

Per Steamer "Belgian" and "Persian."

The British Government having telegraphed to its officials in Russia for information relative to the epidemic in that country, the ambassador at St. Petersburg, in a despatch dated the 5th, says the fever is contagious, and in England is called the relapsing or famine fever, also the remittent or bilious typhoid fever. It was unknown in Russia until eight months ago. There is also much ordinary typhus in St. Petersburg. The official St. Petersburg journal asserts that the fever had slightly abated.

Lord Napier reports from Berlin on the 5th, that an unknown disorder had appeared along the valley of the Vistula, but the Prussian Government is not aware that it came from St. Petersburg.

The London Times suggests that medical officers be sent from England to study the disease.

A Paris letter says several medical students who went from France to investigate the epidemic had fallen victims.

FROM THE STATES.

Boston, April 21.
The body of President Lincoln reached Baltimore this forenoon on its way to Springfield, Ill. It lay in state until 2 p. m.

The perishing of Lee's late army was completed on the 13th inst. The official report puts the number of men at 26,115; 159 pieces of artillery; 71 stand of colors; 15,918 stand of small arms; 1100 wagons, &c., and 4000 horses and mules.

The men left for their homes on that day most of them left going off in small squads. Anderson's rebel brigade, however, marched off in a body.

Berlin, April 6.—The plague continues at St. Petersburg. The number of deaths had reached 20,000; there were 100 cases a day. Forty physicians died. Lateral off barracks had been turned into a hospital. Precautionary measures were being taken at Moscow where the food and lodgings of the laboring classes were being inspected by the police. It is not the cholera, but the plague with dilated pupils, carbuncles, &c.

Melbourne, Feb. 23.—The war had recommenced in New Zealand, and the British had suffered considerable loss. Mr. Hewitt, a member of Provincial Council, had been murdered and decapitated by the rebels.

New York, April 19.—The Persia arrived up at 3 p. m. Mr. Cullen was buried on the 17th in the Laing Church. The proceeds were most solemn and touching.—The House of Commons was largely represented.

New York, 22d. P. M.
A despatch from Charleston says an expedition sent out by Gilmore under Porter to Hanterville and Manchester destroyed all the railroad bridges between Columbia and Florence, 1000 bales cotton, 7 locomotives, and 43 passenger cars, and brought 2,600 liberated slaves.

Next Monday 101 battles flags and guidons captured during the recent campaign in Virginia, will be presented to the War Department at Washington.

No war news except the rumored surrender of Johnson to Sherman.

Gold 148.

Boston, April 24.
Official advice state that Sherman and Johnson had agreed upon terms for the surrender of the latter, including all the rebel forces now under arms against the United States. An armistice was also agreed upon until each party could consult with their respective authorities. The armistice was signed on the 18th, and facts communicated to the Washington Government on the 21st.

The President and Cabinet immediately assembled, unanimously refused to confirm Sherman's action, which accorded political concessions not authorized and despatched Gen. Grant at once to Sherman's headquarters, to resume hostilities forthwith, and compel Johnson to fight or surrender without any political conditions whatever.

It is feared that Sherman's armistice will afford Jefferson Davis, who was with Johnson, an opportunity to escape into Texas.

President's Forenoon Corriges will reach this City this forenoon.

April 24.
Secretary of War telegraphed as follows: "The Department has information that the President's murder was organized in Canada, and approved at Richmond. One of the assassins now in prison, who attempted to assassinate Secretary Seward, is believed to be one of the St. Albans' raiders."

Macdon, Ga. was captured by Gen. Wilson on the 30th ult. Howell Cobb, one of the leaders of the rebellion, was taken prisoner, also several other leading men.

Steamship City of Washington dates to 15th arrived.

Political news unimportant.

Charles Joyce and Co., Cotton Drapers, London, suspended; liabilities £1,100,000. Breadstuffs continued very dull at nominal prices, corn 27s. 6d. to 27s. 9d.

Provisions steady.

Consols for money 91 to 91 1/2.

President Johnson has appointed the 25th May next for a day of fasting and prayer in memory of President Lincoln.

