when well browned. The braised ribs of beef served in high-class restaurants are made of portions of portions of meat such as are frequently thrown away in private houses, but which with proper cooking and seasoning make attractive dishes and give most acceptable variety to the menu. An old recipe for "braised bones" directs that the bones be first boiled in water until the meat is not left too thick in any part; be sprinkled with salt and pepper (Cayenne), and broiled over a clear fire until browned. Another example of the use of bones is boiled marrow bone. The bones are cut in convenient lengths, the ends covered with a little piece of dough over which a floured cloth is tied, and cooked in boiling water for two hours. After removing the cloth and the bones are placed upon a platter, to be served. Prepared as above, the bones may also be baked in a deep dish. Marrow is sometimes removed from bones after cooking, seasoned and served on toast.

Meat Cakes

One pound chopped veal, one-quarter pound soaked bread crumbs, two table-spoons savory fat or butter, one tea-spoonful chopped onion, one and one-half tea-spoons salt, dash of pepper.

Mix, all the ingredients, except the butter or fat, and shape into small round cakes. Melt the fat in a baking pan and brown the cakes in it, first one side and then the other. Either cooked or raw may be used. In the case of raw meat the pan should be covered so that the heat may be retained to soften the meat.

Stew From Cold Roast

The dish provides a good way of using up the remnants of a roast, either of beef or mutton. The meat should be freed from fat, gristle, and bones, cut into small pieces, slightly salted, and put into a kettle with water enough to nearly cover it. It should simmer until almost ready to break in pieces, when onions and raw potatoes, peeled and quartered, should be added. A little soup stock may also be added if available. Cook until the potatoes are done, then thicken the liquor or gravy with flour. The stew may be attractively served on slices of crisp toast.

Meat Turnovers

Almost any kind of chopped meat may be used in these, and if the quantity on hand is small may be mixed with potato or cooked rice. This filling should be seasoned to taste with salt and pepper, onion, or whatever is relished, and laid on pieces of short biscuit dough rolled thin and cut into circles about the size of an ordinary sausage. The edges of the dough should be moistened with white of egg, the dough then folded over the meat, and its sides pinched closely together. If desired, the tops of the turnovers may be brushed over with yolk of an egg before they are placed in the oven. About half an hour's baking in a hot oven is required. Serving with a brown sauce increases the flavor and moistens the crust.

MIDDLE-AGES METHODS USED IN BUILDING OF AMERICAN CATHEDRAL

In the construction of the great new Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York, the largest church edifice ever undertaken in America and trying in size with the greatest European churches, an effort is being made to revive the methods by which the craftsmen of the Middle Ages labored in co-operation to produce the masterpieces of architecture which still rank among the most beautiful structures ever built by man, says the October Popular Mechanics Magazine in a handsomely illustrated article.

The architects, who have built many churches and cathedrals, have come to the conclusion that the only way to hope to get into the work some of the impressive yet elusive, qualities that permeate the ancient religious monuments of England and France, is to endeavor to follow the methods that led the old cathedral builders. They hope to gather together, at the new cathedral, tried and trusted artisans who will work as much for the love of their calling as for their wages.

These workmen will be divided into groups representing the principal trades employed, such as stonecutters and carvers, woodworkers, stained-glass makers, metal workers, and so forth. These groups of craftsmen will have their leaders who will work in constant touch with the architects. The architects will encourage the various craftsmen to work with their brains and imaginations as well as with their hands. They will not be tied down to rigid drawings. There will be no general contractor, but the general contractor's net profit, while on work of this sort usually amounts to about eight per cent of the cost of the building, will be distributed regularly in the form of bonuses to each workman in proportion to his regular wages. This, in short, is part of the famous guild system of building as it existed in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

No Degeneration

Speaking of the Valcartier review on Sunday last Le Canada says: "This flower of our youth which will make known on the battlefields of Europe the valor of the Canadian races already so highly appreciated on South African battlefields, will render a good account of themselves and of us, and will continue Europe that neither the French nor the English blood has degenerated by being transplanted to America."

George D. Shearer of San Rafael, Cal. is exhibiting samples of fruit picked from pear-trees planted in 1817 by the padres who established in that year the mission San Rafael Archangel.

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them and you will have been the means of saving one poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmital (Double Strength), about 75c. (worth). Take this home and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh; therefore, there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmital always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c. to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P. Q., who make a specialty of it.

MUCH PAIN FROM KIDNEY DISEASE

Doctored in Vain Until Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Were Used.

Kidney derangements are often associated with disorders of the liver and bowels, and under these conditions ordinary kidney medicines usually fail to effect cure. It is because of their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so generally successful, even in the most complicated cases.

Mr. Emanuel Bernard, farmer, St. Paul, Kent county, N. B., writes: "About eighteen years ago my wife was laid with kidney disease, and suffered greatly from headaches, pains in bowels, and stomach, and her heart was affected. For a year she was treated by her doctor, with no apparent benefit. She then used five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with most satisfactory results. This gave us such a good opinion of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills that we always keep them in the house."

To be used for all derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c. a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