Nothing later from Sherman.

Business entirely suspended to-day to pay honor to the remains of President Lincoln, now in this City.

No gold report to-day.

Evidence already obtained, implicates six different persons in the plot to murder the President, nearly all of them from Maryland.

Two pairs of handcuffs and a gag were found in Booth's trunk.

John Wilkes Booth.

The murderer, is the youngest son of the late tragedian, Lucius Junius Booth, who was the only successful rival of the elder Kean. John Wilkes Booth has three brothers, Richard, the eldest, an accomplished linguist, now in Europe; Janius Brutus, an actor, and Edwin, the distinguished tragedian, a resident of New York City. There is also a sister, Agnes, who is the wife of the well-known comedian, Mr. John S. Clarke of Philadelphia. John Wilkes is now in the twenty-sixth year of his age, having been born in Harford County, near Bel Air, in the State of Maryland, in the year 1839. He has been well and carefully reared and educated. He is a young man of remarkable personal attractions, being five feet and between eight and nine inches in height, with a fine, manly muscular form, standing very erect, with a quick, elastic step; a head of good size and shape, well poised; prominent, regular features of classical mould, a full, bright jet black eye, animated by kindness and intelligence; a black, well trimmed mustache, and a wealth of soft, dark, curly hair. He dresses with punctilious neatness, and would attract attention anywhere. He had few rivals among his companions who could surpass him in running, wrestling and horse-back riding. He is an accomplished swordsman and a splendid shot also—in fact being an adept in all the manly sports. Although at times he would indulge too freely in the intoxicating cup, and act somewhat eccentric, he never seemed wickedly disposed or particularly quarrelsome. He was always considered a hail fellow well met, and quite incapable of doing any one a deliberate injury. John Wilkes' associations have principally been with the South, and the current of his sympathies have run that way, though he was not more demonstrative in giving expressions to them than others of his associates, and having hosts of warm friends in the North, when in their society never offended their feelings by unnecessary or bitter reflections, though there were occasions when arguments would arise, and he would take a decided stand in favor of his sympathies. He has never held a commission in the Confederate army, nor during the rebellion has he been further South than his native State.

Edwin Booth.—There was a report in circulation this forenoon that Edwin Booth had been taken into custody, but it proved totally void of truth. We are told that Edwin, on hearing the dreadful intelligence of his brother's act, exclaimed: "My God, he has ruined us all—our whole family! We can never face an American audience again." He was completely cast down, and exhibited the most bitter sorrow. It is also reported that he has resolved to quit the stage forever.—[Boston Voice.]

About twenty rebel general officers arrived in Boston last Saturday, and were sent to Fort Warren. Among them are Lieut.-General Ewell, Major-General Kerenshaw, Brigadier-General Barton, Simms, Corse, Deboise and Huston, and Commodore Howse. These officers were captured almost in a body by Gen. Sherman's forces. Gen. Ewell is stated to have expressed his regret at the death of the President, saying it was the most painful intelligence the South could now hear.

Dr. Livingston, the celebrated explorer, it is said is in considerable anxiety respecting his eldest son, who was kidnapped in an American port on board the vessel in which he was arriving. He enlisted in the 3rd New Hampshire Volunteers. He is known to have taken part in the skirmish before Richmond on October 7, 1864, but from that time all trace of him is lost, and every mode of sending letters to him has been tried in vain.

The Pope's Intervention.—The Roman correspondent of the Times tells, doubtingly, the story of a "miracle" just performed in Rome. "The Princess Olesca has long been suffering from what was pronounced to be internal cancer. On the morning of the Austrian ball, her death appeared to be so imminent that several of her grand children had almost resolved not to be present. The Princess, however, who is a Pole, an excellent and most devout lady, sent to the Pope requesting his intercession. His Holiness ordered up his prayer for the Princess, through the mediation of St. Chrysogonus, who has a magnificent church in the Trastevere. The Princess recovered, and instead of being placed in her coffin, got in her carriage, drove to the Vatican, saw the Pope, who was at dinner, and thanked his Holiness for the cure."

The report on the conjugal condition of the population of the colony of Victoria at the census of 1864 has lately been issued. There were more widowers in the colony than widows. Between the age of 20 and 40 there were 84,000 bachelors, while there were only 15,264 spinsters for them to choose from. Assuming the period of old bachelorhood to commence at 40, there were 13,397 of that amiable fraternity in the colony, but there were only 829 old maids.

A TALKATIVE PARROT.—A gentleman had a parrot which had been taught many sentences; to a stranger he generally said, in a very consequential tone, "Who are you, sir?" There was also a black cat in the neighborhood which had a bad character for honesty and who often made excursions into the room where the parrot was in, in search of prey. In the course of time Miss Pussy got the name of "the black thief." Polly heard this, and of course caught it up. One morning a chimney sweep came into the room, when Miss Polly called out, "Who are you, sir?" And then, after a pause, added again and again, most vehemently, "You black thief!" The poor man stood aghast at being thus accused, nor could the owner for some time make him believe that the parrot did not mean it for him.

The Shop of Messrs. Crosby & Bailey, Gunsmiths, was broken into last Monday night and robbed of over $100 in cash, a Silver Watch, and a Revolver. The thieves had also packed up a basket of various articles collected from the show case and elsewhere, but it is supposed that finding the money, which was locked up in another apartment, they content to depart with the richer booty. Heavy suspicions are resting upon certain parties who were seen lurking about the premises on the evening in question. The money stolen included a £5 Bank of England Note. The young men are industrious mechanics, just commencing business, and can ill sustain the loss entailed upon them by this robbery.—[Reporter.]

The remains of the late Thomas Jones, Esq., recently the highly respected and deservedly popular Sheriff of this County, arrived here yesterday by steamer from New York, and will be interred this day in the Episcopal Cemetery. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock from his late residence in King Street, when a testimony of respect to the late chief executive officer of the County, the public offices and stores will be closed for an hour, and the flags hung at half mast.

ERRATA.—The names of "G. D. Street, and J. H. Whitlock, Esq's," were erroneously placed before the word "Vestry Men"—it should have been Church Wardens.

The Concert given in aid of the new Church on Thursday Evening last in the Town Hall, was attended by a large and respectable audience, and gave general satisfaction. The instrumental accompaniment was executed with judgment and taste; the duet by the Piano and Flute was performed in artistic style. The various solos, duets and choruses, were well rendered, and several of the songs encored—the alto singing was, as it deserved, to be, much admired; and we do not hesitate to assert that it could not be excelled in the Province; but where all did so well, it might be considered injudicious to mention names. How a dozen young persons could after so short a practice acquire themselves so creditably, is surprising; St. Andrews may well rejoice in having many of her sons and daughters with such fine voices, and so much taste. At the close the audience rose, and joined heartily in singing "God Save the Queen."

HIGH-HANDLED ACT.—On Monday last, while the Steamer Queen was at the Public Wharf, one of the United States soldiers stepped on the Wharf, and was making his way to the street, when the Provost Marshal ordered a guard to take him on board, which they did without asking permission which could not have been granted, unless there was some crime against him. It will be wise on the part of any officer in charge of troops on board the steamer, not to permit such a high-handed proceeding again, as such an unlawful act might lead to a disturbance. Had a British Soldier stepped on the wharf, at Eastport or Calais, would the people have let a British Officer order his men to take him on board? They would not, but would do as they did a few years ago, bustle him into a crowd and demand respect for their flag. A man who would desert is not worth having.

Another hint, and we have done, no American Officer has any right to demand passports at a British port, for passengers going on board a steamer. This was done here last week.

The members of the Government from Charlotte, York and Westminster were returned without opposition.

Jefferson Davis, Gen. R. E. Lee, and Gen. McClellan, have all been in this Province—Mr. Davis was here a few years ago, and stopped at Bradford's hotel, while in charge of a surveying party. Gen. Lee, some years ago passed while employed on the Boundary Line survey, and Gen. McClellan when a lieutenant was commandant at Houlton.
